CALGARY BLAST LEVELS HOUSE

CALGARY (CP) — An explosion rocked a residential area of southwest Calgary early today, levelling one house and damaging at least 10 neighboring homes.

There were no immediate reports of death or injuries, but the fate of the occupants of 4707 17th Ave. S.W., where the explosion occurred at about 2:30 a.m., was unknown.

Several occupants of neighboring houses were sent to hospital for treatment of schock.

Firemen said the causc of the explosion was still under investigation.

The force of the explosion was so powerful that windows were broken in houses up to seven blocks away. Debris fell several hundred square feet in all directions and the explosion was seen and heard several miles away.

Neighbors Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kacsmar, whose walls crumpled, thought it was an earthquake.

A police spokesman said the explosion apparently involved natural gas and foul play is not suspected.

New Strike Hits Island Sawmills

Vancouver Island sawmills, only recently back to normal after being hit last week by a series of strikes, were disrupted again today by a new group of unhappy workers.

Last week, welders and mechanics walked off the job, and today, filers, members of the International Woodworkers of America, followed suit.

They threw up picket lines at three mills in the area covered by the IWA's Duncan local, closing down the operations and idling about 750 workers.

There are about 70 filers at the three operations — Saltair sawmill in Ladysmith, MacMillan Bloedel's sawmill in Chemainus and the Japanese-owned CIPA operation in Nanaimo.

In the Victoria area, about 12 filers booked off sick, six at the Sooke Forest Products mill in Sooke and the rest from B.C. Forest Products operation on Garbally Road.

Both mills were still operating this morning but Jim Warr, manager of BCFP's Victoria division, said if the filers remained off much past noon, the 20 members of sawmill crew would have to be laid off.

"We don't know what's the matter with them or why they are sick," Warr said.

Roger Lewis, president of the IWA's Victoria local, said the filers' concern is slightly different than that of the welders and mechanics whose strike last week at one time closed eight sawmills and idled more than 4,000 workers.

One of the filers' complaints, he said, is that there isn't enough of a spread between the rates paid those in the three job classifications in the filing rooms.

He said those on the lowest scale earn $9.09 an hour and on the other end, benchmen get $9.29.

As a result, he said, there is no incentive for a worker to move from one classification to another. The issue was raised during recent negotiations with the industry, he said, but the companies refused to budge.

Jack Reiser, first vice-president of the Duncan local, said union officials are attempting to meet with the filers to impress upon them their walkout is unauthorized by the union and that they should return to work.

S. AFRICA TO PLEASE ITSELF

DURBAN (Reuter) — South Africa has reserved the right to use its nuclear potential for other than peaceful purposes to suit its own needs, Finance Minister Owen Horwood said today.

Speaking at a Natal provincial congress of the governing National party, Senator Horwood said South Africa has given an assurance that its nuclear program is aimed at peaceful uses and stands by that assurance.

But if South Africa decides to use its nuclear potential in any other way, it will do so according to its own needs and it alone will make the decision, he said.

Both Prime Minister John Vorster and Foreign Minister Pik Botha have said South Africa has no intention of developing such a weapon.

Peace Safari Doomed?

Times News Services

NAIROBI — Andrew Young and David Owen arrived in Kenya today on their African peace safari, silent on their proposals to end bloodshed in Rhodesia which have met opposition from virtually every quarter.

Young told a news conference the two men's African swing "has been a very interesting trip thus far," but both Western envoys dodged questions about their faltering discussions with white and black leaders.

Owen and Young were scheduled to spend a low-key Wednesday briefing Kenyan leaders and William Eteki, secretary-general of the 49-nation Organization of African Unity, while awaiting the outcome of the Rhodesian elections before flying to Salisbury Thursday to resume substantive discussions.

Meanwhile, a Johannesburg source said today that South Africa refuses to lend its crucial endorsement to the plan for a peaceful shift to black rule in Rhodesia.

The source, said the snag was over who would control Rhodesia's armed forces during the transition to black rule.

South African Prime Minister John Vorster said he was not prepared to endorse part of the plan requiring that black nationalist guerrillas be included in the armed forces and putting the military under the control of a UN peacekeeping force, the source said.

In Salisbury, Prime Minister Ian Smith, on the eve of the election he is expected to win by a landslide, predicted today the plan for black rule will fail.

Smith scheduled a final election eve appeal on radio and television for a mandate to reject any Anglo-American majority rule plan.

NATIONAL ECONOMY FALTERS

Ottawa Sticks to Budget

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald will stick with the policies of his March 31 budget despite a weak economic performance between April and June, and is not planning a new budget, spokesmen say.

Production in the national economy declined at a 2.4 per cent annual rate in the second quarter, the third quarterly decline in the past year, Statistics Canada said Monday.

Macdonald said the figures do not properly reflect underlying trends in the economy.

There will be an improvement in the third quarter, between July and September, he predicted.

By that time, the 1.2 billion of tax cuts offered corporations in the March 31 budget should be having an effect, he added.

The second-quarter fall in the annual rate raised fears of a new recession.

It was the third quarter in the past year during which real output has fallen.

Statistics Canada said it is still too early to say that the economy has slipped into recession, although weak economic conditions currently mean "recession cannot be ruled out."

Economists generally regard three quarters of declining output as a recession.

They also say a five-per-cent annual growth rate for GNP is necessary to keep the economy expanding and avoid rising unemployment.

The national unemployment rate in July was 8.1 per cent, leaving about 878,000 Canadians jobless.

The July inflation rate, measured by the consumer price index, was 8.4 per cent, well above the target of six per cent set out in the anti-inflation program as the target for 1977.

Statistics Canada also reported Monday that Canada's trade deficit soared to $6.5 billion in the second quarter as imports rose and exports were unchanged from earlier in the year.

PM Vetoes Fall Election Plea, But Cabinet Shuffle Rumored

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau Monday afternoon gave "thumbs down" to his closest political advisers on their proposal for a fall federal election.

But chances of a major cabinet shuffle in the next few weeks have increased.

Several current cabinet members are rumored to be on their way out, including controversial Jean Pierre Goyer and External Affairs Minister Donald Jamieson.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald is now expected to leave for a private law practice in Toronto, most likely to be replaced by Jean Chretien who would prefer the finance portfolio to a new career in Quebec provincial politics.

Veterans Affairs Minister Dan MacDonald is also rumored to be slated for a Senate seat, with the possibility that Eugene Whelan would fill his post.

Some newcomers from the backbenches are expected to be elevated to cabinet posts, including Hugh Poulin of Ottawa-Centre, to re-establish the tradition of having an Eastern Ontario cabinet minister.

Jack Horner, minister without portfolio, was quoted in a published report as saying Trudeau plans to call an election.

Horner could not be reached to confirm the statement. He was en route to Ottawa from his Alberta ranch where he has spent most of his time since the last session of Parliament adjourned several weeks ago.

One party spokesman said Horner has been out of touch with party activities during the holiday. But a Horner aide said he has returned to Ottawa several times for cabinet-level meetings.

The report also quoted Horner as saying Trudeau will announce a cabinet shuffle before calling an election.

Trudeau met privately last week with party campaign chairman Keith Davey, his principal secretary Jim Coutts, Government House leader Allan MacEachen and Health Minister Marc Lalonde to discuss an election.

Heather Hough displays new metric speed signs

METRIC ROAD SIGNS GOING UP THURSDAY

Metric highway signs will go up as scheduled Thursday despite a delay in government advertising advising motorists of the change, a highways ministry spokesman said today.

Ray Bain said the program starts the same day as elsewhere in Canada.

School zone speed limits will be the first signs to be changed, with the work slated to be completed by the time schools resume Sept. 6.

The new school zone signs will read 30 km-h, which is slightly slower than the current speed limit of 20 miles per hour.

All other highways distance and speed limit signs will be converted by the end of the month. The changeover will be immediate and no dual signs will be displayed.

Highways Minister Alex Fraser said Monday the advertising campaign was delayed because Royal assent to the metric legislation wasn't given until only 12 days ago.

The campaign will be stepped up over the next month and all drivers will be expected to know metric equivalents within the next two to three weeks.

Fraser said police have been asked to take it easy on motorists at the beginning of the program.

But Victoria-area police said they have received no such instruction.

"I can't understand anyone making a statement like that," said Saanich police Insp. Ted Owens.

"There'll be no difference in the way we enforce speed limits here," he said. "I don't think anyone is going to be so foolish as to try to argue he didn't know a "50 limit meant miles and not kilometers — that's just too big a difference in speeds."

Owens said he does not anticipate problems.

While the highways ministry is responsible for changing signs on provincial highways throughout the province — there are an estimated 25,000 to be changed — each municipality will have to convert signs within its own boundaries.

Saanich engineer Cliff Warren said removal of the old signs will begin next week and the new signs installed by the end of the month. The changeover involves aboout 22 types of signs and will cost about $7,000.

The conversion in Victoria may be slightly delayed as council has yet to have its bylaw amended to allow the move, Traffic engineer Derek Wild said.

He said the signs are ready and were produced at a cost of about $1,500.

Wild said he expects conversion to be completed by the middle of the month. Only one sign, a clearance sign for a railway bridge in Vic West, will carry dual measurements for a time.

Although metric conversion has been several years in coming, and has been widely advertised in the media, there appears to be a lot of misunderstanding about what the program entails, a spokesman for the B.C. Automibile Association in Vancouver said.

Riots End U.K. Carnival

By FRANK RUTTER
Times London Bureau

LONDON — The throb of the steel drums that lured a quarter of a million people into the Notting Hill district of West London became the plop of tin cans and bottles and the clunk of bricks against police riot shields Monday night.

After Monday's violent finish to what was billed as a two-day West Indian festival, police said they made 227 arrests in the two days.

During the pitched battles with gangs of black youths, 139 persons, including 30 policemen, were treated for their injuries.

Seventeen persons, including nine police officers, still are in hospital today.

The two-day festivity of Jamaican-style flamboyant costumes and travelling steel bands was a high-spirited and happy occasion until the violence began shortly after dusk Monday.

Gangs of youths apparently began fighting among themselves, then turned on police. They hurled bottles and stones and fought officers in bitter hand-to-hand combat.

Ambulances wailed into and out of the area around the Portobello Road, an antique and junk market regularly patronized by tourists, to shuttle the injured to hospitals.

"It is tragic," said David Lane, chairman of the Commission for Racial Equality, "that after the efforts of the organizers, their stewards, the police and the public to ensure a successful carnival, the occasion was spoiled by a few hundred rampaging youths."

Just like other violence this summer the disruption of the carnival at Notting Hill had been widely feared and predicted.

In relative terms, it affected only a small part of the carnival, although its first victims were mostly white spectators where money was stolen.

But what might have been a racial volcano was more a clash between cops and robbers: the color in it may have been a reflection of local frustration but the motive appeared to be felonious.

It was another case of an event trying to live up to its advance publicity.

The London press, for weeks, had been running articles on conflict among the carnival organizers, the police and the local community.

PILOT CITED IN COCAINE CASE

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A CP air pilot and three others were scheduled to appear in provincial court today charged in connection with the seizure Sunday and Monday of 11 pounds of cocaine in a house here.

The DC-8 pilot, Edmund Garfield Walker, 35, of West Vancouver, and John Emerson, 28, of North Vancouver are charged with two counts of possession of cocaine for the purposes of trafficking. Emersons's wife, Donna, 28, and Richard Michael Zacks, 23, are charged with one count of possession of the drug for the purposes of trafficking.

Police said the seized drug has an estimated street value of $500,000.

Go-Slow Forty Suspended

Times News Services

LONDON—Striking air traffic control assistants went back to work in the London area today and the Civil Aviation Authority immediately suspended 40 of them who refused to promise to work without causing further disruption.

The action threatened to worsen an already complex situation, which has brought cancellation of nearly half of all scheduled flights involving British airports.

Assistants reporting for work at the midnight end of a four-day strike were asked to give a pledge to work normally. Their union intended to continue a traffic snarling slowdown, which was in force before the strike began.

When 40 of the assistants refused, they were suspended for 48 hours "to reflect," an aviation authority spokesman said.

"We see this as a highly provocative action," one union official said. "We are very angry," said another.

Officials had feared that the end of the all-out strike would only make an already bad situation worse if the traffic control assistants continued their slowdown.

The assistants' union said it was trying to co-ordinate the slowdown, which delayed hundreds of thousands of travellers for 10 days before their four-day strike, with slowdowns French and Spanish controllers are staging.

Assistant controllers at Prestwick, the Scottish airport that handles much trans-Atlantic traffic, remained on strike.

Crime, Drugs Linked to 50% Murder Victims

NEW YORK — A new profile of murder victims in New York City — disclosing, for the first time, that half of all victims had arrest records — has emerged from a police analysis of homicides committed here last year.

The study also showed that almost half of all murder victims had "detectable levels of alcohol, narcotics or both in their blood at the time of death."

Francis J. McLaughlin, the deputy police commissioner for public information, said that the study's finding with respect to the arrest records of homicide victims was "very surprising," but added that its full significance had to be examined further.

"The new information is helping us flesh out a portrait of murder victims and potential victims," he said.

Last year, according to figures previously made public, there were 1,622 homicides in the city, a decline of 23 murders or 1.4 per cent from the 1975 total. The homicide rate in New York City, as throughout the U.S. generally, has been declining or levelling off in recent years. During the first six motnths of 1977, there were 693 murders in the city, a decline of 24 homicides, or 3.3 per cent over the first half of 1976.

Of last year's victims, the new study showed, 867, or 53.5 per cent, had criminal records. Thirty-five victims had been arrested on murder charges. Of 1,024 suspects arrested on murder charges, 791 or 77.72 per cent had at least one prior arrest. Forty suspects had been previously arrested for murder.

Drug crimes accounted for the largest single category of arrests for both victims and suspects — 12 per cent for the victims and 15.1 per cent for the suspects, followed by robbery (victims, 10.9 per cent; suspects, 13.6 per cent and assault (victims, 10.4 per cent; suspects, 10.8 per cent).

The study gave the following picture of murder victims and those arrested for murder:

— Young adults constituted the age group with the highest number of victims. About a third of all victims were in the under 21 to 30 age group. Youths between the ages of 16 and 20 made up 28.5 per cent of those arrested for murder.

— Males accounted for 81.6 per cent of the murder victims and 89.6 per cent of those arrested for murder.

— Nealy 48 per cent of all victims were black, while Hispanic people accountel for 30 per cent. This distribution also generally follows the pattern of recent years, except that last year there was a 50 per cent increase in the numbero of murders of Orientals — 23 homicides as compared with 15 in 1976.

— More than half of the victims were killed by friends or acquaintances during a dispute.

THE OUTCASTS by Ben Wicks

AirWest Union Boycotts Talks

Negotiators for the Teamsters Union, representing AirWest Airlines Ltd. employees, today boycotted scheduled meetings with a federal conciliation commissioner for the second day in a row.

About 25 employees demonstrated Monday outside the Vancouver hotel where the meetings were to be held and union officials didn't respond to commissioner Jack Chapman's suggestion that they attend today's meetings to discuss new company proposals.

Chapman said company officials showed up for the meeting Monday and the one scheduled for 9:30 a.m. today but no union repesentatives.

He said he will wait "a reasonable length of time" today and then return to Winnipeg, his hometown, and write his report.

The union's position is that Chapman, recently given a 14-day extension to resolve the dispute, is unduly prolonging the conciliation process.

The employees say Chapman is making no headway in his efforts and therefore should report back to the federal labor minister and allow them to go on strike.

The employees cannot strike while the commissioner is involved and must wait until seven days after he has filed his report before they can walk off the job.

A union spokesman said Monday as soon as Chapman files his report, the union will ask federal Labor Minister John Munro to waive the seven-day-waiting-period provision.

Chapman said the company's new proposals related to getting the employees to end a "study session" which began July 29 and get back "to good-faith bargaining."

He said he has until about Sept. 7 to file his report and there is no way of knowing how long that job will take.

AirWest employees walked off the job for the study session to protest against the firing of a co-pilot for failing a route check test.

The employees are also engaged in efforts to hammer out a contract with the company replacing the one which expired Oct. 31, 1976.

Rent Control Removal Moves a Step Closer

The legislature gave second reading, approval in principle, Monday night to a bill which would grant the cabinet the power to remove rent controls.

In closing debate on the Residential Tenancy Act which would replace the Landlord and Tenant Act, minister of consumer and corporate affairs Rafe Mair promised that rent controls will only be lifted where warranted by the vacancy rate.

He doubted that the elderly, the handicapped and those on welfare would be affected and accused the NDP with trying to create hysteria by suggesting otherwise.

Mair denied accusations by Gary Lauk (NDP—Vancouver Centre) that the Social Credit party made a secret deal with landlords to eliminate rent controls at the same gime party leader Bill Bennett was promising in 1975 election campaign newspaper advertisements that a Social Credit government would retain rent controls.

Lauk said the new act will open the floodgates for greedy landlords.

"This is class legislation for the landlords of the province. Although the government has had many black days, this so far has been the blackest."

Charles Barber (NDP—Victoria), said a case in adjacent Oak Bay where a landlord served notice of a 54.1-percent rent increase in anticipation of the removal of controls, was an illustration of what can happen when rent controls are lifted.

Emery Barnes (NDP—Vancouver-Centre) accused the government of failing to show compassion and conncern for people who are unable to defend themselves.

"I am sure the vacancy rate is down because you have eliminated the people of no means, or are trying to," he said.

WORLDWIDE SHORTAGE OF HONDAS HITS CANADA.

HONDA

We're not playing hard to get. It's flat-out true that more people want Hondas than we can make and ship to Honda dealers. When we designed the Civic, we wanted to please a lot of people. So for penny pinchers, we made it run for miles and miles (or kilometers and kilometers) on Regular grade gasoline. For engineering buffs, we equipped Honda Civic with the latest refinements. For those who drive for fun, it's designed to be quick and easy, clean and crisp. Put all these people together, worldwide and we've sold a lot of cars. So many that a temporary shortage forces us to ask customers to wait a few weeks for delivery. On the other hand, would you ever want a car for which there was a worldwide surplus? Hmmm?

Put a smile on your face. Drive a Honda.

Accountant Heisted $1.1M

VERNON (CP) — A former Vernon bank employee was sentenced Monday to four years in prison for the 1972 theft of $1.1 million from the bank in which he worked.

John Wayne Geick, 28, pleaded guilty in provincial court Aug. 22 to a charge of theft over $200.

Geick was employed as an accountant at the Bank of Nova Scotia when the funds — a combination of cash, money orders, travellers cheques and savings bonds — were discovered missing Feb. 14, 1972. He disappeared the same day.

Geick was arrested earlier this month at Las Vegas, where he lived for most of the time since the robbery. He was then returned to Canada to face the charge.

The arrest came after a break-in at Geick's Las Vegas apartment.

The man who committed the break-in was arrested and found to be in possession of negotiable securities through which Geick was traced.

Geick was originally alleged to have stolen funds valued at $851,000, but during sentencing Monday Crown counsel Bob Williamson said the amount missing was $1.1 million.

About $940,000 of that amount has been accounted for.

Defence lawyer Glenn Einfeld said he was uncertain about the discrepancy in figures, but said it might be due to interest on certain securities.

Fingerprint 'Signatures' Safeguard U.S. Cheques

New York Times

NEW YORK — Because the cheque — for $2,700 — was drawn on another branch, the may trying to cash it was directed to a bank officer for her appreval.

She asked for identification, whch he had in abundance. Because she did not know him, she also asked him to put an inkless fingerprint on the back of his cheque.

Finger points at prints, machine

The man balked, then hurriedly headed for the door.

Her suspicions aroused, the officer called the man's bank branch. She discovered that his account had received a $30,000 deposit only the day before and that $15,000 worth of cheques had been written against it within the last 24 hours.

She ordered the account frozen. The $30,000 deposit turned out to be fraudulent, and the bank as able to cut its losses in half.

In a society in which changing one's identity can sometimes be as easy as changing one's brand of toothpaste, it gets harder every day for businesses to guard against fraudulent cheques and fraudulent cheque-cashing, which last year cost United States banks, supermarkets and retail stores an estimated $4 billion.

With losses rising each year, banks have been hard-pressed to come up with some way to improve internal security. In one three-month period last year, 10 Chase Manhattan branches reported losses of $12,000 because of fraud.

But on cheque endorsed with an object that looks like a stainless steel doorknob, losses were cut to zero. Called Touch Signature, the $33 device paints two small ovals of chemicals on any absorbent material, such as a cheque.

The customer touches one, then the other oval, and leaves a clear fingerprint on the cheque, and, to his surprise, no messy ink blot on his finger.

That's about all there is to it. If the cheque clears, it goes back to the customer in the normal fashion. If not, it can end up with the police. But the system's deterrent value is mostly psychological.

Though Touch Signature prints have been used effectively in courts of law, the sytem works on the apparently sound premise that the dishonest cheque casher will avoid unnecessary risk and will take his business — and his bank cheques—elsewhere.

"Professionals will always find a way to beat the system," says Louis Buglioli, a Chase Manahattan vice-president, "but the harder we make it for them . . . the sooner they'll head somewhere else."

While most banks use the sanitized fingerprinter only with unfamiliar customers, they do so in a wide range of banking functions as a kind of second signature on new-account and loan applications, saving withdrawals, safe-deposit-box entry or any time the identity of an individual is in question.

The original concept came from a Los Angeles forgery detective, who sold it five years ago to a California millinery concessionaire named Harry Camp.

With the help of venture capital, Camp formed a company, Indenticator, then wasted time trying to sell the idea as an aid to apprehending criminals (fingerprint checking is too primitive and time-consuming in its manual form to be worth the effort required to catch petty forgers).

Only in the last year, with the introduction of the Touch Signature model, has the company begun to approach success.

Today there are 30,000 units in 125 banking corporations (and some supermarkets) in New York and California.

Computer Rebel Tamed

PASADENA (UPI) — Space scientists have regained control over the rebel computer aboard a Jupiter-bound space probe.

Last Friday the computer aboard Voyager II, using its emergency powers, began countermanding orders radioed from controllers at the jet propulsion laboratory, interfering with efforts to clear up a lingering minor problem.

Scientists were trying to get the spacecraft to blow a dust cover off its television cameras and other scientific instruments, and at the same time perform a roll around its own axis.

The cameras and instruments are mounted on the end of an extendable boom. Because of a communications problem immediately after the launch from Cape Canaveral on Aug. 20, scientists were unsure whether the boom was fully extended and locked in place, although it was clearly at least very close to the proper position.

They thought the jolt of blowing off the dust cover coupled with the centrifugal force of the roll would nudge the boom the last few centimeters, if needed.

But the on-board computer, programmed to take emergency measures if something goes amiss, interpreted the unexpected commands as improper and prevented them from being executed.

Commands were sent Monday changing the computer's programming to keep it from interfering again.

300 N.B. Villagers Wage War on Bikers

PETIT ROCHER, N.B. (CP) — About 300 angry village residents exchanged shots with two or three members of a local motorcycle gang before the mob burned a large clubhouse, two small camps, a pick-up truck and four motorcycles Monday night.

Two cars and a fifth motorcycle also were destroyed by the villagers after a dog owned by a gang member was killed.

A village official, who refused to be identified for fear of reprisals from the gang, said a jeering crowd of more than 1,000 confronted some members of the Daltons motorcycle club earlier Monday at a tavern and challenged them to fight.

The gang members refused to fight with the crowd which included about 50 men with guns and several othes carrying baseball bats. The motorcyclists fled to their isolated clubhouse in woods about five miles from here.

The crowd followed and gunfire was exchanged before the gang members fled into the woods and the clubhouse was burned.

Two RCMP officers were injured slightly by flying glass when they arrived at the burning clubhouse and the back window of one police car was shattered.

Staff-sergeant George Gauthier of nearby Bathurst RCMP said he did not know what caused the rear window of the police car to blow—possibly a shot from the woods or possibly a random hit from shells exploding inside the burning clubhouse.

The staff-sergeant said police were aware since late Sunday that trouble was brewing after a fight in a tavern sent two men to hospital and injured three others.

Five of the eight Dalton members were detained Monday, partly in connection with the investigation of the Sunday fight and partly because police expected further trouble, Gauthier said.

A sixth member of the club was picked up for questioning and went into hiding after he was released.

Police were looking for the two remaining club members who were believed to be in the woods hiding from the villagers.

No villagers were in custody early today, Gauthier said, but some weapons had been seized and an investigation was continuing.

The village official said police removed eight women, friends of the Daltons, from one of the three small camps owned by club members while an angry crowd stood outside threatening to destroy the building. Police moved the crowd away from the building where the women had been but the other two camps were burned.

The crowd had dispersed by 1 a.m., police said.

MAN WITH RIFLE SHOOTS UP PUB

EDMONTON (CP) — Staff at a south side Edmonton tavern overpowered a man with a rifle Monday night as he fired six shots in a crowded beer parlor.

Police said the shots were fired about 9:30 p.m., shortly after two men who had been involved in an earlier dispute at the tavern re-entered the drinking area, which was about three-quarters full.

Several bouncers jumped the man as he started firing and were able to keep the rifle pointed away from bystanders.

"We caught him in time, thank God, before anything drastic happened," said Archie Shaw, night manager of the Inn on Whyte tavern.

Shaw said several patrons had been involved in a fight earlier in the evening and had continued it outside in an alley.

"Then one of the guys involved in the fight said he was going to come back with a gun and get even," he said.

A man has been charged with dangerous use of a firearm.

Watchdog for Unions

It is a certain conclusion that if Labor Minister Allan Williams decides to allow a little more government involvement in union affairs, the trade union movement will scream so loudly the noise will be heard at the unions' international headquarters in New York and Washington and such places. There will be the usual anguished cries about union autonomy and democracy and the need for unions to solve their own internal problems rather than have the government impose solutions.

The cries will come, and the union movement will never look at itself to see that it has spent the past several months showing the people of B.C. that it apparently cannot solve its own problems in any way that would satisfy the democratic instincts of the average citizen.

Two examples will suffice to illustrate the point. The first involves the Laborers' Union where an internal dispute recently boiled over in public. The dispute centred on the question of whether one local of the union should be placed in trusteeship and eventually involved such infantile manoeuvres as occupations and sit-ins by union officers. It eventually took a B.C. Supreme Court injunction to restore even a modicum of order to the situation.

The second example is that of the Teamsters Union, always, it seems, a group beset with internal squabbles and politics. The squabbles have surfaced in various ways (including threats of lawsuits) throughout the years, the latest being the so-called "trial" of one union secretary for alleged "mismanagement."

The judges in the "trial" are four other union officers who have also been part of the group hostile to the secretary. The trial is being conducted in secret, so much so that supporters of the "accused" were not even allowed inside the building where the proceedings were taking place in order to use the washroom.

The whole proceeding bears a closer resemblance to the Star Chamber proceedings of 15th century England than to a modern court where fairness and justice are of the utmost concern.

(In case one might get the impression that right is all on one side in this dispute, it might also be noted that the men refused permission to use the union washrooms were later seen urinating against a car that apparently belonged to one of the "judges.")

These are not the only examples of silliness and irresponsibility on the part of the unions in the handling of their internal affairs. They are just the latest ones. And they appear to show clearly the need for some type of legal means that ordinary union members may use to obtain redress in cases where they have been unfairly treated by their union.

Union spokesmen argue that members always are free to vote out current officers and elect new ones if they don't like the way a union is being run. But in practical terms that is about as realistic as saying that shareholders in a large company have a right to throw out the directors and management. It is theoretically possibly, but practically it could almost never happen.

In the past few years, governments have passed several laws, the aim of which is to make company managements more responsible to their shareholders. There would appear to be no reason why similar laws should not be applied to unions.

Inuit and Quebec

Who would have expected that the peaceable Inuit of northern Quebec would have been the first minority group to take drastic action against that province's language legislation? That a dozen small communities scattered along Hudson's Bay and Ungava Bay could unite in an apparently spontaneous action against Bill 101's restrictive provisions regarding the use of the English language?

It is the sort of demonstration of protest which the more suspicious of Parti Quebecois members would have expected from the anglophone enclaves of Montreal's west end. The PQ is already preparing its straw men to knock down in sham battle. Hints of a dark conspiracy against the PQ by the Central Intelligence Agency were leaked to the Quebec press, for example. But the Inuit? Igloo-dwellers and hunters?

The PQ will be mistaken, however, if it does not treat the matter with considerable gravity. The Inuit around Fort Chimo, Que. seem determined and organized for resistance. And being native people, with a long collective memory of disillusionment in dealing with governments, they are unwilling to "trust" the government of Quebec, or believe in soft assurances and protestations of good will.

They want specific, statutory guarantees that English will continue to be their second language, as it has been historically for more than a century. Their first contact with Europeans was when English explorers began the hunt for the Northwest Passage. The Hudson's Bay Company established trading posts in their midst. Anglican missionaries converted them to Christianity and brought modern medicine to the Inuit, and before the James Bay and Labrador regions were ceded to Quebec by the federal government before the First World War, Ottawa administered their territory — in English.

So the Inuit are angry that Bill 101 guarantees English will be the language of education only for the children of Quebec Inuit. Any who migrate from Labrador and the Northwest Territories will have to go to French schools. The bill too gives them just an exemption from the general provisions of the bill; it does not guarantee them permanent language rights.

So the Inuit of northern Quebec have told all civil servants except hospital workers to go back south. They say they will separate from Quebec if the province separates from Canada.

They probably speak for a good many Canadians and Quebecers who cannot stomach the increasingly high-handed and arbitrary actions of the PQ government.

It is ironic that it was these "original Canadians" who finally crystallized their opposition into direct action, after watching the reasonable, democratic efforts of the PQ's opponents utterly ignored by the government. Where next will such protests break out?

FRED CLEVERLEY

Man. Preparing for Election

WINNIPEG — It is quite probable that no one in Canada is more anxious to discover whether Prime Minister Trudeau intends to hold a general election this fall than Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba.

If a general election is not called, the premier can comfortably call a provincial election for mid-October but if the prime minister moves he could well be pushed into mid-December to seek his third mandate from Manitoba voters.

In the meantime, the premier is having a difficult time curbing an underground election campaign that in some areas is being waged as fiercely as if the election writs had already been issued.

His own cabinet ministers are knocking on doors in their own constitutencies, and are tied up tight with meeting after meeting scheduled in some of the present Conservative constitutencies the government is trying hard to win. One of these constitutencies — Swan River — will host four different members of cabinet at meetings held during one single week.

Nearly everyone in Manitoba expected the premier to call the provincial election last June. But opinion polls taken by both the government and the opposition, showed clearly that he would have lost at that time.

More Visible

By postponing the election, Schreyer has given the heat generated by this year's legislative session over such issues as hydro development, public housing and the premier's personal use of a yacht belonging to the owner of a company which obtained substantial business from Manitoba Hydro.

Government polls now claim that the party's image has improved to the point where it can fight an election, and claim that Schreyer himself is five times as popular as opposition leader Sterling Lyon.

It is possibly on this basis that the premier is considering an October election, a consideration that has already produced reservations for a fleet of rental cars during that period. However, the massive reservations of advertising time and space ending Dec. 12 show that the premier is keeping his options open should the federal election take place.

Both dates have advantages and disadvantages. The mid-October date is more reliable from a point of view of possible weather conditions. Mid-December could easily put the election in the middle of a three-day blizzard.

However, if Schreyer were to follow a federal election in which the Conservative party did badly, as present indications show they would, then possibly some of the disappointment could rub off on the provincial party.

Federal Conservative leader Joe Clark visited Winnipeg's festival of the ethnic groups Folklorama — last week and the provincial party members were conspicuous by their absence from any of the events staged by the federal leader.

At the moment the only prediction is that any Manitoba election this year will be a close one. If the Conservatives can hold their present 22 members and turn around five seats, they will form the government. If the government holds, it will be by a slim margin.

ED SCHREYER
. . . pondering election call

As he has done in the past, the premier is coming up front and centre in his party's campaign. In 1973 the theme was "Elect Ed Schreyer's New Democrats." This year it will be "Schreyer, leadership you can trust."

By choosing such a theme Schreyer is taking a definite gamble, one that British Columbia's Dave Barrett lost when his campaign, centred on himself, produced a voter backlash against everything he stood for.

But the New Democrats have already indicated they are prepared to fight a slick campaign. They are already distributing a 10-page booklet, called "Manitoba is Eight Years Better," which would be a credit to the best Madison Avenue could produce.

It is simple, direct, and deals with complicated issues in terms of pictures and terse sentences which ignore many of the real problems.

Everything pictured before the present government came to power in 1969 is in black and white photographs. Everything now is in color.

The previous administration is attacked not only for everything it did or did not do, but even for the advice it received but never implemented to reduce the number of small farms in Manitoba.

The pamphlet can be easily read, quickly grasped, and for anyone not willing to look up the details, presents a distorted picture of what has happened since 1969. One example is its attack on the $204 per family per year medicare premiums which existed before the Schreyer administration replaced premiums by a scheme based on income tax. However, to the careful reader another fact jumps out. The total health bill in 1969 was $65 million and is $225 million now. Considering the population has not increased, it means that the cost per family has increased to the neighborhood of $830.

Opinion Polls

Meanwhile, opposition leader Lyon fired the opening gun of his address by attacking the growth in the public debt of Manitoba during the NDP administration. Using government figures contained in bond sale prospectuses, he said that while each Manitoban owed $850 in 1969, today each resident of the province owes more than $3,400.

There is no doubt that the premier is a more visible figure than Lyon. It is a fact that Lyon has few friends in the working news media. But so far, during his two-year leadership of the Conservative party, Lyon has not made many mistakes. He has a good selection of candidates already nominated, and a yet-untapped wealth of experience in politics gained from the time he became Canada's youngest cabinet minister under former premier Duff Roblin.

It could be that Lyon places more reliance on events that take place after the election is called, and during the campaign, than on pre-election image making.

The answer will only be found when the votes are counted.

Lambrick School

As I approach my second year as a teacher at Lambrick Park secondary school, I become increasingly concerned regarding certain remarks made in reference to Lambrick by Scott Wallace publicly. I fully appreciate that Mr. Wallace has also publicly apologized and retracted his statement reflecting upon the discipline, etc., regarding our school. Nevertheless, I feel rather as though Wallace has let open a pillow of feathers on a windy day at the top of a hill, and has attempted, somewhat vainly, to retrieve them. May I, therefore, be allowed to help retrieve some at least of the more obvious ones?

Firstly, I chose to go to Lambrick. For the two previous years I taught at Oak Bay senior high school, a school which Wallace should surely know! I was very happy there, both with my colleagues and with my students, and loath to leave. But the principal, Mr. David Voth, had both the ideals in education and the humanistic approach to students which I shared myself. Consequently, when he told me that he had been asked to start a new school at Lambrick, I wanted to join him. I left Oak Bay with many regrets, and, despite the many warnings of the considerable difficulties besetting a new school, I sallied forth like a knight in shining armor. That same knight became battle-worn and weary, for, indeed, the difficulties were many: an incomplete building beset by a long strike, a noisy building accoustically, a building vastly overcrowded with an overenrollment of students descending en masse into a school with no set traditions and no previous reputation, indeed, briefly, an unknown quantity. Yes, it has been a tough year and yet, quite honestly, I have to admit that I have grown to love Lambrick.

I am not afraid, as was intimated about a teacher in another school, to speak as I feel publicly, with no reference sincerely to any other person. Why? Frankly, because I have personally found nothing but kindness, understanding and friendliness at Lambrick. Frankly, also, because I have found nothing but an eagerness and willingness to help from the school board. Indeed, recently the school board has allocated special funds to help alleviate a long list of problems drawn up by the Lambrick staff regarding the school building and conditions. I have further proof of this for, when a difficult problem regarding ventilation arose affecting my students and myself, the problem was quickly resolved after a personal appeal to the school board administration.

Regarding our own administration, we have our delightful trinity of principal, and two vice-principals who are happily also imbued with humanistic and sympathetic ideals in education. Yes, it is indeed true and very meaningful to the whole spirit of the school. It is this spirit that can so often be totally missed or ignored, and certainly so often remain unappreciated. But, it is this atmosphere thus created out of good will and dedication that makes Lambrick for me a school that I am proud to teach in!

Of course, we all agree with discipline. Without good, wholesome discipline no school can function efficiently. But a forcefully-imposed discipline that is harsh and totally lacking in real sympathy and humanity only creates a superficial gloss that really hides an inner bitterness and resentment. Whereas, however, a deeper and more sensitive awareness of the students' needs results in a greater and more lasting response.

It is such a response that we have been getting from our students increasingly. The list of achievements arising from this is long, but so much more rewarding! For me personally, the highlight this year has been our production of the full-length musical production of Oliver which we performed to packed houses for four nights in a row. This indeed represented an ideal in that we had a total combination of one-quarter of our student population involved together with most of the staff and many parents.

In the academic field, hard work has been put in to raise the standards in all subjects. English continues to be an all-year subject in a semestered school, thus doubling the time and providing undoubted benefits. Mathematics offer a vital program, alive and sensitive to the needs of education today, as do also the areas of science, social studies and languages where are offered both French, German and Spanish. Our art program is inspiring and our home economics. Indeed, all our costumes for Oliver were made at school. Our industrial education department, despite numerous physical difficulties, has proved itself. Our counselling program has proved to be most sensitive to students' needs. From scratch, our school band has reached a high standard and a major section accompanied Oliver. Business education meets its challenge.

Yes, we do have our problems in discipline, but they have decreased throughout the year. Indeed, most of the students have themselves objected to the bad behavior of the few. But, unfortunately, we still are left with some of our problems. What school is not? Yet, we will still continue to do our best to combat them even more next year. We are all dedicated to that.

But, Dr. Wallace, please do not put us down! We need encouragement to continue our earnest endeavour to make Lambrick the fine school that we envisage it to be. — Tony Nicholas, Chairman of Fine Arts, Lambrick Park Secondary School.

Save the Lake

In the letter Boating Save, (Victoria Times, Aug. 24) it was stated "the petition that is being signed is very misleading in that people representing it say it is just for big boats off the lake." I am "baby sitting" the petition and no way would I misrepresent it. The "owners" know that my views are different and respect them as I respect the views of those who wish to sign. I haven't. I am of the opinion that all nuisances should leave the lake, be they huge boats, noisy boats, drinking drivers, too young drivers, beer bottles, broken or unbroken and left around, garbage, detergent in the water, 2,4-D from weedkillers still used on lawns, fertilizers that encourage too much weed growth — like uppers and downers we have both — and the worst of all, sewage. This is our only fresh water supply of respectable size between Duncan and Victoria and we know householders have had to buy water in this vicinity not just because of the hot weather but lowered underground water levels, because of more tapping into it.

Yes, we are sick and tired of hearing about pollution etc. but we must be so tired of it we do something about it or, as with the thalidomide mothers we will live with it and our children for the rest of our lives.

We must save the lake.—Doris E. Carr, RR 1 Renfrew Road, Shawnigan Lake.

Hopeless Fantasies

How interesting this perennial human behavior which once again surfaced on the death Aug. 16 of Elvis Presley, supposed king of rock and roll. Flip history pages helter skelter, the formula is the same, how instant gods and kings (queens too) are created, or in our time, howled and screamed into being, most times with phony reasoning and logic.

A momentary set of circumstances and we poor homosapiens go bonkers completely blocking the minutest rationalization and equilibrium on social priorities. Instead we most often only pander to individual fancies where careers, services or creative artistries are concerned. Almost mindless seeming but ever some basic selfishness toward the top dog role thrust upwards endlessly.

Thus inevitable unfulfilment for millions induces hopeless fantasies to be strung out on elusive rainbows, not always harmless. Some ego circumstance selects individual activity as preferred performance, development and on to capture and crystalize blind beliefs, worship in calculated mesmerisms to be inherited and stuck with by generations ahead, perhaps for millenniums of time.

But why must certain deaths be indisputable catalysts to trigger mob hysteria, religious stampedes, ever accumulating from some built-in guilt from the darker side of life when by now the sun of intelligent relationship and selfless love should be soothing succor enough in accepting universal death and life beautiful at our stage of human development.

But if we are to be more fair and share more the necessary recognition, still in the medieval way, of many more gifted perons upon their death, we'd be then in perpetual mourning, inundated in sea of tears shed in grief. Our land surface could be encrusted with mausoleums and stone things, not even the neutron bombs could ever clear away. How sad.

No disrespect to the departed Elvis Presley. He had a particular gift of song. But countless others fill particular niches enrapturing and enriching our lives in the millions. Spare more thoughts too for the unsung and uneulogized human growers and tenders of all the flora and fauna so necessary for our living needs. Song birds too give much joy to the ear. Will they vanish?

If we could but remember more broadly that the ambivalent spirit of spectator-performer or principal star is embedded in the heart of every human being in the continuance of life whatever the role or capacity. — M. Anderson, 640 Dallas Road.

Priorities

While a sick whale is recovering partly due to massive doses of vitamins, a sick, crippled human being faces an uncertain future due to being unable to purchase the megavitamins the doctor has prescribed.

If one thinks about this at all, one comes face to face with the concept that because a whale has commercial value it must be saved at all cost, whereas people are expendable. One dismisses this thought as being ludicrous in a civilized society and affects an air of smug complacency.

But one can't keep up this pretense forever. Sooner or later one must face this question: Why all the fuss about a whale on the one hand and the harsh, high-handed treatment of people on the other? Why indeed, Mr. Vander Zalm? — Donald Bacon, 776 Falkland Road.

Postal Union

Postal union leaders should take a close look at our neighbors to the south at the creditable way postal operations are being handled.

With a 13-cent letter rate, the United States postal service recently has been operating in the black for the first time since 1972. The prime factor — output per worker (productivity) — has cut costs to such an extent that it is now a profitable operation instead of a catastrophic financial problem.

Five billion more letters are being handled today then in 1970 and it's being done by 65,000 fewer employees (through attrition) rather than 100,000 additional which would have been required if productivity had not had such a commendable upsurge. Yet, postal union leaders in Canada have the unmitigated gall and audacity to make ridiculous and asinine demands, particularly when productivity and service are at auch a low ebb. Rank and file workers should take note and vote in leaders who can see the handwriting on the wall and work sensibly on their behalf.

The pendulum has swung the other way now. Companies and businesses are cutting wherever possible due to labor costs, resulting in lost jobs, and private courier services are making inroads into postal services because they are more dependable. How can the rank and file feel their jobs are secure with these irresponsible militant union leaders hell-bent on damaging the economy of our country, advocating strikes which hurt the work force and us taxpayers. — J. Carter Can't Please the Liberals

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

Suppose, a year ago, liberal voters had been told that Jimmy Carter would be elected and by this date in 1977 would have: cancelled the B1 bomber, achieved a new treaty with Panama, taken steps toward normal relations with Cuba, allowed Vietnam to enter the United Nations, all but ended the practice of denying visitors' visas to foreign Communists, signed a strip mining bill into law, started a great effort for energy conservation, called for the easing of marijuana laws, proposed a thorough-going and humane reform of the welfare system . . .

Liberals would have been amazed and delighted at such a forecast, but Jimmy Carter has done those things now, and few liberals seem really happy with him. In conversation as in print, mistrust of the man persists. Liberal opinion raised this action or that but adds a concerned caveat about his larger intension.

Why the discontent? Of course it is not in the nature of liberals to be contented. And I think many misperceive the historical situation in which Carter finds himself.

We are in an essentially conservative period, continuing the swing to the right noted at the end of the turbulent 1960s. The country is hardly eager for social experiment. There is a backlash against sexual permissiveness. Further steps to help blacks and other minorities are difficult. Economic fears have aroused protectionist feelings and resistance to environmental safeguards.

One of Jimmy Carter's principal functions in history may be to keep the reaction from going too far. So it seemed to me when he was seeking the nomination for president: It was a time not for a traditional liberal nominee, who would be at odds with the national mood, but for moderate who could preserve the best of the humane-reformist spirit.

But if liberals underestimate the obstacles to progressive policies today, and give Jimmy Carter too little credit for decisions as difficult as the B1, they do have at least one solid ground for discontent. That is Carter's attitude toward the great complex of problems—poverty, employment, race—that afflict our central cities.

The feeling that Carter is unsympathetic to the plight of the cities must strike him and his staff as unfair. They have done a good deal to help, both administratively and through legislation. Hundreds of millions more are being spent on public works and public service jobs, and the welfare reform package would create many more jobs.

Nevertheless, there is a basis for the feeling of disappointment in the president. When criticized on the issue of urban poor, he reacted defensively, saying he had "no apologies to make." He has not articulated a larger awareness of the desperate urban condition. He has not conveyed a commitment remotely like the moral equivalent of war that he evoked on energy.

And the problems of race and poverty and physical decay in American cities are of alarming demensions. There are 9 million people below the poverty line in the central cities, more than a decade ago. They live in abject conditions, with a vicious circle of bad schools and broken families assuring future misery. They are breaking the finances of many cities beside New York.

It will be said that the problems are hard to define and the solutions uncertain, and that is true. It will be said that Jimmy Carter ran as a fiscal conservative and meant it, and that is true. It will be said that he inclines not toward moral visions but toward concrete problems where an engineer's scale can be applied, and that is true.

But the energy program is an appeal to national spirit, not engineering. The human rights policy, which I think may prove to be Jimmy Carter's greatest innovation, does not depend on precise calculations or immediately measurable results. Carter understands the use of the presidency to raise a standard, a vision.

The time has come to educate the American people on how we—all of us, in suburbs as well as cities, West as well as East—are affected by urban poverty and chaos. It is time for the only figure in our system who can do so to explain that blackouts and looting and abandoned streets in New York should make the citizens of other places worry, not sneer.

The president cannot have any easy answers, but he can state fundamental principles. A divided America cannot be healthy. If there are miserable people and places in our country, they endanger the rest. The interest of those who benefit from a society is not to keep the miserable down but to make them identify with the system, too. For people excluded from the benefit of a civilization are unlikely to feel much stake in it.

The moment that comes to mind is the evening of June 11, 1963, when President Kennedy spoke to the nation about racial discrimination in the South. Aroused by cruelty, he abandoned his caution and spoke from the heart—indeed, without a text at times. He asked every American to "examine his conscience." They were only words. Deeds required more time, and his death, to accomplish. But the words—and commitment—did matter.

CARTER . . . holding back reaction

Street Rowdies of Punk Rock Acting Up in Britain

By GEORGE BROCK
London Observer

It is Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in London's smart Chelsea district. At the traffic lights, solid blue-uniformed British policemen stand in a bizarre peace line, separating two war bands and watched by shutter-clicking tourists and scribbling newspaper reporters.

On one side of the bobbies stand men with slicked-back hair wearing parodies of Edwardian jackets with narrow velvet collars, bootlace ties, drainpipe trousers, fluorescent socks and suede shoes with bulky crepe soles. The "Teds," born of the 1950s rock 'n' roll, are back in town.

On the opposite sidewalk stands an even stranger tribe: youngsters in slashed PVC trousers, torn jackets held together by safety-pins, crew cut hair bright yellow, pink and green food dye, toilet chain necklaces and razor-blade earrings. The new notorious "Punks" have arrived, and ritual violence is back on the British scene. There have been stabbings and running battles and grim warnings have been issued about the holiday weekend at the end of August. In the 1960s it was a traditional date for the seaside clashes between rival "Mods" and "Rockers," groups of working-class youngsters who also declared their affiliations with dress styles.

Britain's most notorious Punk Rock group, the Sex Pistols; has been attacked after concerts and the lead singer, Johnny Rotten, slashed. On a recent tour of Sweden they were trailed by "raggare" or custom car kids who attacked Swedish Punk fans.

Punk mixes several instincts at one: alienation from the glossy, sophisticated rock scene; nihilistic violence towards almost anything, particularly anything established; hatred of the vacant boredom of the dole queue.

'Sounds Tougher'

The labels given it over the past 18 months reflect the strands. It's been called "Westway Sound," after one of London's grimier and noisier city motorways; "Dole Queue Rock," "Nasty Kid Rock;" and finally the deodorised version beloved of the record companies: "New Wave Rock."

"I hate those two words, "New Wave,' " says Joe Strummer, singer with The Clash. "I much prefer to call it Punk Rock. It sounds tougher. Don't know why they use the other words. 'Spose they think it sounds artistic."

Art is just what Punk is not about. Acid Rock, Glam Rock and Pomp Rock has risen on a cloud of expensive narcotics and etherial ideas which mean nothing to an unemployed kid of 15 living in a high rise concrete tower in Birmingham. Rock is seen by Punk as big-ticket, theatrical entertainment produced with costly hardware for elaborate effects. Malcolm McLaren, manager of the Sex Pistols, labels the Rolling Stones as "cabaret," a term of the most critical abuse in Punk vocabulary.

"At least the kids can come to see us play and know they're not being ripped off," said Alan, who plays in a Punk band in the North West on the strength of knowing two chords. "It won't cost them $4 a ticket to see some fat star that can't wait to get back to his house in the Bahamas."

One group has disarmingly issued a single entitled "One Chord Wonders." Andy Czezowski, who ran a Punk mecca called the Roxy, said: "People did literally ring up the club and say: 'I've got this new Punk band and we want to play — we've never played before, but we've been rehearsing for a night and we feel we ought to play.'. I used to book them."

"Fanzines" (Fan magazines) are put together on the same amateur status, their names sounding like a Thesarus of words most likely to make grandma feel ill: Sniffin Glue, Skum, Septic Ears, Ghast Up, Ripped and Torn.

'Energy' Outlet

Bands with which the kids could once more identify were an energy outlet as well. Czezowski again: "It became gradually accepted, what you could do down there, and it got around that this is the wild club, and it was. I'm sure it was, because I used to let everyone get away with hell . . . They stood on the seats and jumped on the glasses and there was graffiti everywhere and in that sense it was wild because you'd not be able to do that anywhere else." Two hundred seats at London's Rainbow Theatre were smashed at one concert.

The violence is explained as a change from the bleak realities of life searching for pointless jobs.

No one could be bored with their music, which might not be polished but makes up for what it lacks in elegance with brutal speed and savage lyrics.

Punk Rock makes The Who's "My Generation" or Elton John's "Saturday Night's All Right for Fighting" sound like Mantovani. Musically they are the heirs of a tradition started by Lou Reed, the New York Dolls and the Ramones.

When they're not being violent, they're busy being deliberately and symbolically repulsive. But the manager of the Electric Circus in Manchester reckons there is worse trouble in working men's clubs than at Punk concerts. "You may get a couple who pour cans of spaghetti over each other but that's harmless."

Dedicated Punks pierce their cheeks and ears with safety pins. The bizarre signals and symbols make Punk something when the world makes them feel like nothing.

The more articulate groups recognise and design their music as a catalyst for aggression under the surface directed at a vaguely identified enemy. As Mick Jones says: "Most of them kids, they have a good time. They don't feel good unless they go home via the hospital. If it wasn't like this, I'd just want to be oblivious an' all."

It is by no stretch a prescription for revolution since even the most political bands have no solution on offer. The yell is for fatalistic destruction.

Curses for TV

Punk took the national stage last year when they triggered several days of national hysteria during a 90-second television interview. "Go on, you've got another five seconds. Say something outrageous," said the interviewer. "You dirty bastard," said a Sex Pistol. "Go on, again." "You dirty fucker."

It was this edifying dialogue which caused a stoppage in the record factory producing the Sex Pistols' discs, which produced headlines like "Puke Rock" and "The Filth and the Fury", and led pontifical analysts to predict the imminent downfall of society. Magistrates dealing with the Chelsea affrays have had some similarly apocalyptic warnings to deliver.

Punk's defenders say that this reaction precisely echoes the horror which vibrates in the media whenever anything cultural tries to outrage a little further than the last outrage. Encounter Magazine once published a serious treatise against Elvis Presley as a social menace and an American psychiatrist once pronounced that rock 'n' roll was a "communicable disease". It's all happened before.

Commercial packaging is already having a tranquillizing effect of course. The Sex Pistols, the Damned, The Clash and The Stranglers have all signed lucrative contracts for tours and records. The Sex Pistols' contract with CBS stipulated that if any member of the group entered the CBS building, the agreement would be automatically null and void.

Andrew Lauder, The United Artists executive who signed the Stranglers: "Punk grew suddenly because of the newspapers. Suddenly it all came together. But it won't be cool for long because the chic will latch on to it. It will become Punk-chic and the kids won't want to know."

But there are now four times as many kids between 15 and 20 on the dole than there were in 1967. Even if the music dies away, the pool of frustration which gave it birth and its raw edge looks like being around for some time yet.

Politics of the People

I would say, without any chance of being contradicted, that the people out in the country think we're a bunch of idiots at best.

The Sun

You've got to admit, more often than not British Columbia politicians sound like boisterous nincompoops.

The British parliamentary system is supposed to be an arena for ladies and gentlemen. One debates one's opponent with a certain decorum at Westminster, even in Ottawa.

Not in B.C.

Slapstick, you've got it. Debates over whether members should take off their jackets, whether the legislative pages should. A minister of agriculture distributes free grape juice. Another minister falls asleep, unwakened by his cabinet colleague's cries of, "Phooey on you!" Parliaments are great places for insults, but they're supposed to have a bit of wit. Not in B.C. Members are simply political hacks, cowards, dictators, liars, gutless, and so on. No class.

The standard debating technique is hyperbole. "You've killed democracy," the speaker is told when he delivers an adverse opinion. One bill is "midnight fascist legislation." A routine amendment to the Statistics Act is "a very serious encroachment on human rights."

Everything is partisan. Every committee. In most jurisdictions the public accounts committee members forget their party labels and try to judge things impartially. Not in B.C. Just more of the same political game.

A person puzzled by these carryings on might wonder why. The answer, on one level, is simple. Just look at who gets elected:

Car salesmen, radio announcers, real estate salesmen, small-town businessmen. The salt of the earth, which has not lost its savor.

Parliaments are not supposed to be composed of these type of people. They're supposed to be filled with the genteel elite.

That's the way it works in Great Britain. Few of the Labor party have ever worn cloth caps. They're Oxbridge graduates, just like on the Tory side. With great elan they sprawl on benches facing each other and hurl the witty insults. It works because they know how. They have been trained in the university debating unions.

The struggle is at the level of ideas, of political philosophies. And, most important, they don't really mean what they say. Parliament is theatre, earnest yes, but not all out war. Collectively they are all, after all, the "best" of Britain.

Once the B.C. legislature housed the province's elites, Liberal and Conservative. It was a fairly rough frontier group, but an elite nonetheless. It was, as might be expected, urban-based in Vancouver and Victoria, with an academic or two. Challenged by an upstart group of Cooperative Commonwealth Federation socialists, they banded together in coalition to rule for an extra decade.

But then, in 1952, some 25 years ago this month, an extraordinary thing happened. By an electoral fluke, a non-elite band was chosen. And it had for a leader an extraordinary politician, W. A. C. Bennett, who had left the Conservative party because he couldn't get along with the people who ran it.

Politics more so here than in any other province in the country, became — and stayed — populist. The professionals and well-educated were frozen out. W. A. C. Bennett had to scratch to find a lawyer to become attorney-general.

W. A. C. BENNETT
. . . leader of non-elite

The socialist opposition foundered for 20 years. A sophisticated city lawyer, Tom Berger, tried leading but got nowhere.

Finally the socialists picked a flamboyant social worker, David Barrett, who, though university educated (but in American schools), because of his background (East End, Jewish, non-University of B.C.) was an outsider. His style was to wallow in populism. He won.

Neither Bennett nor Barrett, nor Bennett's son Bill, tried to found a party of the "brightest and the best." They worked to build mass parties. They seldom interfered with the selection of candidates, and hence the MLAs elected reflected — and still reflect — the average party member.

The parties reflect the average British Columbian — who does not have a university education (but whose children might), who never debated in high school, who has little idea of "proper" parliamentary behavior.

The results: two things.

First, unruly parliamentarians.

And second, probably the best, and certainly the most representative, Legislature in the country.

Despite all the nonsense, British Columbia is well governed.

For the job of politicians is not really to be witty or even wise, but to sense public opinion. Being of the people, B.C. politicians are close to them.

Hence, aided by some bright civil servants (they should be bright), one finds the most progressive labor legislation in Canada; well-established regional government (it's still shaky in Ontario); a progressive education system, which is not over-expensive; a good health system, also of low cost; a high level of social benefits; rent control when it was needed (during the past inflationary period), now coming off when it is not; homeowner grants and a soon-to-be-reformed property tax system; the country's largest and most efficient ferry fleet — the list could go on and on.

Of course, the politicians aren't to take credit for all the good things B.C. has. The province is endowed with great wealth and can afford so many of the good things that poorer provinces cannot — and still keep taxes low.

The conclusion I draw from this, as I wince while listening to the nincompoops in the legislature, is that populist parliamentary democracy works.

OPEN TUESDAY THRU SATURDAY

Ken MacDonald, a welder until Friday at Railwest, stands with wife Janet outside new home

A Sad Ending to Couple's Dream

SQUAMISH (CP) — Ken and Janet MacDonald nailed the house numbers on their new home Monday, but it wasn't as happy an occasion as it might have been.

As they finished, the Railwest manufacturing plant where Ken worked until Friday was officially closing its doors, leaving MacDonald with a new home and no job.

MacDonald said Railwest recruiters promised two years ago that his welding job at the then-new rail car factory would last at least five years. The MacDonalds bought property, but waited to build.

Last fall, there were hints that another large order of rail cars was on the way so the MacDonalds started building a large house in the highlands with a view of about every mountain within 20 miles.

"It was half finished when they said the plant was closing, and we had to go ahead," said Ken.

The MacDonalds have not given up on the idea of keeping their house.

Janet commutes the 40 miles along Howe Sound to work in Vancouver. She is not looking forward to the wintry roads and slides on the Squamish Highway. Ken's only hope for a job now is in Richmond, south of Vancouver and about 90 minutes cimmuting time each way.

The couple said their anger at the Railwest closure is directed in about equal portions at the federal and provincial governments, and senior B.C. Railway management. They have made a number of calls to their MLA Alan Williams, said Janet, but he has not returned any call.

There are three newly-built schools and plans for a Squamish community centre, she said, but For Sale signs are on every house in the newer sections of Squamish.

Earlier Monday at the B.C. Rail subsidiary John Bondar, 53, applied the white-on-green stenciled number 2899 to a new ballast car just rolling out of the plant. The number was the code for the last of 1,400 rail cars to be produced for B.C. Rail.

"At my age they look at you twice before they hire you," said Bondar.

The Railwest plant had a peak work force of 260, but averaged about 200, said plant manager Jim Lyon, adding that there is still hope that another industry can be located in the empty, two-year-old $8 million plant.

Two or three companies are looking over the plant, with involvement of the B.C. Development Corporation, said Lyon.

Lie Detection Use Stirring Controversy

VANCOUVER (CP) — A growing number of British Columbia companies are testing employees with lie detectors despite controversy over their accuracy and threat to civil liberties.

While no province yet regulates them, a report to the B.C. Police Commission in 1976 said major firms use detectors and predicted rapid growth of the industry.

The Bank of Montreal and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce have fired Vancouver employees who failed polygraph tests after internal thefts. The Old Spaghetti Factory restaurant chain and Murchie's Tea and Coffee Ltd., both of Vancouver, searched for thieves among staff last year with psychological stress evaluators.

Some firms require new employees to agree to be tested on demand.

At present, anyone can buy a $2,500 detector machine and start his own business. A common fee is $125 for a three-hour test.

But a 1976 Ontario royal commission called the polygraph primitive, and questioned its accuracy and the ethics of some examiners. A United States army test found the stress evaluator 33-per-cent accurate.

John Weller, a Vancouver polygraph operator, says job applicants can be questioned with a lie detector faster than checking their background. When a business has internal thefts, he said, the polygraph quickly eliminates the innocent and maintains morale.

The stress evaluator measures involuntary changes in the subject's voice patterns caused by stress while he is under questioning. Certain stress patterns can be interpreted as lying.

The polygraph, the most common tester, measures people's emotional reactions to questions by charting their breathing, blood pressure and sweat on the fingers. Polygraphers say the results can be interpreted to determine lying.

Critics, including the Ontario commission, have questioned some interpretations. They say a polygrapher's pretest interview of a subject might bias his questions when the machine is turned on, affecting the final judgment.

Weller said a University of B.C. study showed his tests to be 94-per-cent accurate under laboratory conditions. But a 1974 Michigan State University study found half of a group of truthful police suspects were called liars by 10 U.S. polygraphers.

Jack Holt, a Bank of Commerce inspector, said an employee suspected of thefts was fired after failing two polygraph tests.

The fired woman wrote in the United Bank Workers newsletter that the bank forced her to be tested. She also questioned the polygrapher's technique, saying it might affect his final judgment.

A Surrey, B.C., woman who asked to remain anonymous, was fired from her retail clerk's job in 1976 after failing a stress evaluation test. The woman, 21, was tested regularly with other employees, all of whom were asked whether any fellow-workers were thieves.

"We were all presumed guilty until this silly machine proved us innocent," she said, adding that the staff was innocent and one woman was in tears. Nothing had been stolen from her store.

She "failed" a test question when her voice showed stress, which the examiner interpreted as a lie. She was fired after failing a different question in a second test, but passed the question she originally failed.

The Vancouver company refused comment on the firing.

Jim Dybikowski, B.C. Civil Liberties Union president, said lie detectors should be banned for their unreliability and intrusion into peoples' lives. He said workers are coerced into taking the tests because they fear dismissal if they refuse.

Two men charged with being unlawfully at large from the Jordan River Camp were remanded until Sept. 6 when they appeared in Victoria provincial court Monday.

Claude J. Myette and Edward B. Bridden allegedly went missing from the minimum security camp on Aug. 21.

They were apprehended on Saturday afternoon by city police in the 2800-block Fifth Street.

Myette, who is serving a six-month sentence for drug trafficking, is also awaiting trial on a charge of criminal negligence causing death involving an elderly woman in a crosswalk.

An 18-year-old will be a few days late for school next month. Judge Harold Alder sentenced him to 30 days in prison.

Paul Dunderdale, of 2950 Austin, had pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering and theft over $200 laid in connection with the April 23 theft of a $2,300 motor from a Colwood auto showroom.

The court was told that other persons were before the courts charged with possession of the stolen article which had been recovered.

Alder also placed Dunderdale on one year's probation and ordered him to make any restitution and complete 150 hours of community work.

A 17-year-old man heading to Williams Lake to start a job was given a suspended sentence and one year's probation after he had earlier pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering with intent.

Ricky Douglas Timms, of 1140 Pandora, was ordered not to consume any alcohol during his probation and to complete 150 hours of community work as well as securing a job.

The charge arose after Timms was found with tools on the roof of a supermarket July 31.

A man who stole a pair of pants, a vest and some other articles in order to be well dressed for job interviews ended up with $250 worth of fines after pleading guilty to two counts of theft under $200.

Marc Andre Laliberte, 25, of no fixed address, told the court that the day after the July 22 thefts he was given a job.

★ ★ ★

Motorcyclist Hans Nussbaumer, 34, of 3221 Heatherbelle, was fined $400, given six months' probation and ordered to take the impaired driver's course after he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving stemming from July 9 police check in North Vancouver.

Nussbaumer was also fined $200 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana laid after the same police check.

A 57-year-old man gave his recent rejection by a woman as part of an explanation as to why he was drunk and causing a disturbance on Aug. 15 off Harrison Street.

"You look like a man old enough to know better," Alder told Arthur Kenneth Fisher, of 323 Michigan.

Fisher was fined $50 after he pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance.

In 1949 he and presidents of the other West German states met near Coblenz to draft the constitution for the Federal Republic of Germany.

Martian Was Wrong

CARACAS (AP) — Despite a prediction popularly attributed to a Martian visitor, Caracas was not destroyed by a tidal wave Sunday. However, many residents of the Venezuelan capital had to wait to find out that it was still there. They were the ones who left town temporarily—just in case—and there were quite a few of them. The rumor of destruction by water had spread for three months in this city, despite its location 10 miles from the Caribbean Sea behind a range of 6,000-foot mountains.

Chemical War Ban Closer

GENEVA (Reuter) — The United States and the Soviet Union today reported progress in private negotiations on banning chemical weapons and underground nuclear tests, but gave no hint when they expect to reach agreement.

However, U.S. delegate Adrian Fisher told the closing meeting of this year's session of the Geneva disarmament conference that if there is a breakthrough on either issue, the 30-nation gathering might be reconvened ahead of time to consider draft accords.

The conference, bringing together Western, Communist and neutral states, has been stalled on both problems for years. The U.S.-Soviet private talks are taking place outside the conference, but the two superpowers are pledged to submit the results to all members for general approval.

Fisher told delegates today he and his Soviet counterpart, Viktor Likhachev, have just completed the fifth of a series of talks, begun a year ago to try and work out a joint proposal for prohibiting the most-dangerous chemical weapons.

Fisher said: "this is a complex issue and several important questions still remain to be resolved. But I am pleased to be able to report that the positions of the two sides coincide on a number of key issues and on some others we are not far apart."

Likhachev told the conference the talks covered the scope of the proposed ban, and procedures for putting it into effect and ensuring it was being carried out.

WASHINGTON — After years of covetous glances and wary suggestion, China appears to have taken a major step toward purchasing oil-drilling equipment.

Ten Chinese petroleum equipment specialists arrived in the U.S. June 15 and toured 47 drilling equipment firms in the West and Southwest. The experts are the first from the People's Republic of China to look seriously at the state of the art in the U.S. oil industry.

"The fact that (the delegation) has come is a strong indication that they're ready to buy," said William Clarke of the Commerce Department's Bureau of East-West Trade.

"U.S. oil technology is superior: we are the standard for the world," said Eric Kalkhurst of the National Council for U.S.-China Trade, sponsors of the delegation's visit.

Some oil technology can be purchased only here. Certain U.S.-made parts and support equipment already are in use in China, but U.S. companies have failed in the past to sell large drilling equipment.

The delegation, representing China's Petroleum and Natural Gas Exploration and Development and the National Machinery Import and Export corporations showed strongest interest in offshore drilling and seismic exploration equipment.

They visited companies in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, California, Washington and Alaska in response to a standing invitation extended by the U.S.-China Trade Council and its member oil equipment firms.

The specialists left July 24 for a two-week tour of similar facilities in Japan.

"It was obvious that the delegation had done a great amount of research on the available equipment in the United States and the companies concerned with this equipment," said Kalkhurst.

"The Chinese want to technically evaluate a piece of equipment before they purchase it to ensure quality and applicability to their situation.

The Washington-based National Council for U.S.-China Trade, a non-profit organization with more than 400 corporate members, plans to send a delegation of U.S. equipment manufacturers to China in the fall to continue educating the Chinese in U.S. oil technology.

100,000 Welcome Tito to Peking

PEKING (Reuter) — President Tito of Yugoslavia arrived today on his first visit to China and received a welcome from 100,000 chanting people.

Peking laid on its biggest reception for years, easily upstaging the ceremonies that greeted the 85-year-old statesman in Moscow earlier this month.

He was met at the airport by Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, the successor to Mao Tse-tung, and four other politburo members, before travelling into the flag-decked capital.

Down the Avenue of Eternal Tranquillity, his limousine was engulfed in a sea of waving people.

Thousands of balloons soared into the skies over the Forbidden City and the Square of Heavenly Peace was converted into a vast stage for brightly-dressed dancers.

Tito in the 1960s was depicted by Peking as a traitor to communism and a revisionist. Today he was described in The People's Daily newsaper as an outstanding, long-tested leader who holds the respect of the world.

The visit caps a steady improvement in relations between the two countries in the last seven years and underlines China's admiration for Yugoslavia's independence from Moscow.

UC Nod for Income Guarantee

CALGARY (CP) — A report recommending a guaranteed annual income program for Canada received strong support from the United Church of Canada's general council Monday night.

In a near unanimous vote, more than 430 commissioners (delegates) added weight to an earlier recommendation by the Anglican Church of Canada dealing with the same topic.

The report, prepared by the church's division of mission in Canada, urged council to express concern to federal and provincial governments that no positive program for introducing a guaranteed annual income has been formulated despite several years of discussion.

The earlier Anglican report estimated such a program would cost at least $1.5 billion a year.

The United Church report noted improvements in family allowances and the Canada Pension Plan, achieved in the 1973-76 period; but said government income policies must "guarantee that every Canadian can live above the poverty level."

"Income security levels must include a consolidation of existing social security programs with delivery of income support in a simple and direct manner, related only to income measurement: and free from administrative intervention into the personal lives of recipients," it was stated in the report.

The report also suggested that the church support adequate rent regulation formulas which recognize income, housing distribution and cost. It said government long-range policies should give priority to non-profit social housing and immediate rehabilitation to structurally sound housing units.

Costs of building loans and mortgages, taxes of building materials and "unduly restrictive zoning bylaws and building codes" have increased housing costs beyond the affordable level, it said, with the taxation burden falling most heavily on the poor and with property taxes forcing many pensioners to give up their homes prematurely.

In another area, Rev. A. C. Forrest, editor-publisher of the church's monthly Observer publication, said churches must speak out on pornography.

"It is difficult for us in our church with our convictions on liberty and freedom and dislike of censorship to deal with new things in society," he said. But powerful interests with able lawyers have been able to turn Toronto's Yonge Street into a sleazy row of sex-shops where women are exploited.

Forrest suggested "somewhat seriously" that the church council provide members with a three-month subscription to "Penthouse or some other sex magazine" so they would know how bad things are in society.

Earlier, the council decided to consider lotteries as a form of gambling that should be eliminated, and suggested that all United Church groups reject grants associated with lotteries.

Council also urged the federal government to ban all alcohol and tobacco advertising and said the provinces should force distillers, brewers and vintners to make their advertising accounts available to the public and provinces should reveal their income from alcohol and tobacco sales.

Council also affirmed its support for Project North, an intercburch agency that supports a moratorium on major resource development projects in the north until native land claims are settled.

Council referred for further study a resolution which asked that the church urge Ottawa to "initiate a reduction of paid advertising."

The resolution, sponsored by the Saskatchewan conference, said the federal government should reduce the amount of advertising in all media "with a view to replacing it as the chief source of revenue for the media."

But the resolution did not suggest any means by which the media could be compensated for the loss of revenues generated by advertisements.

The 27th general council, which began meeting here on Aug. 20, ends today. The next council is expected to be held in 1979 with a site to be determined later.

No-Deposit Bottles Now Ruled Illegal

WASHINGTON (WP) — A circuit court judge Monday allowed Fairfax County, Va., to begin enforcing an ordinace Thursday requiring stores to pay at least a nickel refund on all used non-alcoholic beverage cans and bottles and stop selling pop-top cans.

The ordinace upheld by Judge James Keith is intended to cut down on the costly clean-up of bottles and cans that motorists and others often discard along highways and in parks.

The Fairfax law states that throw-away cans and bottles for all carbonated: non-alcoholic beverages sold in the county must be marked with a sticker saying "Washington Metropolitan Area, five cents deposit."

The idea behind the law is that since the used containers will be worth a nickel, consumers will return the marked containers and regular returnable bottles to the stores to collect the refunds.

The retailers must then pay consumers at least five cents for the bottles or cans when they are returned.

The ordinace does not affect any other Northern Virginia jurisdiction, including Fairfax City which is surrounded geographically by the county.

Several grocery chain-store spokesmen and county officials said they are uncertain about what will happen Thursday and how well the ordinace will be enforced.

ROHANI BLDG. DESIGN FIRM

The controversial Rohani building on Fort Street will go up as planned, without any design changes.

A last-minute attempt by city aldermen today to persuade the architects to make design changes was "just about a complete waste of time," said Ald. John Hayes, the strongest critic.

Following an in-camera meeting of the land-use planning and zoning committee, Hayes told reporters that architect Bob Siddall made it "perfectly clear" he is not prepared to change anything on the building.

Hayes said Siddall gave aldermen an enthusiastic explanation of how "beautiful" the building is going to be, despite concerns expressed by council members and the city's advisory design panel.

"It's fair to say everyone is pretty unhappy that the guy is so inflexible," Hayes said. "Unfortunately we are going to be suffering the consequences for about 60 years."

Although the design panel expressed disapproval of the plans as inappropriate to the Fort Street setting, neither the panel nor the city has any power to enforce its views.

Construction has already started on the 11-storey office building at 747 Fort. Developer is Asiz Rohani, an Iranian contractor.

Poor Guidance Hurts Students Says Cullen

Greater Victoria school trustees have been told the major reason university degree holders are driving cabs or have no jobs at all is inadequate vocational guidance in school systems.

The claim is made by federal Manpower Minister Bud Cullen in a speech, copies of which have been mailed out to the trustees by regional Canada Manpower manager Stan Purdy.

Purday, in a covering letter to the trustees, said the speech might help local school districts come to grips with the problem of inadequate guidance programs.

Hopefully, the local school districts would also devise some solutions, he said.

The Cullen speech, made to the Canadian Guidance and Counselling Association, says a Manitoba survey of 3,000 teachers, parents and high school students showed that teachers put too low a priority on vocational guidance.

In the survey, students and parents ranked guidance as the second most important function of education while teachers ranked it in 15th place.

Students ranked abilities and skills needed for employment as third on their list of the school's most important goals while the teachers relegate it to 38th position.

"These figures would seem to support earlier studies that indicated that some 40 per cent of high school students feel they are inadequately prepared to make a vocational choice," Cullen said.

"I can understand some differences in expectations of education, but when they are that different, and when we know that many, many students need more appropriate preparation for the world of work, some charges are in order," Cullen said.

"I can understand some differences in expectations of education, many students need more appropriate preparation for the world of work, some changes are in order," Cullen said.

He said he found it "frankly disturbing" that in many schools teachers are required to double as counsellors because there is no money to hire professionally-trained counsellors.

"When one feels as I do that proper guidance is at the very basis of the choice of a proper career, one does not have to search very long for answers to why a PhD should be driving a taxi or why a sociology graduate should be typing letters.

"With inappropriate guidance in the past, too much emphasis has been put on the importance of a university degree. Not that we are producing too many over-educated youth, but we are producing too many who are educated in the wrong areas."

Economy Weak, Production Down

At the same time the 10 per cent devaluation of Canada's dollar — to a current value of around 93 cents U.S. — made imported goods more expensive and pushed up inflation. Consumers, reacting to protect their savings and incomes, reduced their spending on goods and services and so deprived the economy of one of its main stimuli for growth.

In current dollar terms, GNP grew at a four-per-cent annual rate to a value of $202.6 billion between April and June.

But inflation accounted for that rise, and after discounting for price rises GNP declined at a 2.4-per-cent rate.

Wage and salary incomes grew at an eight-per-cent annual rate during the second quarter — "little more than half the average quarterly increase last year" — because of higher unemployment and lower average earnings.

Consumers trying to rebuild their wealth increased their personal savings rate and the growth in consumer credit slowed. This cautious attitude was reflected in the 5.6-per-cent annual growth rate for spending on goods and services — usually the main stimulant for economic growth.

The only category of personal spending that rose was services. The largest drop was in buying of durable goods, notably cars. But outlays for non-durables, like food, also were lower after discounting for inflation.

Business investment in machinery and equipment and in residential building fell. Real private investment in new production operations is three per cent below levels a year ago.

Pre-tax profits for business fell at a 15.2-per-cent annual rate in the second quarter, after a sharp 69.6-per-cent increase in the first three months of the year.

Particularly hard hit in the latest period were companies with strong export earnings early in the year.

As a result of the figures several Canadian economists say the federal government should cut taxes and provide incentives to halt Canada's slide into recession.

Dian Cohen said in a interview from Montreal that the government "should give the damn money back to the people who make it and let them decide how to spend it instead of actively taking money out of the economy."

She said government should get out of its inflation control program.

"It will give businesss confidence that they will be able to keep some of the money they earn."

Doug Peters, vice-president and chief economist at Toronto Dominion Bank said: "We need tax cuts and investment incentives to get business in the private sector moving at top speed again."

Montreal economist Carl Beigie said that "any tax cut will help but tax incentives alone will not do the job."

He suggested a package of tax reductions including sales tax, manufacturing tax and all other taxes that affect retail prices.

Forrest Rogers, economic adviser at the Bank of Nova Scotia, said the problem is too complex to solve by stimulating the economy with tax cuts and investment incentives.

"But a modest stimulus may be appropriate," he said.

Meanwhile, the U.S. government's barometer of future economic activity fell 0.2 per cent for the third consecutive month in July, the Commerce Department said today. That could signal a drab job and production outlook for the remainder of 1977.

The three straight declines in the Index of Leading Indicators was the longest since the depths of the 1974-75 recession.

A man facing trial in county court in September had his own trials finding his way to court last week on the day for scheduling 27 cases.

When he didn't show at the Law Courts building at Blanshard and Burdett, a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

But he turned up in court about half-an-hour later.

His lawyer explained that he had gone first to provincial court on Fisgard Street and was directed to St. Ann's Academy where superior courts have been sitting for the last two years while renovations were made to the Law Courts.

All supreme and county court matters now are being held in the Law Courts building.

There's an ironic touch to the way in which Stanley Burke of the Nanaimo Times rented a room at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Friday.

The room was rented to hold a press conference demanding the release of the sick baby killer whale, Miracle, being nursed back to health in the hotel's swimming pool by Sealand of the Pacific.

It came as a shock to Sealand president Bob Wright to find the room had been booked in the name of Sealand. Burke, however, did pay the rental charge.

On the weekend, Nashville expressed an interest in the song and a tape has been sent there. Now Arthurs is busy writing a song for the back of the record.

His first record, The Picker, is about to be released in Nashville with The Gear Jammer on the reverse.

Able-bodied city bus passengers are now requested to move to the back of the bus — at least past the first three seats.

All B.C. Hydro transit buses are reserving three seats at the front for elderly and handicapped passengers.

Decals will be placed on the windows above the designated seats of the 1,100 buses in Greater Vancouver and Greater Victoria that are involved.

Hydro hopes the public will help make the transit system easier for senior citizens and the handicapped by not using the reserved seats unless absolutely necessary.

Employee Theft A Big Business

No Shoplifting Mold

What's a typical shoplifter?

Just about anyone, according to Victoria police chief Jack Gregory.

"There is "just no sort of profile," of a typical shoplifter, Gregory says. Offenders range from adolescents to old people and even the practically infirm. Quite often, the offender has sufficient money to pay for the goods.

Younger people will steal to keep up with current trends, such as dress, if they don't have the money.

"With older people, I'm convinced they steal because of an attitude — of big corporations charging too much, or they can't afford it, or a feeling of insecurity or loneliness. The reasons run the whole gamut of personality."

In 1973, there were 2,443 complaints of theft under $200, increasing to 3,151 last year.

In 1973, there were 290 complaints of theft over $200, increasing to 432 last year.

Gregory agrees there are compulsive stealers, and some of them come from good backgrounds.

"It's a proven fact, I think, that psychiatrists say some people just can't help themselves from stealing."

Gregory says modern merchandising styles are another element to be considered, with some people becoming so impatient waiting to be served that they just decide to leave — with the goods.

Not all shoplifters who get caught end up at provincial court. First offenders may get the opportunity to participate in an alternative to courtroom appearance, at the community diversion centre.

Police and court prosecutors are the main sources of referral, says Sister Jacqueline Aubuchon of the diversion centre.

The program consists of attending the centre three or four times, doing volunteer work, apologizing to the victim and making restitution for the theft.

About half those attending the program are adults and the other half are juveniles.

"Very few of these people in the last two years and nine months have been picked up again," she says.

In the past year, about 600 people have gone through the program, almost evenly divided between men and women.

Most people who shoplift have enough money in their pocket, she says. Often, for the first-offender adult, "they are busy, hectic, worried."

Only a few shoplift because they are poor, she says, and this appears more in NFS cheque offences.

Much shoplifting is "just plain temptation" and some of it is "sheer annoyance" at no service and people fed up waiting.

She believes shoplifting by the general public represents a minority of the theft losses at stores.

Most of the stealing — 75 per cent — is done by store employees, she says.

The same percentage of thefts by store employees was given four years ago by G. S. Cox, president of Cox Retail Audits Ltd. of Vancouver, which provides investigative security for some retail stores.

However, he declined to be interviewed recently on the telephone.

Stealing is big business in Canada's department stores and employees are responsible for a growing percentage of the thefts.

The T. Eaton department stores alone estimate the annual stock loss at about $20 million across the country, with employee theft responsible for one-third, employee negligence responsible for another third and the rest due to shoplifters.

Jim Gourlay, company loss prevention manager at Eaton's, says companies have never liked to talk about the problem of employee theft, but the increase in the loss — two per cent of the company's total sales — is forcing employers to take a closer look.

Gourlay, who was in Victoria last week for the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police convention, doesn't know what caused the increase.

"It appears to be just a cyclical thing," he says. The last time losses were as high was in the late 1960s.

Losses decreased in the early '70s, then started rising in 1973. The increase is reflected in local statistics. Victoria police chief Jack Gregory notes the number of shoplifting complaints in the city rose from 2,443 in 1973 to 3,151 last year.

Gregory feels shoplifting is getting worse.

Gourlay, however, isn't convinced.

He believes the pendulum has started to swing the other way because of initiatives within the industry to not only attack the shoplifting problem, but to attack in a more public way the menace posed by employee theft and neglect.

It's one thing to try to find out who the 180,000 persons were who shoplifted at Eaton's stores last year, and why. It's quite another to try to ascertain how many of the 40,000 employees are taking the company for a ride.

Gourlay says that, based on the 9,000 persons actually caught shoplifting last year, the shoplifter could be just about anyone except the very rich or very poor.

The employee thief represents a broad spectrum, too.

There is a common attitude that big companies can afford losses and wouldn't miss stolen items.

Gourlay says the biggest deterrent is getting caught. Recidivism is low.

"Most of the shoplifters are pretty average Joes," he says. "They get caught and all of a sudden they are faced with the thought, 'Son-of-a-gun, I'm a thief.' "

B.C. firms are testing their employees with lie detectors in the fight against increasing employee thefts. See Page 6.

Sister Jacqueline Aubuchon of the Victoria community diversion centre agrees. If it is a deliberate theft, she says, many adults feel really humiliated and say it's never going to happen again. It doesn't, either.

For juveniles it's a case generally of peer pressure. Sometimes they are acting out, she says.

The situation with employee theft is more complex, for unlike shoplifters who often steal by impulse, employee thieves tend to be more purposeful, Gourlay suggests.

"They work the systems. They discover a loophole or see an error go uncorrected and undetected and decide to take advantage of the system's shortcoming."

The results can be staggering.

A cashier in a large department store in Montreal found a way of pocketing money from the till and had taken $43,000 over a three-year-period before she was caught.

A truck driver in Toronto used a phoney invoice scheme to bilk a department store of $150,000 worth of merchandise.

Gourlay says shoplifters are usually caught in the act. But less than half are charged.

"If we charged everyone who took a $2 or $5 item, the police would be so deluged and the courts so glutted we wouldn't be helping the situation."

Gathering evidence on employee theft is much tougher.

Take the example of the cashier. She was charged with theft under $200 because the store could only prove she stole $110, even though she admitted taking $43,000. The problem was the store was unable to reconstitute the paperwork — the sales slips and cash register records — to show the full extent of the crime. As a result the woman got off with a small fine.

Gourlay says recovery of goods taken by employees is very low. If it's a one-shot crime, chances are the store will never find out. If it's a repeated theft then the person has obviously found a way to beat the system and will continue until detected. By then the goods will probably have been fenced. Such was the case with the truck driver. The store got back only 10 per cent of the goods stolen — $15,000 worth.

Stores are tackling the problem, says Gourlay, by reviewing their systems of checks and balances. But nothing, he says, replaces the ultimate weapon — a well-informed and conscientious staff.

U.S. Dollar Premium Gets Close Scrutiny

A Sidney restaurant has removed its sign saying it pays no premium on the American dollar.

Victoria stores have posted signs saying they pay five per cent. Some are paying seven per cent.

It is part of a campaign of vigilance waged by chambers of commerce and the Visitors Information Centre to see that tourists get a fair break.

"We have urged visitors to complain to us if they do not get the premium on the American dollar," Visitors Information Centre manager Don Nixon said today.

"There are very few complaints. Most stores are offering at least five per cent. I don't know of any that are not offering at least that much.

"It was a different situation at the start of the summer. Some merchants said they wouldn't pay the premiumn because Canadians don't get the same treatment in the United States.

"We replied that there is no point in waging a campaign to welcome tourists if they are not going to get what they deserve for their dollar.

"Last summer the Canadian dollar was worth much more and some Victoria stores, as a friendly gesture, accepted U.S. money at par. But this summer they started off by saying: I accepted it at par last year so I' only going to offer par this year.

"But it doesn't work that way. Americans know what their dollar is worth and they are entitled to complain if they don't get it."

The most recent complaint came from Sidney where a restaurant refused to pay a premium on U.S. money.

Hank Vissers, president of Sidney Chamber of Commerce, said the restaurant has subsequently changed its policy and the sign has been removed.

"Some Sidney merchants tell me they don't want to be bothered with American money. This is very strange to me. I wonder why they are in business," Vissers said.

"There are one or two stores at Friday Harbor (in the San Juan Islands) that accept Canadian dollars at par as a gesture to tourists as long as the bill is no larger than $20: When the Americans are doing that, the least we can do is pay them the premium they are entitled to."

In Victoria some stores avoid the problem by paying U.S. change for U.S. money.

Tourists are urged to take large U.S. bills to the bank where they can be assured of getting the full exchange rate.

"We have worked very hard on this program and it seems to have been successful," Nixon said.

Alan Emery, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, has also had a committee keeping watch on the exchange rate. It was the Victoria chamber that first raised the issue of the Sidney restaurant.

Emery said Victoria merchants seem to have learned a valuable lesson from the disastrous summer of 1976.

"Everyone is conscious of the importance of the tourist industry to Victoria."

Pharmacy Holdup Nets $80

A man who said he had a gun escaped with about $80 from the Douglas Pharmacy, 1469 Douglas, Monday night.

Pharmacist Jack Wong told police the man first indicated he wanted to buy a jackknife and then asked for change, handing Wong a $1 bill.

When Wong opened the till, the man ordered: "Just leave the cash drawer open. I have a gun."

The man kept his left hand in his pocket and with his right reached over and scooped about $80 from the till. He stuffed the bills in his pocket and walked out the door.

Police nabbed a suspect three hours later but released him when witnesses were unable to identify him.

The robber is described as 5 feet, 8 inches tall, slim, with dark brown hair and complexion. He had a blue color under his eyes which could be either mascara or bruises. He wore a reddish-brown jacket.

The holdup was the second in Victoria in the past three days. Early Saturday, two employees of Pizza Pieman, 230 Menzies, were robbed of $718 as they went to a bank to make a night deposit of the day's receipts.

Showdown Over Planning Looms Tonight in Saanich

A confrontation is expected tonight between Ald. John Mika and Ald. Fred Severson over Mika's call for a plebiscite on Saanich's official community plan.

Severson will support a three-page statement prepared by municipal planner Gil Laurenson and other members of the planning department, to be presented at tonight's meeting of the lands, planning and housing committee.

As committee chairman, Severson says he is behind the department all the way.

"I'm backing the staff. Until now they haven't been heard from. Maybe I'll be chastised. Whether or not, I'll stand by it," he said.

In the report, the planners repudiate Mika's assertion that a plebiscite held in the November election would provide necessary citizen input.

"In terms of meaningful communication on a complex document such as the plan, a yes or no vote is not very effective," the report states.

During the four public meetings held on the plan, the planners asked the public specific questions and received answers that were "useful, intelligent and very often were integrated into the plan," the report states.

Mika's critique, done with the help of University of Victoria law student Brian Etheridge, states the plan is based on the Ward and Associates report.

Severson says this is not so.

Mika is advocating that council provide ratepayers' groups with financial assistance in order to foster grassroot communication between council and the community.

Severson says if this is done, all other groups should receive financial help.

"If Ald. Mika wants the corporation to match $1 for $1 for ratepayers' associations I will personally push for all sporting groups to be included," he said. "They do an awful lot of work for the municipality. They're pressure groups, too, and are rarely heard from."

Severson said Mika's claim that high density near the Victoria boundary could lead to amalgamation is wrong.

The report states the densities in that area have been scaled down 29 per cent from 70 to 50 persons per acre.

"Amalgamation would not serve the best interests of Saanich residents and the plan, therefore, has been designed to increase the independence and economic viability of the district," it states.

Severson agrees with the planners' charge that Mika's call to have the proposed regional shopping centres (at Broadmead and the Tillicum outdoor theatre) removed from the plan is unrealistic.

The report states the centres are potential ones only. "Very few areas of Saanich are suitable for this designation, based upon location, size, transportation and physical characteristics. Removing the sites from the map will not make them physically less suitable for commercial development, and would make the map less representative of reality," it adds.

Severson reiterated the planners' claim that development of the Royal Oak industrial park would have developers bearing the costs of on-site and off-site servicing.

He stressed the plan is flexible and can be changed.

"There's been a lot of talk about shutting the door but this plan is flexible. I don't think they (the critics) have done their homework," he said.

★ FREEZE PROTEST PLANNED

The Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce will send a delegation to the Sept. 6 meeting of Saanich council to protest a proposed 120-day freeze on development.

The Sept. 6 meeting is scheduled to ratify a recommendation made by the lands, planning and housing committee that a public hearing on the official community plan be delayed until January.

If ratified, the freeze will halt all rezoning in Saanich.

Chamber president Alan Emery told the Times last week delay in developing the proposed Royal Oak industrial park could be disastrous.

Pinball Ban Rejected

Saanich council voted 5-4 Monday night to reject a bylaw it had directed municipal solicitor Doug Patterson to prepare calling for a ban on pinball machines in the municipality.

Instead, Ald. Robert Cameron, chairman of the council's youth committee, will arrange a meeting with police, juvenile courts officials and social workers.

The meeting is to determine what legislation is needed to curtail amusement arcade business operations that use any kind of machine encouraging youngsters to steal in order to get money to play them.

Voting against singling out pinball machines only were Mayor Ed Lum and aldermen Joe Bourque, who led the move for more over-all legislation; Fred Severson, Sandy Noel and David Paterson.

Noel said teen-agers were "not going to hell" simply by playing pinball machines. He said he had made a poll of parents and received only one negative answer.

Noel said teen-agers who committed crimes to get money to play machines are "problem children whose parents have no control over them. They'll play pinball machines, smoke pot . . . whatever . . . they're going to get the money somehow."

Ald. Ian Cass said he opposed rejection of the pinball ban because it had been requested by the police, courts and social workers.

Paterson replied that requests from the police and courts appeared more concerned with amusement arcades and their operators.

Lum, as a member of the police commission, said he agreed the pinball ban was not enough, and that police are concerned about control of arcades.

In other business, council voted unanimously on rezoning for a duplex at 700 Daisy Avenue but not before Ald. John Mika fired a verbal volley at Severson.

He criticized Severson for making public statements that the 120-day freeze on the community plan public hearing approved by the lands, planning and housing committee at Mika's suggestion would mean no rezoning activity for that period.

"I point out that we are in the process of rezoning for a duplex and that (this evening) we have already rezoned for two commercial buildings, three homes on another application, as well as another for two houses," he said.

Severson returned the shot by reminding Mika that the freeze was not in effect until council ratified it at its Sept. 6 meeting.

The rezoning approvals referred to by Mika are for:

—A one-storey and two-storey office, service rental and retail space complex to be built at 4011 Quadra;

—Three 8,400-square foot residential lots on Bow Road at Quiver Place;

—Two single-family homes on the west end of Thornhill Crescent.

Outfall Design Worries Builder

The contractor building a $2.5 million sewer outfall off Clover Point is so worried about whether the design is adequate he's willing to pay for an independent engineering review himself.

Murray Glazier, chairman of the regional board's public works committee, said today he believes it's essential that questions raised by Harry Berg of H and B Contracting be answered promptly by the board's consultants.

Berg told Glazier that he considers the concrete weights designed to hold the giant pipe secure on the ocean floor as inadequate.

He is also worried that a section of pipe broke at a weld recently, supposedly the strongest part of the pipe. Joining of the pipe has been discontinued while that problem is studied.

Berg also told Glazier that there are problems getting and maintaining a good fit with gaskets between pipe and concrete weights.

Prime consultant on the job is Ker, Priestman and Associates Ltd., but engineering on the outfall is being done by Associated Engineering Services Ltd.

Glazier said he has asked for a full response from the consultants for a committee meeting Sept. 7.

MIRACLE DUE FOR PHYSICAL

Miracle's condition remains "strong" today as she cavorts in her salt water pool at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

There's been no indication of a return of last week's internal bleeding, and she's not needed antibiotics since the infection was brought under control.

The baby killer whale, under Sealand's care for almost three weeks since being brought down from Campbell River suffering gunshot wounds and infection, is due for a complete physical Wednesday.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

CDC

Canada Development Corp. (CDC) has reported that its net earnings increased seven per cent in the first half of 1977 to $17.2 million or 28 cents a share compared with $16.1 million or 24 cents a share in the corresponding period last year.

Revenue was $351.9 million, an increase of 26 per cent over the first half of 1976.

The CDC said significant gains in the second quarter contributed to the six-month improvement over last year. Second-quarter net earnings rose by 22 per cent to $8.8 million, on a 30-per-cent jump in revenue to $179 million.

Polysar Ltd. and CDC Oil and Gas Ltd. turned in strong performances during the second quarter but softness in base metal prices resulted in a lower contribution from Texasgulf Inc.

The results of CDC's venture capital group were stable, while the health care group contribution improved in both the quarter and for the six months.

The corporation's assets were $1,799 million at June 30, up $82 million during the latest quarter. Most of the increase reflected continuing capital investments in major projects, especially petrochemicals.

Carling O'Keefe

S. R. McInnes, president of Carling O'Keefe Breweries of Canada Ltd., Toronto, reports the company will sell its production facilities in Waterloo, Ont., to a wholly-owned subsidiary of Labatt Breweries of Canada Ltd., London Ont. He said the sale will become effective Sept. 30 for an undisclosed amount of cash and other considerations.

McInnes said in a statement Labatt's primary reason for the purchase is to expand production capacity to meet increasing sales in the U.S.

Canadian Cable

Canadian Cablesystems Metro Ltd., Toronto, has increased its offer for common shares of Premier Cablevision Ltd. Vancouver, to $12 a share from $10.50 a share.

The offer, which expires Sept. 2, is unchanged in all other respects.

Earlier this week, Canadian Cablesystems said 112,000 Premier shares had ben officially tendered under the offer of $10.50 a share and that it understood another 140,000 shares were to be tendered.

Premier's directors oppose the offer of $10.50 a share.

Thomson Looks For Expansion

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth R. Thomson, president of Thomson Newspapers Ltd. of Toronto, says the company is in a strong position to finance almost any North American purchase, including newspaper chains.

"I would like to see at least four acquisitions a year," he said in an interview.

Thomson, chairman of the Thomson Organization Ltd. of Britain, said a cash surplus from North Sea oil investments may play a role in plans to expand the company's operations in North America and Britain.

The oil investment now is turning a substantial profit, one that will leave a large amount of cash on hand for 1980, he said.

Thomson, son of the late Roy Thomson, first Lord Thomson of Fleet, said that, while he plans to invest part of the oil investment surplus back into the British economy, he is looking for new ventures in the U.S. not related to the newspaper business. Although not quite sure where he will be investing, he does not rule of the possibility of resources.

The Thomson Organization own newspapers, an airline, hotel, broadcasting and oil interests. The newspaper company operates 35 daily newspapers in Canada and 63 in the U.S. There are 111 daily and weekly Thomson newspapers in North America.

Since 1970, about 69 per cent of the newspaper comptny's acquisitions have been in the U.S. It is there that most of the purchasing remains to be done.

In Canada, Thomson Newspapers has 10 per cent of the industry's total circulation of five million, but in the U.S., its share of the total is about 1.6 per cent of 61.2 million.

Thomson, 54, an avid art collector, has constructed a private gallery in a room adjoining his luxurious office overlooking Toronto's city hall to hold the work of Cornelius Kreighoff, his favorite Canadian artist.

More then 100 original Kreighoff paintings adorn the walls that surround several display cases full of stat-tuettes, fine ivory carvings and antiques which he has collected since he was 18.

The paintings have been placed there for inspiration and to show visitors what Canada is like. Thomson said.

He added that his father did not understand the philosophy needed to be a good art collector. He never had the gut feelings for recognizing artistic quality, Thomson said, and paying for it "even if it is a little more than the market price."

Since the death of his father in August, 1976, Thomson has been leading somewhat of a double life. In Canada he is Ken Thomson, businessman. But when in Britain he is Lord Thomson of Fleet.

Because he is not in the mainstream of British life and is unwilling to surrender his Canadian citizenship, he does not take his seat in the House of Lords. Even so, he has the privileges and responsibilities of a peer, which have taken him some time to get used to, he said.

He said he had no interest in maintaining the title, but it was one thing his father, whom he deeply misses, made him promise to do.

Linerboard Mill Closes In Labrador

STEPHENVILLE, Nfld. (CP) — The Labrador Linerboard Ltd. mill closed today after losing money for four years.

The closure of the Newfoundland government-owned operation resulted in about 500 workers losing their jobs.

An additional 125 workers are being kept on to maintain the mill, but this caretaker staff will eventually be reduced to 50.

The mill, started by financier John C. Doyle with financial help from the former Liberal governmtnt of Joseph Smallwood, was taken over by the Progressive Conservative administration of Frank Moores in 1972.

Originally estimated at $53 million, construction costs ran to $155.4 million by the time the mill was ready for production in 1973.

After a year of production, it began losing money.

Mayotte Property Investments

310 Units of Undivided Beneficial Ownership
Price: $10,000 per Unit

Mayotte is a tax-deferral investment in multiple residential rental housing units (MURB's) which are to be built in Ontario and managed by Mayotte Limited, under contract to Magent Properties Limited (as Trustee for the Unitholders).

These Units may be paid for in full at the time of purchase or, on an installment basis as follows: (for each Unit)

$5,000. with the order, and an interest bearing promissory note with payments scheduled as,
$2,000. payable December 15, 1978,
$1,500. payable December 15, 1979,
$1,500. payable December 15, 1980.

The tax advantages derive from capital cost allowances and first time costs which are available to reduce other taxable income under various sections of The Income Tax Act. The resulting tax savings should largely offset the installment payments, in the year in which each is made, under current legislation and for a tax payer whose marginal income tax rate is at least 50%.

No Decay Sugar Substitute

CHICAGO (AP) — The source of a sugar substitute that does not cause tooth decay can be derived from corn husks, wheat straw and peanut hulls, a U.S. agriculture department research chemist said today.

In an address to the American Chemical Society meeting, Dr. Larry Krull of the department's Northern Regional Research Centre in Peoria, Ill., said commercial success for a substance known as xylitol might make crop residues valuable enough to harvest.

Corn husks, straw and peanut hulls contain 15 to 30 per cent xylose sugar, the source of the sweet alcohol xylitol. Finnish scientists have reported xylitol does not cause tooth decay or require insulin in its metabolism, which would make it of value for diabetics and for control of cavities.

It is widely used in Finland in candy and gum and is the equal of cane and beet sugar in sweetness and energy value, Krull said.

"Agricultural residues comprise more than 50 per cent of the material grown annually by farmers," Krull said.

Banker Lance's Family Had Huge Overdrafts

Washington Post

CALHOUN, Ga. — When Bert Lance's wife and in-laws ran up overdrafts at Lance's bank totalling hundreds of thousands of dollars in the early 1970s, Lance himself was "managing" their financial affairs, a stockholder with access to the bank board said here Monday.

According to Lance's lawyer here — J. B. Langford, who serves on the board of the Calhoun First National Bank that Lance ran — the outside directors of the bank here knew nothing about the large overdrafts to Lance, his wife, LaBelle, and in-laws until a federal bank examiner informed the board of them.

According to a close associate of of one outside director of the bank, the directors were "shocked" when they learned that Lance and is in-laws had overdrawn their accounts by as much as $450,000.

Langford also confirmed that Lance was managing several in-laws financial affairs at the time they ran up large overdrafts at the Calhoun bank.

(In Washington, a spokesman for Lance conveyed a denial from the budget director that he "orchestrated" his in-laws' overdrafts. "They were acting on their own," the spokesman quoted Lance as saying. Lance did not comment on the allegation that the outside directors of the bank knew nothing about the overdrafts until a federal bank examiner pointed them out.)

Langford, who calles himself "Bert Lance's country lawyer," and who has served on the board of the Calhoun bank for 27 years, said Monday he would not discuss what authority Lance had from other directors of the bank to make loans when he was chairman.

(Langford, a Georgia state senator, managed Lance's 1974 unsuccessful campaign for governor. His daughter Judy is married to Jack Carter, President Carter's son.)

The question of authority might have legal significance, because federal banking law stipulates that no bank officer can issue notes or incur obligations for his bank without "authority from the directors of such bank."

If Lance granted large overdrafts to his family which exceeded his general authority to make loans, he might conceivably be accused of violating this law. Conviction is punishable by a fine of up to $5,000 or up to five years in prison. It is not known whether Lance did exceed his authority.

A stockholder in the Calhoun bank with access to the board of directors observed Monday, "Unfortunately, Lance's policies (as Calhoun bank chairman) have hurt his family." The source explained that when the federal bank examiners found the large overdrafts to Lance relatives, he instructed that they be repaid at once.

(The examiner also ordered the Calhoun bank to begin charging interest on overdrafts. Until then, the bank had made no charge to Lance or his relatives for their overdrafts which the bank had granted to directors, officers and some other individuals.)

Lance's in-laws had difficulty raising money to repay the overdrafts, the source said. Lance helped arrange formal bank loans for them from two other banks, the source continued.

Ford Refutes Pinto 'Firetrap'

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. has denied allegations its Ford Pinto is a firetrap in which 900 persons died in blazes that followed rear-end collisions.

Ford Monday answered criticism levelled nearly a month ago by the magazine Mother Jones, which had claimed the automaker "for seven years sold cars in which it knew hundreds of people would needlessly burn to death."

In an eight-page statement, Ford Vice-President Herbert L. Misch said real-world evidence "totally discredits the opinions of the alleged safety experts quoted by Mother Jones."

"These statistics establish that the Ford Pinto is involved in fewer fire-associated collisions than might be expected considering the total number of Pintos in operation," said Misch, vice-president in charge of the environmental and safety engineering staff.

Misch said the magazine's figures on the number of people who burned to death in flaming wrecks do not agree with official figures from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

In the article, author Mark Dowie claimed that "by conservative estimates, Pinto crashes have caused 500 burn deaths to people who would not have been seriously injured if the car had not burst into flames."

"The figure could be as high as 900," Dowie claimed. Figures compiled by the NHTSA showed that of 848 deaths in 1975 associated with passenger car accidents in which fires also occurred, 12 of the reported fatalities involved Pinto occupants, Misch said. In 1976, the number of persons killed in Pinto fires was 11 out of 942 car-fire fatalities in the entire country.

The subcompact Pinto was first introduced in the fall of 1970. More than 2.5 million have been sold since then.

Misch said another study by investigation teams in the United States and Canada, covering 8,795 injury or tow-away accidents between 1971 and April of 1977, included 326 Pintos. Three involved fires.

Dowie said at a news conference that his assertion that a minimum of 500 persons who would not even have been seriously injured in Pinto accidents died of burns was not based on actual count.

BLACK LEADERS TO PUSH CARTER

NEW YORK (WP) — National black leaders, at the first of a series of meetings they hope will revive the solid civil rights coalition of the 1960s, Monday launched a "counterattack" on the Carter administration's "callous neglect of blacks, the poor and America's cities."

National Urban League executive director Vernon Jordan called the meeting following his exchange of criticism with President Carter last July that began when Jordan accused the administration of ignoring blacks and poor people despite the overwhelming support they gave him in last year's presidential election.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson said participants at Monday's meeting agreed upon a "loose coalition" to fight against "being victimized by the callous neglect of this administration."

He said that under President Nixon "it was benign neglect" but blacks didn't put Nixon in office. However, "we put President Carter in office and from him we will not settle for callous neglect."

Jackson, the head of Operation PUSH (People United to Save Humanity) was the only leader to speak to reporters at any length as he left the meeting.

He noted that it is 14 years since a coalition of civil rights groups organized the March on Washington, led by the late Martin Luther King Jr. Jackson said today's challenge "is to fulfill that march's dream of economic parity and development."

1978 U.S. Wheat Harvest To Be Cut to Prop Price

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Carter administration announced Monday a plan to shore up farm prices by reducing U.S. wheat production 20 per cent next year.

At the same time the administration said it would create a strategic grain reserve of 30 million to 35 million metric tons, for use when harvests fail and prices rise.

Announcing President Carter's decision on the sensitive issue at the White House, deputy Agriculture Secretary John White and other agriculture department officials said the production cutback should not result in an appreciable increase in domestic food prices.

The acreage set-aside, as it is called — the first time since 1973 the government will have acted to discourage full production — is designed to reduce the United States' rising wheat surplus, and thus keep the price of wheat from continuing to fall.

The decision also signalled that Carter intends to sign the 1977 farm bill, to which he once objected, and which is near final action in Congress. The bill would extend the president's authority to take many of the steps he announced yesterday.

Monday's announcement climaxed an internal administration battle that pitted the agriculture department, speaking for American farmers, against Carter's economic and international policy advisers.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland initially recommended a reduction in wheat production of at least 25 per cent. Bergland was set to announce the president's decision last week, but had to cancel a news conference abruptly after Carter, responding to advisers who urged caution, ordered another look at the plan.

Wife-Slayer Kills Himself

EAST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—An ex-convict killed his wife and son, then shot himself to death today after holding nearly 100 police at bay for 16 hours in a barricaded, second-floor apartment, authorities said.

Vault Alarm Works

SOUTH GATE, Calif. (UPI) — Would-be burglars dug a tunnel under a street and into a bank vault, but were frightened off before getting any money, police reported Monday.

The tunnel was described as of "professional" workmanship, using 4x4 wooden beams and inch-thick plywood sheets as shoring.

The tunnel began in the basement of a warehouse across from a branch of the Security Pacific Bank, which was leased to new tenants two weeks ago. The would-be thieves sunk a shaft 18 feet below the street level, then tunneled under Tweedy Boulevard and opened an 18-inch hole in the floor of the bank vault during the weekend.

That apparently set off a silent alarm which brought patrol cars to the bank, scaring the bandits, who never entered the vault and abandoned the tunnel, leaving behind a store of digging, drilling and metal cutting equipment.

Fox Denies Broadbent File Kept

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Francis Fox says the RCMP security planning and analysis branch does not keep files on members of Parliament or on any other individuals.

In a letter to Ed Broadbent released Monday by the NDP leader Fox denied published reports that the RCMP keeps security files on the government's political opponents.

But Broadbent said Fox's letter, which he received two weeks after he wrote the solicitor-general to express his concerns about the alleged RCMP activities, said his concerns were still not answered.

"It takes a long time for the government to say nothing," he said at a news conference.

Fox's letter does not deny that such files exist, but says only that the RCMP security branch "does not compile, maintain nor have custody of files on individuals," Broadbent said.

He said he had little doubt that the security branch examines files prepared by other RCMP sections.

Fox said that even if the security branch kept files on Broadbent, the government would refuse to tell him so.

"Successive Canadian governments have pursued a consistent policy of refusing to confirm or deny that a security file exists in respect of a certain individual," Fox said in his letter.

"The question of disclosure of whether or not a file exists on any specific individual raises very real difficulties. It seems impossible to be selective in this matter."

Broadbent said he also was disturbed by an RCMP denial of electronic surveillance of MPs because it did not specifically deny that other forms of surveillance had been used.

They would have issued a broader denial if they could, he said.

Baldwin Charges Muzzle

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative MP Gerald Baldwin, a leading proponent of less government secrecy, accused Prime Minister Trudeau on Monday of attempting to restrict the freedom of the press.

Baldwin, MP for Peace River, told a local service club that with the government's failure to produce a freedom of information law and Trudeau's alleged move enough to frighten all true believers in the democratic system."

Freedom of information to censor the press, "there is the Commons by Secretary of State John Roberts listed nine proposals tabled last month in types of government information which should be kept from the public to preserve ministerial responsibility.

The Alberta MP called the exemptions a diversionary tactic to get past the elections, adding that the only major critics of the government are the media.

"But the government, like all governments, doesn't like to be criticized and is taking various insidious steps to curtail that criticism."

Referring to a statement made by Trudeau in June involving an investigation into the separatist bias of Radio-Canada, the French language arm of the CBC, Baldwin said Trudeau's warning of imposed discipline was indicative of censorship of the press.

Data Release Caution Seen

OTTAWA (FP) — Advocacy of reduced government secrecy should be tempered with the knowledge the average voter is incapable of making intelligent political judgments, a prominent British lawyer cautioned his Canadian colleagues yesterday.

Citing an example, Sir David Napley told the Canadian Bar Association convention here that "999 out of 1,000" Britons who voted in that country's referendum to remain in the European Common Market did "not know what the issue were."

Napley, a past president of the Law Society of England, said "you can't say people have the capability" of deciding such complex issues despite the impressive documentation they were provided during the referendum campaign.

"I'm not convinced open diplomacy and open government would be any more successful than closed diplomacy and closed government," he stated. Napley, appearing on a panel that discussed Ottawa's information policies, also questioned whether the news media would exercise the "judgment" required to interpret and report an increased flow of infomation about government activities.

While he supported a citizen's right to obtain information that directly affects his personal affairs, he said it appears unnecessary for the public to receive more information about the general working of government. Napley's views were backed by British Attorney-General Sam Silkin, who said elected politicians were "most likely to make the right decision" about whether or not information should be made public.

Silkin said politicians act in the public interest because of pressure from the public and opposition MP's and the possibility of electoral defeat.

Commenting on the view of a Canadian lawyer on the panel that judges should decide disputes between members of the public and government on release of documents, Silkin contended such a role would give judges an unacceptable "political" role.

He said it would be "a sorry day for the judiciary, lawyers and the public" if that occurred.

BUILDING RISES FOR BUSINESSES

MONTREAL (CP) — The value of commercial and industrial construction projects begun in Canada during the first seven months of 1977 was up five per cent over the same period in 1976, say figures released Monday.

Commercial and industrial projects worth $2.02 million were begun between January 1 and July 31. This compares with $1.93 million for the same period last year.

The figures from Canadata, a market research company, show new project starts in residential, engineering, commercial, institutional and industrial construction increased 18 per cent in Ontario, 11 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, seven per cent in the Prairies and the Northwest Territories and two per cent in Quebec.

Construction was down nine per cent in British Columbia and the Yukon in the seven-month period.

The two-per cent increase in over-all construction in Quebec is due to a $299-million increase in spending on the James Bay hydroelectric project in northwestern Quebec.

The figures showed spending on commercial and industrial construction in Quebec dropped $273 million to $469 million.

In Ontario, construction spending in the same category rose 52 per cent, from $452 million to $686 million.

The value of new project starts in Montreal was down 25 per cent, while Toronto registered a 14-per-cent increase.

Friday Hearing Slated On Cartel Information

OTTAWA (CP) — Chief Justice G. T. Evans of Ontario Supreme Court has set Friday as the date for a hearing on a challenge to a federal government regulation limiting release of information on a uranium cartel.

Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative MP for York-Simcoe, said further moves in the legal action he and five fellow party MPs are bringing against the government will depend on the government's response to the hearing.

The Conservatives had planned to file action in the Federal Court of Canada on Monday in case there was some question of jurisdiction. But Stevens said with a hearing set so quickly in the Ontario Supreme Court, action in the second court will be held in abeyance.

At issue is an order given by the Trudeau cabinet last September to prevent shipment of documents on the cartel's activities to the U.S. for use in a court case.

However, the Conservatives say the order prevents discussion of the documents in Canada, a move they say violates freedom of speech and infringes on the rights of an MP.

Stevens said Monday he is disappointed with a response from Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie to his request for special permission to discuss the cartel documents with his lawyer.

He and his colleagues wanted to determine whether the cartel activities might be in violation of the combines act.

But he said Gillespie replied by asking which documents the MPs wanted to show the lawyer, saying that information is necessary before he seeks advice from government lawyers.

Stevens said he could not understand the minister's position since the documents his party has obtained came mainly from a Congressional hearing in Washington.

URANIUM PURCHASE BY FRANCE DENIED

REGINA (CP) — The president of Eldorado Nuclear Ltd. said Monday he knows nothing about an alleged agreement to sell uranium to France although there is an embargo on uranium exports to that country.

Nicholas Ediger told a provincial inquiry he was personally unaware of any such commitment.

The ban exists because France has yet to sign an international anti-nuclear proliferation treaty.

The board of inquiry is examining a proposal for a uranium mine at Cluff Lake in northwestern Saskatchewan. Eldorado Nuclear, which operates a uranium mine near Uranium City is considering construction of a refinery in the province.

Ralph Katzman, Conservative MLA for Rosthern, told the inquiry that Eldorado is involved in an agreement to sell uranium to France.

PWA Must Wait For Accounting

EDMONTON (CP)—Pacific Western Airlines won't know until early next year exactly how much an administrative error cost the government-owned airline in unauthorized political donations in 1976.

Rod McDaniel, PWA board chairman, said Monday that airline accountants are checking the books to ferret out any political donations.

A final total will not be available until the company's independent auditors scour financial records and report to the airline some time in February.

Federal records released in Ottawa last month indicated PWA donated $810 to the federal Progressive Conservative party in 1976, the year after the air carrier was purchased by the province.

"It was strictly a mix-up," said McDaniel, noting no one had been reprimanded since the mistake had been largely his fault.

McDanield said a check of expenditures in excess of $100 failed to find any more political donations. A sporadic check of lesser amounts is also being made to determine if some "odd other little thing" slipped through.

POT PLAN A BUST

OTTAWA (FP)—A scheduled vote on marijuana legalization by young lawyers attending the Canadian Bar Association convention was a "bust" — literally — at the sedate Chateau Laurier Hotel last night. No, the Mounties didn't raid the place on suspicion the junior legal eagles might be puffing the illegal weed to help in deciding how to vote.

Youthful CBA delegates — all but a half-dozen of them — apparently opted for booze and other forms of more 'establishment' socializing.

The few lawyers who showed up for the meeting, scheduled in the official convention program for the hotel's Quebec Suite and confirmed by a press room official in the afternoon, were confronted by locked doors.

They were also outnumbered at least two-to-one by curious reporters.

SHAMROCKS DROP A SQUEAKER BEFORE 5,021 FANS

Burrards Force Seventh Game

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Referee Ron Masson mistakenly turned the shooting clock back and gave Vancouver Burrards any final edge they might have needed in the closing seconds of Monday's Western Lacrosse Association playoff game before 5,021 fans at Memorial Arena.

But that didn't beat Victoria Shamrocks and prevent them from gaining a berth in the Mann Cup final.

Burrards simply took the play away from them in the third period. They came from behind an 8-7 deficit, scored four straight goals and eked out an 11-10 victory to force a seventh and deciding game in the series at Vancouver, Wednesday.

Masson's call only added to the frustration that overtook the Shamrocks and which ended in a desperate last-minute try that fell one goal short.

They had outplayed Burrards by a good margin in the first two periods and, except for goalie Dave Evans and forward Dave Tasker of Burrards, might have put this one away early. Besides they hit the goal piping nine times.

Evans was a little short of sensational as he blocked 18 shots in the first period and 23 the rest of the game. The Rocks outshot the visitors, 51-36.

Tasker was the other thorn in the Shamrocks' side. He scored five goals, three in the first period which ended all even at 4-4; and he got his other two in the second period to almost singlehandedly put Burrards back in the game after Shamrocks had pulled ahead.

The Shamrocks opened quickly in the second period on goals by junior recruits Steve Buckley and Doug Angrove to move on top, 6-4.

But Tasker, with his fourth and fifth goals, the second on a power play, brought Burrards even. Then Rico Bellusci put them ahead on another power-play opportunity at 10:25.

Shamrocks replied late on Joe McCrea's second goal at 18:52 and another by Charn Dhillon on a power-play one second from the end of the period to go agead 8-7.

Then, shortly after the start of the third period, came one of two breaks that turned the game around.

Angrove hit the post with Evans beaten on a try that would have given the Irish a two-goal edge.

On the return rush, Burrards' Taki Vohalis scored to tie the score again. Pat Ryan put Burrards ahead 9-8 at 6:16. Then came the second break.

With Dave Litzenberger of Burrards serving a penalty, Vohalis broke loose, faked a defender and romped in alone to beat goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer cleanly. Ron Pinder added the fourth Burrard goal of the period and the Rocks trailed by three, 11-8.

Ivan Thompson got a power-play goal at 16:55 and Angrove his second at 19:13 with Smeltzer out of the nets. But it was too little, too late.

It was shortly after Angrove's goal and time running out that the Shamrocks felt they were jobbed on Masson's call. A Burrard shot missed the net but Masson called it as "on goal" giving Burrards a full 30 seconds to run out the clock; whereas, if the clock hadn't been turned, the Rocks would have had possession with about 15 seconds left, and a chance, however slim, at getting the equalizer.

Shamrocks' coach Nirmal Dillon said simply what everyone knows. "We'll just have to beat them again in Vancouver."

Coach Ross McDonald of Burrards wasn't about to predict anything now that his club has the home-floor advantage.

"There isn't a guy on their team that we don't respect," he said. "They're playing their guts out and so are our guys, and I wouldn't predict a thing."

"I figured we were out of it Saturday when they got ahead 10-7, but our guys came back. They can do the same. They're not out of it."

McDonald said it was Evans' play which has kept his club alive. "He has been our most consistent performer all season; and, if you think he was good tonight, you should have seen him on Saturday." Burrards defeated the Shamrocks 12-11 in the fifth game Saturday.

McDonald explained that stopping Thompson is one of the prime objects of Burrards game plan. "We have put Mike Smith on him," he explained. "He's the only one we have who can keep up with him. He can kill you with his speed."

Victoria won the first game of the series 11-10 in Vancouver and the second at home 10-9. Burrards won the third 9-8 at Vancouver and the Shamrocks the fourth here 11-9. All the games but one have been decided by one goal.

Winner of the series will meet Brampton Excelsiors in the best-of-seven Mann Cup final beginning Saturday night at the home of the Western winner.

Angrove, Thompson, McCrea and Dhillon each had two goals for the Shamrocks, while Baker and Buckley had singles.

More Names to Add To City's Honor Roll

The weekend in review and the parade of champions continues.

Add the names of Jim Rutledge and Wendy Barlow to the list of Victorians who have won national honors.

Rutledge took the Canadian men's junior golf championship to add to a previous juvenile crown while Barlow captured a prize plum with the Canadian under-18 women's tennis championship and just missed a double when she and another Victorian, Nina Bland, were beaten in the doubles. Toss in a minor share to Jennifer Bland, under-16 doubles, and the tennis gals did just fine.

Wendy was one of the three finalists in the Sportswoman of the year balloting last March and now certainly must rank as a contender again, even more so off her latest triumph plus her showing in the Canada Summer Games.

Debbie Scott previously was named to the Americas' track team as was Joyce Yakubowich and they're both former winners; and that gives one an idea just how tough the competition is in our town. And the basketball season hasn't even started yet.

And a plug, too, for Carole McGregor. Lawn bowling is her game and although it may not rank with the glamor sports, she's No. 1 in the Dominion.

★ ★ ★

For Rutledge, he's an automatic pick for serious consideration. All he has done this year is win the Victoria junior, the Island match-play open, the B.C. junior in a playoff with Roc Sherstobitoff of Castlegar, and now the Canadian.

And to backtrack again, last year's winner Philip Delesalle hasn't lost any ground to speak of. Rather, he's gained stature by being named to an international display team, winning yet another Canadian title and performing admirably in the tough field of international gymnastics.

Still on the subject, Mike Cullin is Canada's best singles rower, two Victorians, Ina DeLure and Kelly Jacklin, have just won medals in international competition. Kevin Tietge is the best junior archer in the country and, if the Shamrocks keep going, don't think they won't deserve a candidate or two demanding recognition. Matter of fact, they do right now.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, keep an eye peeled on Hull, Quebec. Victoria is well represented there with Bates going after their third straight national men's softball championship.

This is unprecedented, but highly probable, and if successful, or even not, there will be someone there demanding a look-see. Victoria, you see, is No. 1 in that sport as well.

What about Doc's Blues of Vancouver who won the Canadian, you say? That's easy. It was a Victoria girl, and a former winner of the women's top award here, who was voted the top pitcher of the recent Canadian tournament. Rosemary Fuller has always been an all-star since she played here and then defected across the strait. And the most valuable player in that tournament was another Victorian, Barb Tribe. She got her grounding here.

In soccer, Victoria contributed many fine players to the Canada Summer Games side and not many cities can claim three players on their country's national team. Ike McKay, Bruce Twamley and Bob Bolitho have been selected for the Canadian team . . .

Dave Cutler doesn't qualify for any awards here, but who is the best Victoria schoolteacher kicking footballs in the Canadian Football League this year? Or who is the best kicker? Dave wins on both counts.

GOALTENDER Dave Evans of Vancouver Burrards was outstanding in Burrards' 11-10 victory over Victoria Shamrocks at Memorial Arena Monday in sixth game of Western Lacrosse Association final series. Here he blocks shot by Victoria's Norm Baker while Doug Angrove of the Shamrocks awaits possible rebound. Checking Baker is Rico Bellusci (14) of Burrards. See story.

First Medal in 79 Years

SAN CRISTOBAL, Venezuela (CP) — Canada won its first medal of the world cycling championships in almost 80 years Monday night when Karen Strong of St. Catharines, Ont., picked up a bronze medal in the women's pursuit.

The victory by the 23-year-old blonde capped three years of extensive training as she became the first Canadian since 1898 to take home a medal. Canada won two medals in 1898, one in the amateur sprint and another in the amateur motorpaced event.

Vera Kuznetsova of the Soviet Union won the gold medal in the event and Ann Riemersma of the Netherlands took the silver.

Strong's victory came at the expense of Sylvia Burka of Winnipeg, who finished behind Strong in the race for the bronze medal. Both Canadians had lost out in the semi-finals.

Strong recorded a time of four minutes, .64 seconds to take the bronze, while Burka, the world sprint speedskating champion, finished in a time of 4:06.63.

Meanwhile, John Nicholson of Australia moved a step closer to his third consecutive victory in the world sprint title when he advanced into the semi-finals.

Nicholson was joined by Giordano Turrini of Italy and two Japanese riders—Roshikazu Sugata and Koichi Nakano.

Valerie, Kelly Win

Valerie Brice and Kelly Davies, toughened by competing in the recent Canadian championships, had little trouble winning as play opened Monday in the city junior tennis championships at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Miss Brice ousted Charlene Joe 6-1, 6-1 in the under-16 girls' singles while Miss Davies eliminated Patrice Walther 6-4, 6-2 in the under-14 division.

In boys' competition, Colin Ayers dropped Alex Mandap 6-1, 6-0 in under-16 play and Stephen Tibbets defeated Glen Gibson 6-0, 6-1 in under-14 competition.

Play continues through the week.

Archery Meet Slated

Don Warren of Haney is scheduled to defend his men's title in the 1977 provincial outdoor archery championships, scheduled Sept. 3 and 4 at the St. Michael's University School grounds.

Among Warren's top challengers will be Victoria's Kevin Teitge, gold medal winner at the Canada Summer Games, and Dave Mann of Vancouver, a national team member.

Leading contenders for the women's crown include Gerri Cosgrove, Vi Muir and Wanda Allan of Victoria and Marj Saunders of Haney.

Junior women's and junior men's crowns will also be decided during the meet, in which competition will start at 9 a.m. each day.

Bates Get Alberta Wednesday

HULL, Que.—Victoria Bate, scheduled to open defence of the Canadian men's fastball crown against Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick today, will go against Alberta on Wednesday morning.

Today's New Brunswick game and the game against Alberta will be broadcast on radio station CJVI (900) starting at 5:30 p.m. and 9 a.m., respectively.

Bates, who are seeking a third straight title, are off Thursday but are scheduled to meet Nova Scotia and Quebec on Friday to end the preliminary round-robin portion of the tourney.

Brock Sets New Mark For Steals

By the Associated Press

Now that the stolen base record is his, Lou Brock wants St. Louis Cardinals to steal up on Philadelphia Phillies in baseball's National League East race.

Brock swiped the 892nd and 893rd bases of his career Monday night, breaking Ty Cobb's 49-year-old record. But despite Brock's personal heroics, the Cardinals dropped a 4-3 verdict to San Diego Padres.

"It seems that every major record I've been involved in, the club has been losing," said the Cardinals left fielder. "Now that I'm through with this one, maybe we can start winning again."

The Cardinals are in fourth place, nine games behind Philadelphia, after suffering their fifth consecutive defeat.

Brock walked to lead off the game and stole second, tying Cobb's career mark and continuing to third when catcher Dave Roberts's throw sailed into centre field. He later scored to ignite the Cards three-run rally off Padres starter Dave Freisleben.

Brock set the record in the seventh after reaching first base on a fielder's choice, then again stealing second on the first pitch.

Then in the eighth, Mike Ivie blasted a two-run homer to power the Padres to a come-from-behind victory.

In other games Monday, Philadelphia Phillies edged Atlanta Braves 3-2 in 14 innings, Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Chicago Cubs 4-1 and Montreal Expos beat Cincinnati Reds 7-2.

Besides his ninth homer of the season, Ivie had two other hits in San Diego's seven-hit attack. Cardinals reliever Al Hrabosky, 6-5, took the loss while Padres starter Dave Freisleben, 6-7, got the decision with relief help from Rollie Fingers, who came on in the ninth to gain his 29th save of the season.

In the American League, while Jim Rice slammed three wasted homers in Boston's 8-7 loss to Oakland A's and Chris Chambliss slugged a pinch three-run shot to help New York Yankees turn back Kansas City Royals 5-3. Duane Kuiper got into the act with the first home run of his three-year big league career.

"This should put to rest forever the queston of whether the ball is juiced up this year," quipped the Cleveland second baseman after his blast led a three-run first inning that started the Indians to a 9-2 victory over Chicago White Sox.

In the only other American League games, Baltimore Orioles downed California Angels 6-1 and Minnesota Twins won a doubleheader from Toronto Blue Jays 7-6 in 10 innings and 6-5.

Dave Johnson walked with the bases loaded to force in the winning run in the 14th inning as Philadelphia nipped Atlanta. Johnson was the fourth batter walked by Braves reliever Steve Hargan in the inning.

Jeff Burroughs homered, his 35th of the season, for Atlanta. Greg Luzinski hit his 33rd round-tripper for Philadelphia.

A two-run homer by Reggie Smith backed Tommy John's eight-hitter as Los Angeles defeated Chicago and ran its victory string to four. Bill Russell and Ron Cey singled home first-inning runs and he Dodgers managed only two more hits until Smith followed a two-out single by Russell in the seventh inning with his 25th home run of the season.

Castle Squares Heywood Playoff

Ray Adams and Bill Flynn backed the three-hit pitching of John Barnes with home runs Monday night to give Castle Properties an 8-3 win over Capital Builders at Heywood Avenue Park.

The victory squared the best-of-five Heywood Men's Softball League playoff final at 1-1.

Adams hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the third inning to tie the game 3-3 after Builders had taken a 3-1 lead in the top of the frame and Flynn smashed out a three-run round-tripper in the sixth to put the game out of reach.

Barnes struck out four batters and didn't yield a base on balls while recording the victory.

John Cocciolioni hit three singles and scored twice for Castle.

Play continues tonight with a doubleheader at 7 and 9 in Royal Athletic Park.

Rain, meanwhile, forced postponement of the fifth game in the best-of-seven Stuffy McGinnis Men's League playoff final at Central Park. Victoria Athletics, who hold a 3-1 lead in the series, take on Seaboard Properties tonight at 6:15.

HOW TO BECOME A RECORD BASE STEALER

You Have to Be Daring and Play Hurt

TY COBB
. . . set mark 49 years ago

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Lou Brock, who had just become the most prolific base-stealer in major league baseball history, gave some advice to younger players who might some day rewrite his records.

"You have to learn to play in pain, you have to want to steal, you have to be daring, and you have to get out there and challenge people," the St. Louis Cardinal player said Monday after stealing the 892nd and 893rd bases of his career to tie and break Ty Cobb's long-standing record.

Brock, 38, equalled the 49-year-old mark in the first inning of the Cardinals' 4-3 National League baseball loss to San Diego, then broke with his 893rd career theft in the seventh.

In the first inning, he walked, then stole second on the first pitch. In the seventh, he grounded into a fielder's choice, then again stole on the first pitch.

Both thefts came against Padre pitcher Dave Freisleben and both times the throw of catcher Dave Roberts was too wide for the San Diego infielder to make the putout.

The record Cobb called his greatest was rewritten by a base-runner who admits he slides wrong most of the time.

"I go into the base the wrong way 99 per cent of the time," Brock remarked. "You're supposed to get the body low, like on the hook slide, to make the fielder bend down to tag you. I use a bent-leg, pop-up slide, go in a little higher.

"But coming in that way, you get more judgement calls from the umpire than you do with a hook slide."

Brock, in his 16th full season in the majors, already held most of the base-stealing records, including the mark of 118 thefts in a season, that he established three years ago.

A soft-spoken, reserved individual, who is a vivid contrast to the fiery and temperamental Cobb, Brock said his biggest concern as he slid in with his record steal was whether he had hurt San Diego shortstop Bill Almon.

"The shortstop had to come right in front of my path to field the ball and was afraid I had spiked him," said Brock, who added he was relieved when he saw Almon wasn't hurt.

Brock, 28 for 49 in stolen bases this season, voiced his respect for Cobb during a brief ceremony following his record theft.

"I think it should not be remembered as an evening when Lou Brock stole a base to set a record," he told the crowd of 9,656. "But as an evening in which the record of a tremendous ballplayer was surpassed."

Cobb had established the record, one of baseball's most durable, from 1905-1928, and Brock started his record run in 1962.

MUTUAL RESPECT SHARED

Als Risk Mark Against Eskimos

By the Canadian Press

Montreal Alouettes and Edmonton Eskimos share a mutual respect as they approach their Canadian Football League interlocking game in Edmonton tonight, one of two scheduled.

"They're the best balanced team we've played, by far," Alouettes coach Marv Levy said at a news conference Monday night.

"We feel Wilkie (Edmonton quarterback Tom Wilkinson) is in total control on the field," Levy said.

Part of that respect may be traced to a 3-11-2 Alouette record against the Eskimos in their last 16 league games, with only one of the wins in Edmonton.

The Alouettes, undefeated in six games this year, are the only CFL team without a loss. The Eskimos, at 4-2, are tied for second with Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Football Conference.

"Montreal does not make errors on offence or defence," Eskimos coach Hugh Campbell said. "They are a hitting ball club. They are physical and right most of the time, which is what makes them a winner."

In other action tonight, Hamilton Tiger-Cats take a 2-4 won-lost record to Winnipeg to tackle the Blue Bombers, 3-3 on the season.

Winnipeg coach Bud Riley said mental mistakes and injuries have contributed to the team's slow start.

"We opened with wins over Saskatchewan and Edmonton," Riley said. "Then we just couldn't put points on the board and lost three straight to Edmonton, Montreal and British Columbia."

However, last week Winnipeg got on track with a 35-12 win over Calgary Stampeders and Riley is optimistic that his offence may have acquired some consistency.

"Our running game hasn't been going too well. Because of injuries and the retirement of Bill Frank we have three new faces on our offensive line and that's a difficult position to just go in and start playing."

Guard Chuck Liebrock will return to action for the Bombers, but receiver Mark McDonald is a doubtful starter after suffering a dislocated finger in practice on the weekend.

Hamilto, with a win last Wednesday against Edmonton, has added defensive back Ron Meekes, a recent cut from the National Football League's New York Giants. Larry Brune, an Eastern all-star defensive back last year, was cut after a slow start with a broken ankle.

In Edmonton, the Alouettes will try to insert former Stampeder Rick Galbos—currently on a five-day trial—into the backfield for injured Andy Hopkins, though a final decision will be made later today.

The only Edmonton lineup change will be for defensive back Roy Painter, cut last week after starting against Hamilton. Ray Clark will start at left defensive back and Ed Jones will move to left corner, with Dave Montagano reinstated as backup.

The Hamilton-Winnipeg game will be televised nationally by the CBC, starting at 6 p.m. PDT.

INDEPENDENCE OUT

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Ted Hood's new 12-metre yacht Independence was eliminated from the America's Cup final defence series Monday by the New York Yacht Club's selection committee.

The committee's decision came after Hood had lost four straight races in the August series. And, ironically, that loss came at the hands of Independence's sister yacht, Courageous, the 1974 defender skippered by Ted Turner.

Independence lost by one minute 23 seconds in Monday's race, and the committee decided, at that point, that it would be unnecessary to hold a second race in the afternoon.

The decision leaves Courageous and Enterprise to battle until Sept. 8 to determine which boat will defend the cup for the 23rd time.

Courageous has nine wins and one loss in the August series while Independence was 3-8 and Enterprise, with Monday off, is at 4-7.

Meanwhile, in the final series to select a challenger, Australia, skippered by Noel Robins, overcame a half-minute deficit at the start and defeated Sweden's Sverige by a 50-second margin.

The victory gave Australia, Alan Bond's new 12-metre yacht from Perth, a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven series and virtually clinched Bond's second consecutive try at wresting the cup away from the United States. Bond was owner of the unsuccessful 1974 challenger, Southern Cross.

City Sailor Second

KINGSTON, Ont. — Victoria's Phil Leitch, who won the opening race in the fireball class on the weekend, was in second place over-all following events at the Canadian Olympic Regatta, Kingston (CORK) held here Monday.

Leitch, who edged Craig Gilbert of Weston Conn., and Pede Dickey of Greenwich, Conn., on opening day failed to place on Monday as Gilbert won top honors and took over first place while Kevin Smith of Rexdale, Ont. was third.

Other over-all leaders following the second of six races scheduled for each class were Brian Palfreeman, Beloeil, Que. (Toranado Class); Peter Hall, Montreal (Soling); Terry McLaughlin, Toronto (Flying Dutchman); Sandy Riley, Winnipeg (Finn.); J. H. Melvin, Lighthouse Point, Fla. (470); Steve Taylor, New Haven, Conn. (505); Cameron Lewis, Sherborn, N.Y. (Laser); and Jamie Kidd, Toronto (International 14).

Draw Likely In Final Test

LONDON (Reuter) — The final cricket test between England and Australia appeared headed towards a draw when, at the close on the fourth day Monday, Australia was 226 for six in its first inings — a lead of 12.

With time running out, the Australians needed a brisk addition to their overnight score of 11 for one if they were to win and cut their overall 3-0 deficit in the series.

But despite an aggressive 39 by captain Greg Chappell, the early batting failed to match the brilliant sunshine which The Oval at last enjoyed, after days of rain.

Australia added 49 runs before lunch — 32 to Chappell — and the fall of three wickets for 44 runs after the interval swung the game England's way. Pace bowlers Bob Willis and Mike Hendrick did the damage.

But young left hander David Hookes, supported by vice-captain Rodney Marsh, hit a bold 65. Hookes was eventually caught behind by Alan Knott, chasing a delivery from Tony Greig outside the off stump. Marsh completed his half century in the last over of the day, hooking Willis for four.

Halderson, Barr Enter Tourney

Dave Barr of Kelowna and Dan Halderson of Brandon, the year's two biggest winners on the Canadian golf tour, are included among a list of 23 professionals entered in the annual Metro-Toyota-CFAX tournament at Cedar Hill.

In addition to the 23 pros, 146 amateurs are also entered for the Sept. 3-4 tournament.

The two-day tournament offers $4,000 in amateur prizes and $4,000 in pro money.

Also in golf, veteran Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., carded a final-round 62 Sunday to finish with a 54-hole total of 191 and win the second annual Tournament of Champions in the oilsands community of Fort McMurray, Alta.

Norman's 19-under-par effort earned his $5,000 in prize money.

Dave Barr of Kelowna was three stokes back in second place.

Hubert Green dropped a six-foot birdie putt on the last hole to win the $70,000 Irish Open championship while defending-champion Ben Crenshaw was runner up.

In Charlottetown, Tom Irwin of St. Catherines, Ont., captured the Prince Edward Island open tournament title with a 36-hole score of 146.

City Athletes Capture Golds

MONTREAL — Victorians Raul Estrada, Brent Fougner and Tom Griffin won gold medals in the Canadian junior track and field championships on the weekend at Olympic Park.

Estrada won the pole vault with a height of 4.82 metres, Fougner took the triple jump with his best-ever performance of 15.04 metres and Griffin won the 1500 metres with a time of three minutes, 50.27 seconds.

Griffin, who missed the first half of the season because of a foot injury, finished fifth in the 800 metres in 1:54.6. It was only the second 800 he's run this season.

No records were broken in the two-day meet but Desai Williams, who won four medals in the Canada Summer Games, was named the outstanding athlete for winning the 100 and 200 metres.

Williams won the 100 in 10.97 seconds and the 200 in 21.90.

The top female athlete was Joanne McLeod of Ottawa who won a gold in the high jump with a leap of 1.81 metres.

Wendy Out

TORONTO — Wendy Barlow of Victoria, who won the under-18 women's championship in the closed Canadian tournament Sunday, lost out in a bid to qualify for the Canadian international tourney on Monday.

Miss Barlow dropped a 6-1, 7-6 decision to Claudia Mondeiro of Brazil.

Driver Killed

BRANDS HATCH, England (AP) — Australian race car driver Brian McGuire was killed Monday when his Formula 1 car plunged off the track and struck a marshal's post during a practice lap.

MARK TRAIL

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

On numerous occasions, the finding of the winning opening lead is nothing more than pure guesswork. But, on many occasions, the winning opening lead can be determined by the application of reasoning. The latter was the case in today's deal.

NORTH
♠ A K 7 5 4
◊ K Q
♣ A Q

WEST
♠ Q J 10 8 3
♡ 4
◊ A 9 7

EAST
♠ 9
♡ 3 2
◊ 8 6 5 4 2

SOUTH
♠ 6 2
♡ K Q 10 9 7 6
◊ J 10 3
♣ 9 4

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♠	Pass
6 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♣.

North's game-forcing two-spade opening bid was overly aggressive. Although his hand was an unbalanced one, two no-trump would have been the preferable opening bid. And when South responded with three hearts (a marginal call), North, consistent in his aggressive bidding, drove on to a small slam.

As West interpreted the bidding, North rated to have at least a five-card suit (it is the relatively rare day when a forcing two-bid is made on a four-card suit). And West knew, from his holding in spades, that if South were going to try to develop winners out of North's spade suit, South would run into a horrendous break.

That North had the three missing aces was also obvious. In response to North's Blackwood bid, South had denied having any ace. And if North had the club queen (in combination with his known ace), then West's king of clubs would be finessed against successfully.

So West opened the jack of clubs, on the sound assumption that if North possessed the A-Q of clubs, South wouldn't risk a finesse at trick one unless no other hope existed. South, of course, wasn't going to learn about the "bad" division in spades until later on.

When declarer saw the dummy, he put up the ace of clubs, figuring that if the adversely held spades were divided no worse than 4-2, he could make a winner out of the board's fifth spade, upon which he would discard his losing club. But with the bad break in spades, declarer had to lose a club, plus a diamond. Had West not led a club originally, South, after discovering the 5-1 spade division, would have had no choice but to take a (successful) club finesse.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, August 31

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Go in new direction. Get financial agreement in writing. Leo, Aquarius and Scorpio persons figure in scenario. You find love. You rediscover what is important. Accent on being at right place at right time. Be direct, independent, confident. You'll do it!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Issues could be clouded. Key is to seek counsel from one experienced in money, home, property affairs. Aquarian is likely to be involved. Emphasis on hospitals, institutions, special clubs, groups, organizations. You can gain access to material you need.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Friendship, acceleration of social activities — these are indicated. Your natural talents, versatility surge to forefront. Romance, creativity, travel, marvelous contacts could all be on tap during this meaningful period.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Direct approach, steady pace aids in achieving goal. You're asked to review and revise. Do so with understanding that original imprint will not be erased. Aquarius, Leo and Taurus figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Key is expression, movement, meeting people, giving feelings a chance to give and receive affection. Young persons play paramount roles. Accent on writing, publishing, distribution — your style captures imagination of many. You could ride crest of popularity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Money, luxury items, art objects, pleasing family members — these are spotlighted. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio figure in picture. One close to you wants reassurance, needs additional security. Know it, be considerate and diplomatic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lie low, go slow, plan, make contacts, plant seeds — legal matters resolved after money situation is examined in calm, cool manner. Define terms, be positive concerning needs, expectations. You do best by placing cards on table without insisting on immediate action. Pisces will aid.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get house in order. Organize, accept responsibility — know that a relationship is becoming "meaningful." Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently. Get basic issues under control. Leave the "celebrating" for another time. Obtain hint from Libra message.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You learn where you stand with special situation — and person. Accent on romance, creative endeavors, significent changes, confrontations with young persons or offspring. Finish rather than initiate project. Find better ways of distribution, display. Yes, Aries can aid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Solid information available — one in authority can be convinced to give you green light. Insist on specific data. Promises make for conversation, but when you get down to business — show you don't intend to be a fool. Leo, Aries and Aquarius figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Relative confides "monumental problem." Key is to keep perspective — and sense of humor. Be versatile, understand that reputation will stand up, that you can aid without alienating others. Cancer and Leo figure in scenario.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on values, reviewing contract, getting proper return on investment. In personal life, member of opposite sex sings siren song. If you want intrigue, dance to the tune. If you seek happiness, degree of contentment . . . listen for flaws.

IF AUGUST 31st IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are completing major project, gaining new perspective on goals, where you are, where you're going — and purpose of your being. August was memorable — business, commitment, love frustration, investment, money. New deal for you in October. You were on your own early, a rebel, separated from one or both parents. Scorpio, Leo persons play important roles in your life.

By J. A. H. HUNTER

This is almost too easy! But do it anyway.

Each distinct letter in the addition stands for a particular but different digit. What do you make the value of that ROOM?

M O M
M O M
M Y

R O O M

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer: Madge 37 years old.

Mr. Hunter answers all letters: Ideas welcomed.

Happy as a Dead Pig in the Mud, Roy Rogers Says

NEW YORK — Roy Rogers, his characteristic cowboy hat and smile in place, ambled into the room.

"Hi, how ya'll?" he said, gesturing with his hand and nodding at the gaggle of reporters and photographers crowded into his suite at New York's Essex House.

Rogers and his son Dusty were in New York making personal appearances to promote Rogers's first feature film in 20 years — Mackintosh and T.J.

"I'm just as happy as a dead pig in the mud," smiled the 65-year-old "King of Cowboys," who has kept busy with his restaurant chain, horse racing, rodeos and television specials since his TV series went off the air years ago.

His new film and plans to re-syndicate his television series are opening the doors for Rogers to become a hero to yet another generation of North Americans.

"Mothers and fathers and younger grandmothers and grandfathers are taking kids to show them what they saw when they were kids. I've kind of grown up with three generations."

"Mackintosh and T. J. is the first of the 91 films Rogers has made in which he plays a character other than himself. But regardless of the character's name, Rogers is convinced he's portraying no one other than himself.

"I think I played a Roy Rogers, only an older Roy Rogers," he said smiling. He tugged the sleeve of his red and brown plaid jacket, revealing a gold watch sporting a small sheep head and bear on either side.

Talk of the film brought back memories of his first starring role.

Rogers made that film, Under Western Stars, in 1938. "I was just a child at the time."

It was about that time when Rogers teamed up with his famous palomino Trigger.

He was on a movie studio lot looking over stable after stable of horses when he spotted the horse that soon became his trademark. "I rode him about a hundred yards and I never looked at the rest of them."

The picture-taking over, a newsman had one last request.

Then Rogers broke away from questioning for a photography session.

. . . A WALK ON THE LEGAL SIDE

MOOSE JAW — It might soon be legal to walk down either side of the sidewalks in this community.

A proposed new traffic bylaw does away with a former law which states "pedestrians shall, whenever practical, move on the right side of sidewalks or crosswalks."

When the bylaw was introduced in the late 1960s, one resident invented a helmet with turn signals for pedestrians to wear.

A police spokesman said he could not recall any one ever being taken to court for walking on the left of the sidewalk.

A Break for Walter

SANTA MONICA — Actor Walter Pidgeon has won a round in his fight for life in St. John's hospital.

The 78-year-old actor, known for his distinguished gentleman roles, was upgraded to "serious" condition Monday after a week on the critical list, and his vital signs are in the process of stabilizing," a hospital statement said.

Pidgeon was "alert, taking fluid and breathing on his own" for the first time since a blood clot reached his lung, the hospital said.

Since Baby Makes Two, Mother Beats a Rap

MIAMI — A woman was given a traffic ticket for driving by herself in a lane reserved for car pools. But she beat the rap. County Judge Dominic Koo said the woman showed up in court with her newborn baby. She argued she was eight months pregnant when she was cited. Koo found her not guilty on the ground a fetus is considered a person. "Therefore, there were two people in the car," he ruled.

DES MOINES, Iowa — Bob Davis waited almost 30 years to make a cooking comeback at the Iowa State Fair. Now he's won both ribbons and sweepstakes in the last two years. In 1948, as a lad of 14, Davis entered his homemade jellies and fruit jams in fair competition. He was denied ribbons and premium money because the fair had a women-only rule then. Last year, he returned and won 21 ribbons—and the sweepstakes—in jellies and fruit butter. And he got a letter of congratulation from Betty Ford, wife of then President Gerald Ford. "I'm the family ham—I like to win," said the softspoken draftsman after winning blue ribbons this past weekend for his peach and pear pies. Davis, 43, said the pies were the first he had baked since a Christmas dinner at least 20 years ago.

WASHINGTON — A number of films including the 30-year-old March of Times newsreels were destroyed Monday when a fire raced through a U.S. government film storage vault, officials said. Richard Vanter, a general services administration spokesman, said panels of six separate vaults were blown out from the heat, but only the contents in one film vault were destroyed.

LOS ANGELES — It was the last June of Elvis Presley's life, and as he walked on stage before adoring concert audiences, TV cameras were rolling. The TV special based on those last concerts will be broadcast Oct. 3 giving fans a last look at the rock 'n' roll king before he died Aug. 16.

LOS ANGELES—Farrah Fawcett-Majors, the tawny-haired actress who quit Charlie's Angels television series, will receive about $1 million to star in a new movie: Somebody Killed Her Husband. A spokesman for Miss Fawcett-Majors said she had considered more than 300 scripts and about 500 firm offers before signing. The film will begin production in location in New York City on Oct. 3. Reginald Rose wrote the script for the romantic mystery-comedy.

And, Here's One For the Books!

NEW YORK — A middle-aged man with eclectic reading taste and sticky fingers brought public library officials to their knees Monday as they sorted through 7,000 volumes valued at $100,000 he had stashed in his apartment.

Inspectors from New York City and Queensborough public libraries picked their way delicately through wall-to-wall books stacked in the back bedroom of the Queens apartment abandoned three months ago by Caio D'Aurelio.

"It looks like they've all been stolen," said Cecil Greenidge, a Queens library inspector. Some of the books were stamped with library logos as distant as Florida State University in Tallahassee, but most were from libraries here.

"Now we can't be sure this guy stole these books, but somebody sure did," Greenidge said. Authorities at first had thought the books had been checked out and never returned.

D'Aurelio rented the apartment for 10 years, said Armando Arias, the building superintendent. About two years ago, he stopped living in the apartment, and three months ago he stopped paying his monthly $200 rent. No one has seen him since.

At 10 cents a day, D'Aurelio's overdue charge in New York City for all 7,000 volumes would amount to $700 daily.

'SYMBOL' QUITS

NEW YORK — The only black musician to be a member of the New York Philharmonic in its 133-year history has resigned, saying he is "simply tired of being a symbol."

Sanford Allen, 38, a violinist who joined the orchestra in 1962, called the orchestra "a closed shop," but said he does not mean to single out the Philharmonic for blame in not hiring more blacks.

"This is not a Philharmonic problem and it's not a Boston Symphony or Chicago Symphony problem," he said. "It's part of a national social problem."

Allen said he plans to work as a free-lance violinist and soloist when he leaves the orchestra next month.

His resignation, disclosed by the New York Times, came as the orchestra prepared to begin a pre-season Black Composers Week tonight featuring Allen as soloist in Roque Codero's Violin Concerto.

A Philharmonic spokesman expressed regret at the resignation.

FAMILIAR SMILE is not Jimmy Carter's, but that of look-alike Walter J. Hanna, who was passing through Toronto on his way to a holiday in Britain. Even his 10-year-old daughter Hanna bears a resemblance to the U.S. president's daughter Amy. Hanna spends part of his time on the entertainment circuit doing impressions of Carter.

FATALITIES WORTH TWO BRIDES

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea (UPI) — Two 16-year-old girls, dressed in traditional wedding garb and smeared with pig fat, were given away by their families in compensation for a fatal highway crash.

About 10,000 persons watched the ceremony Monday at Pugalamp village.

The girls and an estimated $25,000 worth of goods including pigs, birds, bamboo oil and a horse were the Jiga clan's compensation for causing a crash that killed three members of the neighboring Kumdi clan.

The girls will marry the nearest relatives of two men who were killed when their truck hit a tree that had fallen across a road. A woman also was killed.

The Jigas accepted responsibility for having chopped down the tree and offered the two girls, goods and animals in compensation.

B.C. Dollars Flow to Alberta

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) — The waitress at the Windsor Hotel offered breakfast and one good reason why Dawson Creek, tucked just inside British Columbia's northeastern border, thinks itself a prairie town.

"If I'm putting out $1,000 on new appliances, why pay an extra $70 in sales tax when I can drive over to Grande Prairie where there's no tax?"

No sales tax, better selection, lower prices and lower freight rates lure B.C. dollars into Alberta.

Canada Freightways estimates 90 per cent of the community's needs are serviced through Alberta. The local Safeway, The Bay, the town's Ford dealer and drug wholesalers all buy from Alberta.

"We're a prairie town," said the waitress. "We have more in common with the people in Grande Prairie than the people in Prince George or Mackenzie.

"And besides, if I want to get a taste of the city, why fly to Vancouver for $150, with two stops, when I can fly direct to Edmonton for $50 less?"

And the links that the farm service centre and former oil boom town has with Alberta go beyond transportation and supply.

CBC network programming is fed from Edmonton; the federal government's Federal Development Bank services the area through its Grande Prairie office; the developer of the town's new $8-million shopping mall is based in Edmonton and the notice in the downtown saddle shop urges locals not to miss the bucking horse auction in Innisfail, Alta.

Why the Alberta connection?

"It's a combination of history, geography, politics and some flat-footed B.C. businessmen," said a local storeowner.

The Peace River gave early settlers easy access to the area and rail connections with Alberta established in 1930 strengthened the ties, as did the Alaska Highway.

Air service gave Dawson Creek its first connection with the rest of B.C. during the 1940s but the first land link — the Hart Highway from Prince George — didn't open until 1952. The Pacific Great Eastern Railway (now B.C. Rail) didn't reach the town until 1958, 28 years after the Northern Alberta Railway.

Even with transportation links with B.C., it makes more sense for locals to trade with Alberta. A new furnace costs $10 more ordered from Prince George rather than Edmonton. The difference is freight rates. And time. Canadian Freightways allows two days for a Vancouver-to-Dawson City delivery and only eight hours from Edmonton.

But there's more to it than history and geography, say locals. Alberta businessmen have cuthustled their B.C. counterparts.

John Jackman operates a mobile home dealership nearby in Chetwynd, B.C.

"I'm supplied by both Prince George and Grande Prairie and frankly, I get better service and prices from Alberta," he said. "Prince George is supposed to be the service centre for northern B.C. but they don't seem interested."

Gov't Eyes Intervention In Internal Union Dispute

WILLIAMS
. . . 'concerned'

New legislation that would give the provincial government more power in dealing with internal union disputes is under consideration, Labor Minister Allan Williams said Monday.

Commenting on an ongoing struggle between Teamsters in Vancouver for control of Local 213, Williams said that, "the government is not prepared to stand idly by and let unions become battle grounds for contending groups."

Williams made the statement after NDP labor critic Bill King (Revelstoke-Slocan) asked what action the government would be taking in the Teamster dispute.

The power struggle over control of the local has brought Teamster internationasl vice-president Senator Ed Lawson and Local 213 secretary-treasurer Jack Vlahovic into head-on conflict.

Vlahovic is being tried in a union hearing for allegedly mis-spending $8,000 of union funds.

In return Vlahovic has launched a Supreme Court action against four executive members, including Lawson.

King said that rank and file Teamster members are being refused entrance to the Vlahovic hearing, "which is completely contrary to the standards of justice in British Columbia."

He asked Williams if he is aware of the situation.

"Yes," replied Williams. "I am concerned at this development . . . (but) the powers which the government has at this time in this respect are limited."

Williams hinted that the government would be bringing in legislative changes to rectify that situation, and when King asked the minister to clarify his remarks, added: "I can't make it any clearer. This government is not prepared to stand idly by and let unions become battle grounds for contending groups."

Later, outside the house, Williams said that, "I believe that the legislation we have in British Columbia is not adequate to deal with the problem."

He said legislative changes were definitely being considered with a view to keeping, "industrial unrest from flowing from (a union's) internal or housekeeping problems."

With respect to the local 213 matter, Williams said his department plans no action.

"If there is any member of the Teamsters who feels his rights are being denied, he has access to the courts and that's where he should go," said Williams.

King, however, said that the minister should use the powers of his office to ensure that the Vlahovic hearings were open to rank and file members.

King said Williams' office should be playing a conciliatory role in the dispute and criticized the minister for threatening legislative changes without first trying to settle the matter through negotiation.

"I don't think its very wise to use the big stick unless it's absolutely necessary," he said.

PARK SCHOOL GIVEN GRANT

The Strathcona Park School's Outdoor Education Society has received a $60,000 grant from the provincial government, Education Minister Pat McGeer announced Monday.

McGeer said the funds represent about 25 per cent of the school's operating costs.

The Strathcona Park school, located on the shores of Buttle Lake about 30 miles west of Campbell River, is a non-profit operation which offers courses on outdoor education to students and teachers throughout the province.

McGeer said the outdoor education programs are directly related to such courses in many school districts.

At the same time McGeer announced a $25,000 grant to Vancouver's Community Music School and a $10,000 grant to the Vancouver Museums and Planetarium Association.

"Each of these non-profit organizations is substantially benefiting the school children of British Columbia and the ministry of education feels it appropriate that they should receive some financial as well as moral support to continue," said McGeer.

The minister added that the three grants were made under his department's policy of providing funds to support special educational services offered to the children of at least several school districts.

Oil Price Hike To Stay—Davis

The provincial government plans no action to halt the hikes in price of gasoline and heating oil by oil companies throughout B.C.

Energy Minister Jack Davis told the legislature Monday the hikes to wholesale prices, of at least 3.5 cents a gallon for gasoline and 3.1 cents for heating oil, will not bring government intervention.

He made the statement in response to questions by Alex Macdonald (NDP-Vancouver East), who asked what action would be taken to stop the increases which would undoubtedly be passed on to the consumer.

Davis said no action would be taken because, "there is a general understanding between the federal government and all the provinces that the tax increase will be allowed as announced."

The increases are part of a pattern established by Ottawa to increase crude oil prices every six months by $1 per barrel until the Canadian price matches the world market level.

Under the formula, the crude price will rise again Jan. 1 and the wholesale and retail price of gasoline will rise by at least another 3.5 cents on March 1.

Ottawa has said it will continue these increases until 1979 at least.

Employers Group Pushed?

NDP leader Dave Barrett accused the government Monday of attempting to set up an employers council at the municipal level to bargain on a province-wide basis with the public sector unions.

"This is an attempt to organize public sector employers . . . under the auspices of the finance department," Barrett told the legislature.

Barrett said he has a copy of a confidential memorandum which shows the government is trying to set up a central bargaining committee to manipulate bargaining situations in efforts to hold down wages. He refused to show the document.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, who announced last June formation of the Council of Public Sector Employers, denied the group would be involved in negotiations, but said it would serve in an advisory capacity for the municipalities.

Labor Minister Allan Williams said the council would have no authority to bargain under B.C. law.

Tunnelling Crooks Caught

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — Smoke billowing from a tunnel led to the arrest Sunday of five alleged members of Italy's notorious underground gang who had burrowed their way into a bank. Police said the men had tunnelled 92 yards underground to the bank when policemen on patrol saw smoke escaping from a sidewalk grill. The gang has been blamed for similar robberies in northern Italy. Police said the smoke was believed to have come from blow torches the men were using.

LAWYERS SUED

NEW YORK (AP) — Within the last few years lawyers have been increasingly joining doctors as defendants in malpractice suits.

As a result, malpractice insurance premiums have gone up, says Francis J. McCarthy, general counsel of The Travelers Insurance Companies.

"Most claims have been settled in the $6,000 to $10,000 range, but others have been in the six-figure category," he said.

McCarthy pointed to a recent study of approximately 2,000 law firms in San Francisco Bay area which concluded, "The results are alarming." One of every 20 law firms appears to have been sued for malpractice.

The authors of the study state that at that rate, even without the acceleration of claims, almost half of the law firms may have one or more malpractice claims over a 10-year period.

The best general estimates are that clients are suing their lawyers almost twice as often as they did four years ago.

Finding the Cause of Dizziness your health

By LESTER COLEMAN, M.D.

"I feel kind of dizzy. Sometimes I feel woozy and lightheaded. I can't explain it, but I just don't feel right."

These are common complaints. The doctor usually tries to obtain a more accurate description in order to arrive at a diagnosis. Yet patients find it diffult to describe true dizziness, and often confuse it with vague symptoms.

Real dizziness is a sensation that occurs when objects are rotating and the patient is standing still. Another form of dizziness occurs when objects are standing still and the patient has the feeling of rotation. Both of these are real vertigo, or dizziness.

There is a large, intricate network of nerves involved in the balance mechanism that lies in the inner ear. Direct lines of communication go out to the brain, to the muscles of the eyes and even to the nerves responsible for nausea and vomiting. That is why dizziness is so often accompanied by a feeling of unsteadiness, difficulty in focusing the eyes and with nausea and vomiting.

There are many causes for dizziness. Infections of the middle and inner ear, toxic reactions to alcohol, food poisoning and immoderate use of tobacco.

All of these must be ruled out, one at a time, in order to establish a diagnosis and lay out a program of treatment.

A condition known as "meniere's disease" has come into prominence and, unfortunately, has been used indiscriminately as a synonym for dizziness.

In 1861, Dr. Meniere described for the first time a very specific condition which was a combination of severe attacks of turning, dizziness, noises in the ear and loss of hearing. Not all cases of dizziness fall into this picture. In fact, Meniere's disease is relatively rare, even though it has become a catch-all label of many undiagnosed cases of dizziness.

Interestingly, too, many readers are terrified by the very name of Meniere's disease, even though it may not exist. Another name that frightens them is "labyrinthitis," which means "inflammation or infection of the delicate inner ear mechanism."

When dizziness does strike, patients should keep an accurate history of when it occurred, how long it lasted, and, if repeated attacks occur, what is the duration and the severity.

In this way, doctors can be aided in arriving at a conclusion about its cause and eradication.

Heavenly Marmalade

4 oranges
2 lemons
8 peaches
8 pears
8 medium apples
Granulated sugar.

Squeeze juice from oranges and lemons. Put skins through food chopper, combine with juice in large heavy kettle. Simmer for 5 minutes.

Peel peaches, peel and core pears and apples. Put fruit through food chopper. Combine with orange-lemon mixture in kettle.

Measure combined fruit and add equal measure of sugar. Stir well, start cooking over moderate heat to dissolve sugar. Boil hard, stirring constantly, until thick and clear (about 30 to 35 minutes).

Ladle into sterilized jars. When cool, cover with layer of melted paraffin, top with clean lids.

Important to boil the jam rapidly to retain its lovely colour.

Yield: About 15 medium glasses.

Neighborhood Kids Watch Them Eat

DEAR ABBY: We built a lovely patio, bought furniture and a grill, and planned for a pleasant summer. But whenever we cook out, two neighbor children come over, stand around and watch us eat!

Once I gave them each a slice of watermelon and told them nicely to run along home, but they came back with some other children, forming a ring around the grill and remarking on how good the barbecued ribs smelled!

I like children and don't want to be unkind or petty, but our budget can't be stretched to feed more than our own family. Shall I call the mother and explain how embarrassing this is? or move?—HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Call the mother and tell her you'd like to feed her children, but you can't afford it, so would she please keep them away from your cookouts?

DEAR ABBY: I'm a newlywed and am trying to be a good wife, but my husband still wants his mother to do up his shirts. Should I object?—JUNE BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: Not if his mother picks up and delivers.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 46 years, and not once has he bought me a gift or flowers.

On special occasions when he thinks I should have a greeting card, he hands it to me in the same paper sack from the store where he purchased it. When I ask him what it is, he says, "Open it and you'll find out."

I have told him repeatedly that if he can't take the trouble to put my name on the card and sign it, he shouldn't bother getting me one.

My birthday just passed, and that morning he told me that if I was going out, to buy myself a card. I told him I wouldn't do it, so when he came home, he handed me another unsigned card in a paper sack.

As I write this I'm not on speaking terms with him. Can you blame me? He is so inconsiderate and thoughtless. Are there other husbands like him? I doubt it. —UNHAPPY

DEAR UNHAPPY: It will probably be small consolation for you to learn that I've heard from hundreds of women who would be thrilled if their husbands bought them a greeting card. Yes, even in a paper sack — unsigned.

Soon to be built.

The establishment of a Department of External Affairs dates back to May, 1909, under the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. In 1927 Canada's first independent diplomatic representative was appointed and a legation opened in Washington. This was followed a year later by the appointment of a Commissioner-General in Paris and in 1929 by the opening of a legation in Tokyo.

This is some of the historical information gleaned from the 36-page booklet The Department of External Affairs. The booklet also says that at present Canada conducts external relations with 125 countries around the world. In some we are represented by embassies; in others by high commissioners, or commissioners.

In addition, the booklet outlines the various functions of the department and its many divisions. There is, for instance, a Legal Advisory Division, which in itself is subdivided into four sections, namely, the Economic, Treaty, Advisory and Claims Sections.

Canada's diplomatic missions and consular offices form an integral part of the Department of External Affairs. The heads of diplomatic and consular posts report directly to the Secretary of State for External Affairs and receive their instructions from him. Those who enter the external service of Canada do so on a career basis under the merit system. Preference is given to Canadian citizens.

For the booklet write to: Information Services Division, Department of External Affairs, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0G2.

Please don't forget to indicate your postal code and allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

These Kids Get Goat Treatment

FATHERS are also encouraged to spend as much time as possible with newborn babies.

By RICHARD FLASTE

CLEVELAND (NYT) — Most of the time at the Rainbow Babies and Children's Hospital here, the doctors talk about children and their mothers. Sometimes, they talk about goats.

Goats provide an extreme example of how nature makes sure that offspring are protected. In the first 10 minutes of her kid's life, a goat mother identifies it as her own and becomes firmly attached to it. But if the kid is removed for those early minutes, the goat mother will reject it.

Two pediatricians — Dr. Marshall Klaus and Dr. John Kennell — assert that something similar, although less extreme, happens when humans are born.

Their views have aroused considerable interest among the educators of parents and caused some doctors to re-examine the traditional thinking that resulted in babies being removed from their mothers and placed in a nursery. Others contend that Klaus and Kennel have overstated their case.

From their own research and clinical experience over the past several years and from studies their work has spurred elsewhere, Klaus and Kennell have concluded that the contact of human mother and child in the first hours of a baby's life — perhaps in the first minutes — may have a long-lasting effect on how attached the mother will be to the child.

Although a mother's attachment nearly always does occur anyway, Klaus and Kennell say that in many women it may not form as easily or as obviously without extended early periods with the baby.

They say the findings are especially important for mothers who are more likely to have difficulty becoming close to their babies — because their children are malformed, premature or unwanted initially.

The docotrs, who are both professors of pediatrics at Case Western Reserve University, which is associated with the Rainbow hospital, say that in one carefully controlled experiment they studied mothers who have had hours of early contact with their babies and compared those mothers with others who have had only brief contact.

There are several significant differences, the doctors say. A month after the children are born, mothers who have had more early contact with them are demonstrably more affectionate—they fondle their children and gaze into their eyes more than do the other mothers.

At one year, when these mothers are observed at the doctor's office, the same affectionate ones hover about their children more, soothing them. They are less eager to leave their children with anyone.

At two years, they speak to the children with a greater number of words and questions and with fewer commands than do the other mothers — a finding that could have implications for intellectual development.

Kennell says the studies indicate that "the earlier you put mother and child together for extended periods the more powerful the effects will be." Increasing their contact anytime in the first three days appears to be effective. But both Kennell and Klaus are convinced that there is something especially important about the time mother and child spend together in the first hour or 90 minutes after birth.

During that time, they say, the baby and mother both seem to be in an unusual state of mutual receptivity. The mother, if she has not been made drowsy by drugs, is at the peak of excitement. At the same time, the baby is more alert in the first hour than he will be later. The baby's eyes may be open for as much as 45 minutes; later they will be closed 90 per cent of the time.

The baby's wakefulness is important, Klaus says, "because the mother can't make love to a baby unless the baby makes love to her."

The lovemaking the pediatricians describe is a kind of primeval dance. The mother gazes into the infant's eyes for increasingly long periods of time, all the while talking to the child in a high-pitched voice — because the mother is somehow aware that babies are more receptive to higher pitches.

The voice is the dance music. The baby's movements often synchronize exactly with the rhythm (slow-motion pictures reveal an eerie precision in the infant's body movements as the mother talks), and the infant is following the mother's face, too —A fact that has been obscured by years of believing infants could not see and also by the routine use of medication in infants' eyes that blurred what vision they did have.

So important is the mutual gazing, that mothers who cannot see a newborn's eyes often become agitated. Klaus and Kennell recorded mothers pleading with newborns to open their eyes. "If you open your eyes," some would say, "I will know you are alive."

The pediatricians here have been trying to find out if mothers have certain innate ways of touching their newborns. In one study they found that in the first hours mothers began by touching the infants' legs and arms with their fingertips and then progressed to using the palms of their hands on the babies' bodies. But the findings are at best suggestive, since a study elsewhere shows a different patern.

If fathers feel left out of all this, they needn't. Many of the maternal-infant interactions occur with fathers as well, but the bulk of the research so far has been with mothers. (The recent book by Drs. Klaus and Kennell describing their work indicates that emphasis in its title: It's called "Maternal-Infant Bonding;" published by C. V. Mosby.)

The pediatricians appear sensitive to criticism that they have overstated the case for a bonding mechanism. They point out that conclusions from the research are generalizations, and there are always exceptions — profound attachments formed by adoptive parents to their children, for instance. They are aware that other factors — not the least of which is a parent's own upbringing — contribute mightily to the nature of a parent's attachment to a child.

But they argue that since early contact appears to be powerful in affecting the behavior of mothers, why make the attachments more difficult to form by using procedures that keep mother and child apart?

So they support the recent trend toward "family-centered" childbirth that allows parent and child to be together immediately. Klaus suggests that his research may provide the data to prevent this trend "from dropping away."

These pediatricians argue that daytime nurseries in hospitals ought to be eliminated.

They think that the means ought to be found to get mothers and babies together as soon as possible after Caesarian section — perhaps as little as 10 to 40 minutes later.

CLOSENESS is encouraged for the mother even if the baby is in an incubator, as a result of the two doctors' work.

RESTAURANT THAT ISN'T

HOLLAND CENTRE, Ont. (CP) — Opening a restaurant was not what Katherine Carson planned when she bought an old general store in 1976.

But since then she has opened Tillerman House in this community about 20 miles northeast of Owen Sound.

The tiny restaurant seats 12 persons and features a casual, homey atmosphere that almost prompts patrons to offer to do the dishes.

"This isn't a restaurant," says Jim Fulton, a bare-footed waiter. "This is Kath's home."

Ms. Carson said she originally bought the store to run a crafts studio. She decided to open a small tea shop as well and included cakes, pies, soups, sandwiches, omelettes and quiche on the menu.

Her neighbors also contribute to the restaurant's offerings. Strawberry cream pies are bought from Marie Sir, butter tarts come from the kitchen of Cathy Rogerson, eggs are from another neighbor and the trout comes from nearby ponds.

The most expensivxe choices on the menu are quiche or smoked trout and curried eggs for $3.25.

"Everyone really thinks it's dynamite," said Ms. Carson.

She said the restaurant gets strong support from the community and also attracts many people on their way to cottage country.

New Technology Ignores Worker

CALGARY (CP) — Effects of technological changes on employees are not considered before the changes are implemented, says Dr. Stephen Peitchinis, a University of Calgary economist.

"Among the multitude of companies I've examined, I haven't found one where detailed consideration was given to the effect that changes would have on employees," he said in an interview.

Peitchinis, who is conducting research on the effects of new technology for the federal department of industry, trade and commerce, attributed most of Canada's current unemployment to technological changes.

Unemployment is unlikely to decrease by more than two per cent because there is not room for as many workers in the labor force even if the Canadian economy becomes more prosperous, he said.

Canada is at a stage where the revolutionary change in technology is comparable to the peak of the Industrial Revolution, he added.

"I don't think people have a total appreciation of the magnitude of change taking place."

When mechanization eliminated jobs in agriculture, manufacturing and construction, people moved to service industries.

"What we are facing now—and this is the most frightening thing—is that the introduction of computer communications systems is affecting most significantly the areas in the service sector that were absorbing most of the labor force.

"Where will these people go? Frankly, I don't know."

Peitchinis said the computer, originally designed to store data and formulas for complex computations, now can make programmed decisions and can select the best of several alternatives.

It can be programmed to run a machine, fly an airplane or mix ingredients in a certain way to make a product, then change the mix every so often for a different product.

It can provide information in graphs, charts, tables and drawings.

"It relieves the decision-maker of a very important function.

"And need I tell you what it will do in relation to thousands of people such as draftsmen and people whose job it is to draw?"

Computers undoubtedly will assume even more responsibilities in the future, he said.

"When I read some of the literature on it, I get totally frightened because the nature of change being described creates an environment of a few people setting up a system, and the system virtually looking after itself."

For example, all banking could be done now without bank branches. The instant-bank boxes could be used for all banking.

"They are only prevented from doing it at present because they haven't figured out some implications such as confidentiality," Peitchinis said.

"Banks would also like to undertake service activities—billing and collection—for small businesses and private practitioners. Whenever the individual makes a purchase, it would be automatically deducted from his bank account."

The department of finance has forbidden this to date because of the need for protection of confidentiality and financial controls, Peitchinis said, but he expects the role of such systems to expand.

The problem was how to make the transformation to leisure less painful for many people.

There were some "dreadful implications" to technological change.

"It has the capacity to centralize.

"The vice-president of a bank linked to the computer can have information about any branch before the branch manager does. It has the potential of Orwellian surveillance."

Because the person with access to the main body of information has power, "it has tremendous implications for managers."

"Who will have access to what information and for what purposes are matters of extreme importance."

Peitchinis said he is optimistic about man's demonstrated ability to accommodate adversity and trends.

"The initial results of the Industrial Revolution seemed rather frightening, too.

"But subsequently, it was realized people had the capacity to turn a development with potentially disastrous consequences into a benefit for humanity."

COCAINE USE RISES

NEW YORK (AP) — Cocaine traffic into the U.S. is increasing at a rate far higher than government estimates indicate, a narcotics committee said Monday. More than 200 tons of cocaine a year, almost five times the amount estimated by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency, are shipped out of Bolivia and Peru each year, a spokesman said, adding that about 160 tons reach U.S. and European markets.

TOURISTS ROBBED

U.S. vacationers lost $630 when thieves pried open the trunk of their car at Thetis Lake Park Sunday, and stole two purses, Mrs. Vivian Patterson of Rainier, Orgeon, told Colwood police.

RCMP said a pry bar was used to jimmy the trunk. The incident occurred at 3 p.m., and police issued a warning to picnickers that break-ins are common in the parking lot of the park, and not to leave valuables in cars, even in the trunk.

Recycled Water to Aid Desert Farmers

NORTHGLENN, Colo. (AP) — It's an old problem in the arid west: Does water go to cities and towns for use in homes and industry or to farmers who need it to irrigate crops?

This suburb of Denver thinks it has an answer: Take it from the farmers, use it for the city and give it back to the farmers.

The proposal represents total recycling of all water used by the city and officials here are touting it as the water system of the future in the western United States.

It will cost $31 million to build the system, and Northglenn's 33,000 residents recently voted the bond money to launch the project.

The proposal has the backing of city officials and the local farm organization whose water would be used. It calls for building a new city water and sewage system that would borrow water being stored for irrigation, use it in the city, clean it up and return it to the farmers with a 10-per-cent water bonus.

Northglenn now buys its water from the neighboring town of Thornton, which is running short itself and has told Northglenn to seek water elsewhere. Despite the $31-million price tag, city officials said Northglenn would come out ahead by borrowing rather than buying more water.

In addition to getting its water essentially free, they said, the city would not have to pay to treat its used water to the highest level of purity because the farmers want some of the nutrients left in the water to fertilize their crops.

The plan calls for the city to borrow up to 8,000 acre-feet of water a year from a lake now used by the Farmers Reservoir and Irrigation Co. to store irrigation water owned by individual farmers. An acre-foot is enough to cover one acre with one foot of water, about 326,000 gallons.

The water would be used by Northglenn residents for such everyday purposes as watering lawns and washing dishes. Then the used water—now in the form of sewage—would be collected and treated for irrigation use.

The water used by the city, along with treated rain runoff from city streets, would be pumped into a 300-acre reservoir and then released for use on about 16,000 acres of land on the dry plains north and east of Denver.

Adolph Boalenger, president of Farmers Reservoir and Irrigation Co., said a majority of the firm's farmer-shareholders have approved taking part in the plan.

The potassium, nitrates and other nutrients in the water would save farmers between $30 and $100 an acre in fertilizer costs, city officials said.

WHALERS SIGN PELOFFY

HARTFORD (AP) — Andre Peloffy, the American Hockey League's leading scorer last season, has signed a contract with the World Hockey Association New England Whalers. Terms were not disclosed.

Are you still smoking?

We're not telling you anything you don't know when we acknowledge that a controversy about smoking exists.

And since we're in the business of selling cigarettes, you obviously know where we stand.

If you don't smoke, we're not about to persuade you to start. But if you do, we'd like to persuade you to try a cigarette you'll like more than the one you're smoking now.

We mean Vantage, of course.

Vantage gives you the flavour of a full-flavour cigarette. It gives you all the flavour you want in a cigarette with a lot less of what you don't want.

That's a simple statement of truth.

We don't want you to misunderstand us. There are some cigarettes that filter out more than Vantage does, but you probably won't enjoy smoking them.

The way we see it, a cigarette that doesn't draw easily just isn't worth smoking.

If you agree with us, we think you'll enjoy Vantage.

Warning: Health and Welfare Canada advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked—avoid inhaling. 11 mg. "tar" 0.8 mg. nicotine.

Lily Not Necessarily a Lily

The term "lily" is applied to many of our garden plants that are not true lilies nor even related to true lilies, but somewhere in the past the flowers were thought to resemble lilies and the names have persisted.

Not that it matters very much until show time comes around, for then we find judges are very particular about the flowers or plants that are entered in the classes for lilies.

Many exhibitors have lost a first prize, and even the Best-in-the-Show award through entering a plant or flower with the word lily in its common name in the class for lilies. In its correct class, or in a class for any other plant (or flower), it would have swept the board, but all the judge can do when it is in the wrong class is to disqualify the entry.

For this reason many show committees have reworded the lily class to read, "any species of the genus Lilium".

This definitely excludes some 45 plants with lily as part of their common name, many of which are commonly seen in local gardens.

Some belong in the Lily Family, but not the genus Lilium, while others represent the Amaryllis, Calla, Crowfoot, Ginger, Iris, and Waterlily families.

Garden plants that do not qualify are Day-lily, Glory-lily, Lily-of-the-Nile, Lily-of-the-Valley, Plantain-lily, Toad-lily, torch-lily, Belladona-lily, Chinese-sacred-lily, Guernsey-lily, Kafir-lily, Scarborough-lily, Jacobean-lily, Spider-lily, Zephyr-lily, Calla-lily, Water-lily, to name a few that are found in local gardens.

The gardener is still left to determine which are the true lilies, and this is where a garden encyclopedia comes in handy.

The true lilies are listed under "Lilium", and Prof. Bailey in Hortus Second gives some 83 species plus hybrids and varieties. At the end of his list are all the so-called lilies. The novice at exhibiting would do well to consult a copy at the library before making entries.

There is one other way in which the true lilies can be identified. The plant grows from a scaly bulb and has leaves the entire length of the flower stem.

It will be found that most of the so-called lilies do not satisfy both of these conditions, but there are a few exceptions.

The Crown Imperial, for example, has a bulb and leaves on the flower stems, and while it belongs in the lily family its genus is Fritillaria.

It comes as a surprise to gardeners when they are told the beautiful "Fall Crocus" so many writers rave about at this time of year are not fall crocus since they do not belong to the Crocus family. They are Colchicums (Kolkee-kums) and belong in the lily family.

Generally speaking, however, no bulb with scales, or no leaves on the flower stem, means no true lilly.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

'POLICE-STATE' BYLAW—RESIDENTS

North Saanich council will vote next month on a zoning bylaw which includes controversial regulations governing in-law suites.

A public hearing was held Monday on the bylaw which some residents describe as "too restrictive" and containing "police-state" regulations.

The main objections centre on a regulation which would allow the municipal clerk to inspect at any reasonable time without notice single family dwellings containing an in-law suite.

The basic aim of the regulation is to prevent a homeowner from gradually turning a single family dwelling into a boarding house. In-law suites are for aged parents, grandparents or close relatives.

The bylaw, if approved will also prohibit the subdivision of properties of less than seven acres in certain areas, except by special application.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR CHANGE OF NAME

NOTICE is hereby given that an application will be made to the Director of Vital Statistics for a change of name, pursuant to the provisions of the "Change of Name Act," by Me; Shiela Rose Mahon, of Apt. 412, 430 Michigan St., in Victoria, in the Province of British Columbia, as follows: To change my name from Shiela Rose Mahon to Shiela Rose Bayly.
Dated this 25th day of August, A.D. 1977.
Shiela Mahon

Stained Glass Classes

A new course in stained glass work is being arranged in the 1977 fall program of Peninsula Recreation.

Instructor Ed Price will teach beginners how to cut glass and work with colored scrap glass and lead, completing such small projects as planter bases, pictures or small lamps.

Classes will be held at 7:30 p.m. Mondays from Sept. 19 to Nov. 28 at the North Saanich School.

Registrations should be made at the Panorama Leisure Centre from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sept. 8 or 9 and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sept. 10.

Further information on other fall programs this fall is available from the Peninsula recreation commission, 656-7271.

Stolen Tools Recovered

The $3,000 worth of tools stolen from a Brentwood Bay construction site Saturday night were recovered Sunday morning by Central Saanich police.

A resident living about 1½ blocks from the site called police to say she had found a bunch of tools piled in a corner of her property.

The tools were returned to Frisia Construction. The culprits have not been found.

PERU LIFTS EMERGENCY

LIMA (AP) — Peru's military government is lifting the state of emergency it declared 13 months ago and restoring constitutional guarantees, President Francisco Morales Bermudez said Sunday. The government put the country under a state of emergency last year after violent street demonstrations protesting increases in gasoline prices and public transportation fares.

Heart Failure

ASUNCION, Paraguay (Reuter) — Nazi war criminal Eduard Roschmann, the so-called "butcher of Riga," died of heart failure, says an autopsy report published more than two weeks after his death. He died within a month of fleeing here from Buenos Aires, Argentina, where he faced extradition to West Germany.

THE CORPORATION OF THE DISTRICT OF CENTRAL SAANICH

PUBLIC NOTICE

A Public Hearing will be held in the Central Saanich Municipal Hall on the 6th day of September, 1977, commencing at 7:00 p.m. to hear all persons who deem their interests in property affected by By-Law No. 514, a By-Law authorizing a Land Use Contract relating to a subdivision of the following lands:

Plan of Subdivision of Lot 6, Plan 488, Section 6, Range 2 East, South Saanich District.

A copy of the above mentioned Draft By-Law and Land Use Contract may be inspected at the Municipal Hall, 1903 Mt. Newton X Rd., from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday, following the printing of this notice, until the day of the hearing.

One Limb, But a Will of Iron ... And She's Able to Prove It

By FRANK JONES
Toronto Star

TORONTO (CP) — "Ah, a bicycle!" cried Rosanne LaFlamme when a reporter cycled across Centre Island to interview her. "May I?" And she jumped on and pedalled off at a furious rate across the park.

And that's something you don't expect of a 40-year-old woman who lost both legs and one arm in a childhood accident.

Earlier in the day the Quebec City woman had been water-skiing on Long Pond to show handicapped youngsters at a waterski clinic that it's the will to do it that counts.

At one point she wiped out and lost one of her artificial legs in the water. She laughed and shouted, "It floats! It floats!" Then she put it on and tried again.

Embarrassment doesn't worry Rosanne any more.

"I have only one life to live," she said. "I have no time to be shy. I love to swim. It doesn't make any difference to me if people don't want to see me swim. They can go away."

Rosanne is a well-known figure in Quebec. Her book about her life, Rosanne, Un seul membre . . . mais une volante de fer, (One limb, but a will of iron) is on the best-seller lists and she constantly gets letters from the handicapped and the downhearted thanking her for the inspiration of her example.

But the advent of Rosanne, super athlete, started only six years ago.

"My friends got married one by one and I had to face solitude," said Rosanne, a warmly attractive woman wearing a smart green pantsuit.

She met a Belgian physical education teacher, Jacques Vanden Abeele, who told her, "You are lucky. You can walk, so you should try to play as many sports as you can."

"He challenged me, and I understood the challenge," said Rosanne. "Since then, everything I can try, I try."

The first challenge—to learn to swim—was the hardest.

"I didn't have the self-confidence," she said. "Without legs I couldn't reach the bottom of the pool and I used to hold on to my instructor really hard.

"And when I tried to swim, because I have only one arm, I would go in circles. Then one day I saw a woman without legs at all (Rosanne lost her legs just below the knees) swimming beautifully.

"I went home and said, 'Rosanne, if she can do it, you can too.' I jumped right into the pool the next time, and I could swim. It's just a matter of equilibrium."

Not satisfied with just swimming, Rosanne learned to dive.

Today she tackles the most difficult ski slopes, and in 1973 she came sixth in the international championships for the handicapped in the French Alps.

She has learned to drive a car, she rides a 10-speed bicycle, plays badminton and, of course, water-skis.

This summer's project is to learn to play tennis.

"I've already bought my equipment," she said.

Born on a farm 60 miles south of Quebec City, Rosanne was picking berries in a hayfield at the age of 3½ when her father, not seeing her, ran over her with his mower.

"The poor man," she said. "He is still alive. The poor man."

Friends and neighbors donated $300 and she received her first pair of artificial legs at the age of 5, but she rejected them.

But they left the legs for her to play with and one day she tried them on.

"I was used to walking on my knees, and suddenly I seemed so tall."

By today's standards the legs were ugly and ungainly.

"They hurt me for many years. Today it is different.

These are beautiful legs." She drew up her pant leg to show their smooth shape.

"Even the doctors I meet can't imagine that I am wearing artificial legs."

At the village school, Rosanne encountered ridicule from other children. She had a nervous breakdown at 13 and quit school. Her mother, skilled at handicrafts, taught her to knit and crochet.

But at 24 Rosanne decided to face the world again and took courses in shorthand and typing.

"The hardest part was people staring at me on the street. But I decided if they were going to stare at me I would stare back. And it worked. They still look, but I don't notice it now.

"I feel I am a normal person. And I can do a lot of things other people can't do."

But there is still a hurt. "It has been difficult for me as a woman," she said. "I think those who are not handicapped think we cannot love. Well, I have a heart like everybody else.

"When I went steady with boys, their friends discouraged them. They said, 'She wouldn't make a good wife,' and so on. And they would drop me."

Clothes were a problem too.

"When I was young it was impossible for me to wear long pants—they were too tight. And the mini-skirt was not for me. But now I can wear almost anything."

For 14 years Rosanne was a typing and shorthand teacher in a private school in Quebec City. But this summer, due to dropping enrolment, she was offered a lower salary so she quit.

With her book selling well, "I am not in a hurry to take another job."

When she does, she would like to work in an area where she can help the handicapped.

City Men Top UVic Students

Two young Victoria men shared first place with the highest marks of 6,800 undergraduates who wrote examinations at the end of the 1976-77 year at the University of Victoria.

Derek Dart Ming Chu of 528 Pandora Ave. and Geoffrey Samuel Cheshire of 889 Transit Rd. achieved perfect nine point grade averages, the equivalent of straight A-plus in all courses.

Chu, a third-year student in arts and science, took UVic's most prestigious award, the R. T. Wallace Scholarship of $900 which is given to senior students on an honors program. He also won the Francis Gold Wrist Watch.

Cheshire, a first-year student in arts and science, was awarded the B.C. 1958 Centennial Scholarship of $800 and the Ocean Construction Supplies Ltd. Scholarship of $100.

It is rare for a first-year student to take a top award since "a freshman must take such a mixed bag of courses and this makes it difficult to obtain perfect marks," Nels Granewall of the awards committee said.

"Senior students usually get the highest marks because they are able to specialize."

Chu has enrolled in the faculty of medicine at the University of Calgary while Cheshire will concentrate on mathematics and physics in his academic career.

John A. Fawcett of 57 Wellington St., had the highest marks in the second year of arts and science with an 8.7 average and received $700 in awards including the B.C. Telephone Co. Scholarship ($100), the Edward J. Savannah Savannah Memorial Scholarship ($350), and a President's Scholarship ($250).

In the faculty of education top senior student was Gwen Stott of Sidney with an 8.36 grade point average. The third-year student received the Clearihue Bursary, worth $550.

Adrienne Brown, a second-year education student, won the faculty of Education Memorial Scholarship of $582 with an 8.4 average.

The top student in third year in the faculty of fine arts with an 8.6 average was Claude Eli McLean, of Regina, who received a $500 Taylor Scholarship in Music and a $100 President's Scholarship.

Wendy Rankin of Nanoose Bay was the top first-year student in fine arts with an 8.13 average. She received a Woods Trust Scholarship of $300.

$100 Gold Coin Marking Queen's Jubilee

METICULOUS WORK is required to put the finishing touches to the die which will produce the Royal Mint's new $100 gold coin. Below, mint worker Ago Aarand produces the die to its exact size.

The Royal Canadian Mint In ottawa is in the process of striking the first new Canadian $100 gold coin to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the accession to the throne of Queen Elizabeth II.

The mint will only produce up to a maximum of 300,000 of this legal tender coin which will contain a half ounce of gold and will be available for sale from September to December, 1977, at a cost of $140 each.

The obverse of the 22-karat coin will bear Machin's effigy of the Queen and the inscription "Silver Jubilee — Elizabeth II 1952-1977 — 25 ans de regne".

On the reverse of the coin is an attractive design depicting the official flowers of Canada's provinces and territories, drawn by Toronto artist Raymond Lee.

Jean-Pierre Goyer, minister of supply and services, said, "With this gold coin, Canada is presenting to Elizabeth II, its queen, a bouquet of Canadian flowers in honor of her Silver Jubilee."

The first striking will be held at the Hull mint which specializes in the production of numismatic-quality proof and brilliant uncirculated coins. Yvon Gariepy, master of the mint, said, "This is one of the most beautiful coins struck by the mint."

PLASTER MOLD will eventually become the die for a $100 gold coin, after it is reduced in size. Walter Ott discusses the mold with Raymond Lee (left), the Toronto artist who designed the reverse of the coin.

Faith in Turkish Sultan Drove Ubykhs to Oblivion

SOCHI, Soviet Union (Reuter) — Just over a century ago an entire people said goodbye to their homeland along this rugged coastline and crossed the Black Sea to resettle in Turkey.

For the 25,000 refugees who boarded ships sent by the Turkish sultan it was the start of a journey into historical oblivion.

They were the Ubykhs, Moslems from the Caucasus region who regarded the sultan as their religious head.

The Ubykh men were famed for their valor even among the warlike tribes of the Caucasus. Ubykh women were said to be the most beautiful in the sultan's harem.

But fate turned against them in early 1864 when a Russian army was sent into Ubykh territory along the eastern shore of the Black Sea to conquer it for the czar.

Defeated, the Ubykhs chose to go to Turkey rather than accept Russia's offer of new lands on the plains of the Kuban, to the north.

Today the shores from which they once traded with Constantinople are invaded every year by three million or more tourists from all over the Soviet Union and Eastern and Western Europe.

The mountain valleys where the Ubykhs lived now echo to the noise of sightseers' buses and tourist laden airliners.

It is hard to imagine that in the summer of 1864, in the words of a czarist historian, the land of the Ubykhs resembled an "uninhabited desert."

Not for long, though. Settlers soon moved in from Russia, Greece, Moldavia and elsewhere.

By 1969 Sochi was known as the Caucasian riviera. In the years that followed the 1917 Bolshevik revolution millions of rubles were lavished on the sanatoria and hotels built along the coast—a spending spree that continues to this day.

The story is told in a new historical novel which provides a rare insight into the fate of the Ubykhs.

Entitled The Last of Those Who Left, it is the work of Bagrat Shinkuba, a noted Soviet author who is also president of the Abkhazian autonomous republic, just south of here.

Shinkuba tells of the Ubykhs' exodus and gradual assimilation in Turkey through the person of Zaurkan Zolak, an Ubykh centenarian who said he was the last survivor of 1864.

Zolak, Shinkuba says, was traced and interviewed in Turkey in 1940 by a young Soviet philologist (language expert).

In the novel the old man says that instead of being free to settle where they chose, as the Turkish government had promised, the Ubykhs were split up and given barren land in remote areas of the country.

He also tells how Turkish authorities prevented the Ubykhs from opening their own schools and forced them to worship in a Turkish mosque.

The young philologist, having listened to Zolak's long account, comes to the conclusion that it was the Turkish policy of assimilation that sealed the Ubykhs' fate.

"From the day that they boarded the ships in the hope of discovering a heaven on earth in Turkey they doomed themselves to gradual extinction."

Deaf Indian Finds a Way

KASHECHEWAN, Ont. (CP) — A professor from France has been in this Cree Indian settlement since Aug. 23 studying a 76-year-old native he believes may have developed his own system of sign language. Only one such case has ever been recorded.

Stephen Rufus has been deaf since birth, but is able to communicate with family and friends through a system of signs.

Prof. S. C. Yau of the National Signs Research Centre of Paris said in a recent interview that Rufus's case is similar to that of a Polynesian islander who was discovered by linguistics experts in 1973.

Yau said it seems unlikely Rufus was taught sign language by an outsider because he is living in an isolated community. He said Rufus probably improvised his own form of non-verbal communication.

Yau first heard of the case from Prof. C. Douglas Ellis of the Canadian Linguistics Institute at Montreal's McGill University.

Ellis has been studying the Cree dialect spoken in the James and Hudson Bay lowland area.

Yau is accompanied by three graduate students from the linguistics department at McGill. He said he is unfamiliar with Cree culture and is unable to speak the language.

Yau has clipped pictures from magazines, depicting wildlife native to the North and said he hopes to match Rufus's signs with the pictures. He said he is looking for the mechanism behind the sign language.

The professor said about 12 persons can communicate with Rufus who has been confined to a wheelchair because of the loss of one leg.

The research on Rufus might "give us some insight into the Indian way of thinking," he said.

Kaschechewan is about 240 air miles north of Timmins, Ont.

CHAMPION STEER $4.10 A POUND

VANCOUVER (CP)—Super-Valu Ltd. bid $4.10 a pound Monday to purchase the 1,077-pound grand champion 4-H steer at the Pacific National Exhibition market steer sale.

Bill Colvin of Border Beef 4-H Club grossed $4,415.70 for his champion.

Reserve grand champion, shown by Robert Steffler of Saanich Beef Club, went to Woodwards Stores Ltd. at $2.05 a pound, grossing $2,162.75 for the 1,055-pound steer.

The sale continued until 161 market steers, groomed by 4-H members from Vancouver Island, Fraser Valley and South Okanagan youngsters are sold.

Sale averages for the 4-H and open market lamb sale Monday have been tabulated 36 4-H lambs averaged 96 cents a pound, 74 open class lambs 72 cents and 12 carcasses $1.28.

Sale gross was $5,985.48, total weight 7,830 pounds and over-all average 76 cents a pound.

Legal Classes Growing in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Patti Pearcey, co-ordinator of Vancouver People's Law School, says simple law education was an unserviced area here before her group was formed, and there still is a big need for it.

The group, which began in a law student's laundry room five years ago, has gone on to offer free law classes and current affairs seminars almost every week, publish 18 booklets on legal topics, produce video-taped law programs for distribution around British Columbia and help 35 communities set up their own public legal education programs.

It also operates an informal referral service for those needing legal advice, has begun a law library and sends a weekly column to 100 newspapers throughout the province.

Miss Pearcey has been with the group from the beginning, when Diana Davidson received an Opportunities for Youth grant to hire other University of B.C. law students to give free law classes.

When the grant ended, the school moved into Miss Davidson's laundry room and volunteer staff kept classes gong while the group scrambled for funds. Recently, it moved into a regular office.

Classes usually run three evenings and cover a variety of topics such as unemployment insurance, immigration law, wills, estates, co-op housing, native land claims and homosexuals and the law.

Turnout has been as high as 900 but classes usually attract between 60 and 100 people.

Miss Pearcey says response to the classes offered has been so good in the city's Chinese community that the group hopes to begin offering para-legal training there so "people can carry on, if anything happens to us."

It has also taken on a regular Punjabi instructor in attempts to reach the city's East Indian population.

Eight people staff the school. Their jobs involve booklet production, video production, publicity and distribution, handling inquiries and working with community groups and bar associations to set up similar legal education programs elsewhere.

The school is trying to raise funds to set up paral-legal training, where skilled non-professionals would be able to teach and help people with simpler areas of law like unemployment insurance appeals and small claims.

Miss Pearcey says this would make the law much more accessible to people as lawyers don't do any welfare or unemployment insurance appeals, and small claims cases.

CALGARY BLAST LEVELS HOUSE

CALGARY (CP) — An explosion rocked a residential area of southwest Calgary early today, levelling one house and damaging at least 10 neighboring homes.

There were no immediate reports of death or injuries, but the fate of the occupants of 4707 17th Ave. S.W., where the explosion occurred at about 2:30 a.m., was unknown.

Several occupants of neighboring houses were sent to hospital for treatment of schock.

Firemen said the cause of the explosion was still under investigation.

The force of the explosion was so powerful that windows were broken in houses up to seven blocks away. Debris fell several hundred square feet in all directions and the explosion was seen and heard several miles away.

Neighbors Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kacsmar, whose walls crumpled, thought it was an earthquake.

A police spokesman said the explosion apparently involved natural gas and foul play is not suspected.

NATIONAL ECONOMY FALTERS

Ottawa Sticks to Budget

Times News Service

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald will stick with the policies of his March 31 budget despite a weak economic performance between April and June, and is not planning a new budget, spokesmen say.

Production in the national economy declined at a 2.4 per cent annual rate in the second quarter, the third quarterly decline in the past year, Statistics Canada said Monday.

Macdonald said the figures do not properly reflect underlying trends in the economy.

There will be an improvement in the third quarter, between July and September, he predicted.

By that time, the 1.2 billion of tax cuts offered corporations in the March 31 budget should be having an effect, he added.

The second-quarter fall in the annual rate raised fears of a new recession.

It was the third quarter in the past year during which real output has fallen.

Statistics Canada said it is still too early to say that the economy has slipped into recession, although weak economic conditions currently mean "recession cannot be ruled out."

Economists generally regard three quarters of declining output as a recession.

They also say a five-percent annual growth rate for GNP is necessary to keep the economy expanding and avoid rising unemployment.

The national unemployment rate in July was 8.1 per cent, leaving about 878,000 Canadians jobless.

The July inflation rate, measured by the consumer price index, was 8.4 per cent, well above the target of six per cent set out in the anti-inflation program as the target for 1977.

Statistics Canada also reported Monday that Canada's trade deficit soared to $6.5 billion in the second quarter as imports rose and exports were unchanged from earlier in the year.

PM Vetoes Fall Election Plea, But Cabinet Shuffle Rumored

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau Monday afternoon gave "thumbs down" to his closest political advisers on their proposal for a fall federal election.

But chances of a major cabinet shuffle in thenext few weeks have increased.

Several current cabinet members are rumored to be on their way out, including controversial Jean Pierre Goyer and External Affairs Minister Donald Jamieson.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald is now expected to leave for a private law practice in Toronto, most likely to be replaced by Jean Chretien who would prefer the finance portfolio to a new career in Quebec provincial politics.

Veterans Affairs Minister Dan MacDonald is also rumored to be slated for a Senate seat, with the possibility that Eugene Whelan would fill his post.

Some newcomers from the backbenches are expected to be elevated to cabinet posts, including Hugh Poulin of Ottawa-centre, to re-establish the tradition of having an Eastern Ontario cabinet minister.

Jack Horner, minister without portfolio, was quoted in a published report as saying Trudeau plans to call an election.

Horner could not be reached to confirm the statement. He was on route to Ottawa from his Alberta ranch where he has spent most of his time since the last session of Parliament adjourned several weeks ago.

One party spokesman said Horner has been out of touch with party activities during the holiday. But a Horner aide said he has returned to Ottawa several times for cabinet-level meetings.

The report also quoted Horner as saying Trudeau will announce a cabinet shuffle before calling an election.

Trudeau met privately last week with party campaign chairman Keith Davey, his principal secretary Jim Coutts, Government House leader Allan MacEachen and Health Minister Marc Lalonde to discuss an election.

New Strike Hits Island Sawmills

Vancouver Island sawmills, only recently back to normal after being hit last week by a series of strikes, were disrupted again today by a new group of unhappy workers.

Last week, welders and mechanics walked off the job, and today, filers, members of the International Woodworkers of America, followed suit.

They threw up picket lines at three mills in the area covered by the IWA's Duncan local, closing down the operations and idling about 750 workers.

There are about 70 filers at the three operations — Saltair sawmill in Ladysmith, MacMillan Bloedel's sawmill in Chemainus and the Japanese-owned CIPA operation in Nanaimo.

In the Victoria area, about 12 filers booked off sick, six at the Sooke Forest Products mill in Sooka and the rest from B.C. Forest Products operation on Garbally Road.

Both mills were still operating this morning but Jim Warr, manager of BCFP's Victoria division, said if the filers remained off much past noon, the 20 members of sawmillcrew would have to be laid off.

"We don't know what's the matter with them or why they are sick," Warr said.

Roger Lewis, president of the IWA's Victoria local, said the filers' concern is slightly different than that of the welders and mechanics whose strike last week at one time closed eight sawmills and idled more than 4,000 workers.

One of the filers' complaints, he said, is that there isn't enough of a spread between the rates paid those in the three job classifications in the filing rooms.

He said those on the lowest scale earn $9.09 an hour and on the other end, benchmen get $9.29.

As a result, he said, there is no incentive for a worker to move from one classification to another. The issue was raised during recent negotiations with the industry, he said, but the companies refused to budge.

Jack Reiser, first vice-president of the Duncan local, said union officials are attempting to meet with the filers to impress upon them their walkout is unauthorized by the union and that they should return to work.

S. AFRICA TO PLEASE ITSELF

DURBAN (Reuter) — South Africa has reserved the right to use its nuclear potential for other than peaceful purposes to suit its own needs, Finance Minister Owen Horwood said today.

Speaking at a Natal provincial congress of the governing National party, Senator Horwood said South Africa has given an assurance that its nuclear program is aimed at peaceful uses and stands by that assurance.

But if South Africa decides to use its nuclear potential in any other way, it will do so according to its own needs and it alone will make the decision, he said.

Both Prime Minister John Vorster and Foreign Minister Pik Botha have said South Africa has no intention of developing such a weapon.

Peace Safari Doomed?

Times News Services

NAIROBI — Andrew Young and David Owen arrived in Kenya today on their African peace safari, silent on their proposals to end bloodshed in Rhodesia which have met opposition from virtually every quarter.

Young told a news conference the two men's African swing "has been a very interesting trip thus far," but both Western envoys dodged questions about their faltering discussions with white and black leaders.

Owen and Young were scheduled to spend a low-key Wednesday briefing Kenyan leaders and William Eteki, secretary-general of the 49-nation Organization of African Unity, while awaiting the outcome of the Rhodesian elections before flying to Salisbury Thursday to resume substantive discussions.

Mekanwhile, a Johannesburg source said today that South Africa refuses to lend its crucial endorsement to the plan for a peaceful shift to black rule in Rhodesia.

The source, said the snag was over who would control Rhodesia's armed forces during the transition to black rule.

South African Prime Minister John Vorster said he was not prepared to endorse part of the plan requiring that black nationalist guerrillas be included in the armed forces and putting the military under the control of a UN peacekeeping force, the source said.

In Salisbury, Prime Minister Ian Smith, on the eve of the election he is expected to win by a landslide, predicted today the plan for black rule will fail.

Smith scheduled a final election eve appeal on radio and television for a mandate to reject any Anglo-American majority rule plan.

Heather Hough displays new metric speed signs

METRIC ROAD SIGNS GOING UP THURSDAY

Metric highway signs will go up as scheduled Thursday despite a delay in government advertising advising motorists of the change, a highways ministry spokesman said today.

Ray Bain said the program starts the same day as elsewhere in Canada.

School zone speed limits will be the first signs to be changed, with the work slated to be completed by the time schools resume Sept. 6.

The new school zone signs will read 30 km-h, which is slightly slower than the current speed limit of 20 miles per hour.

All other highways distance and speed limit signs will be converted by the end of the month. The changeover will be immediate and no dual signs will be displayed.

Highways Minister Alex Fraser said Monday the advertising campaign was delayed because Royal assent to the metric legislation wasn't given until only 12 days ago.

The campaign will be stepped up over the next month and all drivers will be expected to know metric equivalents within the next two to three weeks.

Fraser said police have been asked to take it easy on motorists at the beginning of the program.

But Victoria-area police stid they have received no such instruction.

"I can't understand anyone making a statement like that," said Saanich police Insp. Ted Owens.

"There'll be no difference in the way we enforce speed limits here," he said. "I don't think anyone is going to be so foolish as to try to argue he didn't know a "50 limit meant miles and not kilometers — that's just too big a difference in speeds."

Owens said he does not anticipate problems.

While the highways ministry is responsible for changing signs on provincial highways throughout the province — there are an estimated 25,000 to be changed — each municipality will have to convert signs within its own boundaries.

Saanich engineer Cliff Warren said removal of the old signs will begin next week and the new signs installed by the end of the month. The changeover involves aboout 22 signs and will cost about $7,000.

The conversion in Victoria may be slightly delayed as council has yet to have its bylaw amended to allow the move, Traffic engineer Derek Wild said.

He said the signs are ready and were produced at a cost of about $1,500.

Wild said he expects conversion to be completed by the middle of the month. Only one sign, a clearance sign for a railway bridge in Vic West, will carry dual measurements for a time.

Although metric conversion has been several years in coming, and has been widely advertised in the media, there appears to be a lot of misunderstanding about what the program entails, a spokesman for the B.C. Automibile Association in Vancouver said.

Riots End U.K. Carnival

By FRANK RUTTER
Times London Bureau

LONDON — The throb of the steel drums that lured a quarter of a million people into the Notting Hill district of West London became the plop of tin cans and bottles and the clunk of bricks against police riot shields Monday night.

After Monday's violent finish to what was billed as a two-day West Indian festival, police said they made 227 arrests in the two days.

During the pitched battles with gangs of black youths, 139 persons, including 30 policemen, were treated for their injuries.

Seventeen persons, including nine police officers, still are in hospital today.

The two-day festivity of Jamaican-style flamboyant costumes and travelling steel bands was a high-spirited and happy occasion until the violence began shortly after dusk Monday.

Gangs of youths apparently began fighting among themselves, then turned on police. They hurled bottles and stones and fought officers in bitter hand-to-hand combat.

Ambulances wailed into and out of the area around the Portobello Road, an antique and junk market regularly patronized by tourists, to shuttle the injured to hospitals.

"It is tragic," said David Lane, chairman of the Commission for Racial Equality, "that after the efforts of the organizers, their stewards, the police and the public to ensure a successful carnival, the occasion was spoiled by a few hundred rampaging youths."

Just like other violence this summer the disruption of the carnival at Notting Hill had been widely feared and predicted.

In relative terms, it affected only a small part of the carnival, although its first victims were mostly white spectators where money was stolen.

But what might have been a racial volcano was more a clash between cops and robbers; the color in it may have been a reflection of local frustration but the motive appeared to be felonious.

It was another case of an event trying to live up to its advance publicity.

The London press, for weeks, had been running articles on conflict among the carnival organizers, the police and the local community.

PILOT CITED IN COCAINE CASE

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A CP air pilot and three others were scheduled to appear in provincial court today charged in connection with the seizure Sunday and Monday of 11 pounds of cocaine in a house here.

The DC-8 pilot, Edmund Carlield Walker, 35, of West Vancouver, and John Emerson, 28, of North Vancouver are charged with two counts of possession of cocaine for the purposes of trafficking. Emersons's wife, Donna, 28, and Richard Michael Zacks, 23, are charged with one count of possession of the drug for the purposes of trafficking.

Police said the seized drug has an estimated street value of $500,000.

Go-Slow Forty Suspended

Times News Services

LONDON—Striking air traffic control assistants went back to work in the London area today and the Civil Aviation Authority immediately suspended 40 of them who refused to promise to work without causing further disruption.

The action threatened to worsen an already complex situation, which has brought cancellation of nearly half of all scheduled flights involving British airports.

Assistants reporting for work at the midnight end of a four-day strike were asked to give a pledge to work normally. Their union intended to continue a traffic snarling slowdown, which was in force before the strike began.

When 40 of the assistants refused, they were suspended for 48 hours "to reflect," an aviation authority spokesman said.

"We see this as a highly provocative action," one union official said. "We are very angry," said another.

Officials had feared that the end of the all-out strike would only make an already bad situation worse if the traffic control assistants continued their slowdown.

The assistants' union said it was trying to co-ordinate the slowdown, which delayed hundreds of thousands of travellers for 10 days before their four-day strike, with slowdowns French and Spanish controllers are staging.

Assistant controllers at Prestwick, the Scottish airport that handles much trans-Atlantic traffic, remained on strike.

Crime, Drug Link to 50% Murder Victims

NEW YORK — A new profile of murder victims in New York City — disclosing, for the first time, that half of all victims had arrest records — has emerged from a police analysis of homicides committed here last year.

The study also showed that almost half of all murder victims had "detectable levels of alcohol, narcotics or both in their blood at the time of death."

Francis J. McLaughlin, the deputy police commissioner for public information, said that the study's finding with respect to the arrest records of homicide victims was "very surprising," but added that its full significance had to be examined further.

"The new information is helping us flesh out a portrait of murder victims and potential victims," he said.

Last year, according to figures previously made public, there were 1,622 homicides in the city, a decline of 23 murders or 1.4 per cent from the 1975 total. The homicide rate in New York City, as throughout the U.S. generally, has been declining or levelling off in recent years. During the first six motnths of 1977, there were 693 murders in the city, a decline of 24 homicides, or 3.3 per cent over the first half of 1976.

Of last year's victims, the new study showed, 867, or 53.5 per cent, had criminal records. Thirty-five victims had been arrested on murder charges. Of 1,024 suspects arrested on murder charges, 791 or 77.72 per cent had at leant one prior arrest. Forty suspects had been previously arrested for murder.

Drug crimes accounted for the largest single category of arrests for both victims and suspects — 12 per cent for the victims and 15.1 per cent for the suspects, followed by robbery (victims, 10.9 per cent; suspects, 13.6 per cent and assault (victims, 10.4 per cent; suspects, 10.8 per cent).

The study gave the following picture of murder victims and those arrested for murder:

— Young adults constituted the age group with the highest number of victims. About a third of all victims were in the under 21 to 30 age group. Youths between the ages of 16 and 20 made up 28.5 per cent of those arrested for murder.

— Males accounted for 81.6 per cent of the murder victims and 89.6 per cent of those arrested for murder.

— Nealy 48 per cent of all victims were black, while Hispanic people accountel for 30 per cent. This distribution also generally follows the pattern of recent years, except that last year there was a 50 per cent increase in the numbero of murders of Orientals — 33 homicides as compared with 15 in 1975.

— More than half of the victims were killed by friends or acquaintances during a dispute. The study noted that the

A man facing trial in county court in September had his own trials finding his way to court last week on the day for scheduling 27 cases.

When he didn't show at the Law Courts building at Blanshard and Burdett, a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

But he turned up in court about half-an-hour later.

His lawyer explained that he had gone first to provincial court on Fisgard Street and was directed to St. Ann's Academy where superior courts have been sitting for the last two years while renovations were made to the Law Courts.

All supreme and county court matters now are being held in the Law Courts building.

There's an ironic touch to the way in which Stanley Burke of the Nanaimo Times rented a room at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Friday.

The room was rented to hold a press conference demanding the release of the sick baby killer whale, Miracle, being nursed back to health in the hotel's swimming pool by Sealand of the Pacific.

It came as a shock to Sealand president Bob Wright to find the room had been booked in the name of Sealand. Burke, however, did pay the rental charge.

Vancouver Island singer Neil Arthurs, 31, who waited 15 years to make his first record, may cut his second within a week.

Arthurs last week wrote a tribute to Elvis Presley called King Upon the Throne, which he added to his show in Duncan. Radio people liked it and, at their request he made a tape which is playing on Victoria and up-Island stations.

On the weekend, Nashville expressed an interest in the song and a tape has been sent there. Now Arthurs is busy writing a song for the back of the record.

His first record, The Picker, is about to be released in Nashville with The Gear Jammer on the reverse.

Able-bodied city bus passengers are now requested to move to the back of the bus — at least past the first three seats.

All B.C. Hydro transit buses are reserving three seats at the front for elderly and handicapped passengers.

Decals will be placed on the windows above the designated seats of the 1,100 buses in Greater Vancouver and Greater Victoria that are involved.

Hydro hopes the public will help make the transit system easier for senior citizens and the handicapped by not using the reserved seats unless absolutely necessary.

Employee Theft A Big Business

Stealing is big business in Canada's department stores and employees are responsible for a growing percentage of the thefts.

The T. Eaton department stores alone estimate the annual stock loss at about $20 million across the country, with employee theft responsible for one-third, employee negligence responsible for another third and the rest due to shoplifters.

Jim Gourlay, company loss prevention manager at Eaton's, says companies have never liked to talk about the problem of employee theft, but the increase in the loss — two per cent of the company's total sales — is forcing employers to take a closer look.

Gourlay, who was in Victoria last week for the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police convention, doesn't know what caused the increase.

"It appears to be just a cyclical thing," he says. The last time losses were as high was in the late 1960s.

Losses decreased in the early '70s, then started rising in 1973. The increase is reflected in local statistics. Victoria police chief Jack Gregory notes the number of shoplifting complaints in the city rose from 2,443 in 1973 to 3,151 last year.

Gregory feels shoplifting is getting worse.

Gourlay, however, isn't convinced.

He believes the pendulum has started to swing the other way because of initiatives within the industry to not only attack the shoplifting problem, but to attack in a more public way the menace posed by employee theft and neglect.

It's one thing to try to find out who the 180,000 persons were who shoplifted at Eaton's stores last year, and why. It's quite another to try to ascertain how many of the 40,000 employees are taking the company for a ride.

Gourlay says that, based on the 9,000 persons actually caught shoplifting last year, the shoplifter could be just about anyone except the very rich or very poor.

The employee thief represents a broad spectrum, too.

There is a common attitude that big companies can afford losses and wouldn't miss stolen items.

Gourlay says the biggest deterrent is getting caught. Recidivism is low.

"Most of the shoplifters are pretty average Joes," he says. "They get caught and all of a sudden they are faced with the thought, 'Son-of-a-gun, I'm a thief.' "

B.C. firms are testing their employees with lie detectors in the fight against increasing employee thefts. See Page 6.

Sister Jacqueline Aubuchon of the Victoria community diversion centre agrees. If it is a deliberate theft, she says, many adults feel really humiliated and say it's never going to happen again. It doesn't, either.

For juveniles it's a case generally of peer pressure. Sometimes they are acting out, she says.

The situation with employee theft is more complex, for unlike shoplifters who often steal by impulse, employee thieves tend to be more purposeful, Gourlay suggests.

"They work the systems. They discover a loophole or see an error go uncorrected and undetected and decide to take advantage of the system's shortcoming."

The results can be staggering.

A cashier in a large department store in Montreal found a way of pocketing money from the till and had taken $43,000 over a three-year period before she was caught.

A truck driver in Toronto used a phoney invoice scheme to bilk a department store of $150,000 worth of merchandise.

Gourlay says shoplifters are usually caught in the act. But less than half are charged.

"If we charged everyone who took a $2 or $5 item, the police would be so deluged and the courts so glutted we wouldn't be helping the situation."

Gathering evidence on employee theft is much tougher.

Take the example of the cashier. She was charged with theft under $200 because the store could only prove she stole $110, even though she admitted taking $43,000. The problem was the store was unable to reconstitute the paperwork — the sales slips and cash register records — to show the full extent of the crime. As a result the woman got off with a small fine.

Gourlay says recovery of goods taken by employees is very low. If it's a one-shot crime, chances are the store will never find out. If it's a repeated theft then the person has obviously found a way to beat the system and will continue until detected. By then the goods will probably have been fenced. Such was the case with the truck driver. The store got back only 10 per cent of the goods stolen — $15,000 worth.

Stores are tackling the problem, says Gourlay, by reviewing their systems of checks and balances. But nothing, he says, replaces the ultimate weapon — a well-informed and conscientious staff.

No Shoplifting Mold

What's a typical shoplifter?

Just about anyone, according to Victoria police chief Jack Gregory.

"There is "just no sort of profile," of a typical shoplifter, Gregory says. Offenders range from adolescents to old people and even the practically infirm. Quite often, the offender has sufficient money to pay for the goods.

Younger people will steal to keep up with current trends, such as dress, if they don't have the money.

"With older people, I'm convinced they steal because of an attitude — of big corporations charging too much, or they can't afford it, or a feeling of insecurity or loneliness. The reasons run the whole gamut of personality."

In 1973, there were 2,443 complaints of theft under $200, increasing to 3,151 last year.

In 1973, there were 290 complaints of theft over $200, increasing to 432 last year.

Gregory agrees there are compulsive stealers, and some of them come from good backgrounds.

"It's a proven fact, I think, that psychiatrists say some people just can't help themselves from stealing."

Gregory says modern merchandising styles are another element to be considered, with some people becoming so impatient waiting to be served that they just decide to leave — with the goods.

Not all shoplifters who get caught end up at provincial court. First offenders may get the opportunity to participate in an alternative to courtroom appearance, at the Community Diversion Centre.

Police and court prosecutors are the main sources of referral, says Sister Jacqueline Aubuchon of the diversion centre.

The program consists of attending the centre three or four times, doing volunteer work, apologizing to the victim and making restitution for the theft.

About half those attending the program are adults and the other half are juveniles.

"Very few of these people in the last two years and nine months have been picked up again," she says.

In the past year, about 600 people have gone through the program, almost evenly divided between men and women.

Most people who shoplift have enough money in their pocket, she says. Often, for the first-offender adult, "they are busy, hectic, worried."

Only a few shoplift because they are poor, she says, and this appears more in NFS cheque offences.

Much shoplifting is "just plain temptation" and some of it is "sheer annoyance" at no service and people fed up waiting.

She believes shoplifting by the general public represents a minority of the theft losses at stores.

Most of the stealing — 75 per cent — is done by store employees, she says.

The same percentage of thefts by store employees was given four years ago by G. S. Cox, president of Cox Retail Audits Ltd. of Vancouver, which provides investigative security for some retail stores.

However, he declined to be interviewed recently on the telephone.

U.S. Dollar Premium Gets Close Scrutiny

A Sidney restaurant has removed its sign saying it pays no premium on the American dollar.

Victoria stores have posted signs saying they pay five per cent. Some are paying seven per cent.

It is part of a campaign of vigilance waged by chambers of commerce and the Visitors Information Centre to see that tourists get a fair break.

"We have urged visitors to complain to us if they do not get the premium on the American dollar," Visitors Information Centre manager Don Nixon said today.

"There are very few complaints. Most stores are offering at least five per cent. I don't know of any that are not offering at least that much.

"It was a different situation at the start of the summer. Some merchants said they wouldn't pay the premiumn because Canadians don't get the same treatment in the United States.

"We replied that there is no point in waging a campaign to welcome tourists if they are not going to get what they deserve for their dollar.

"Last summer the Canadidian dollar was worth much more and some Victoria stores, as a friendly gesture, accepted U.S. money at par. But this summer they started off by saying: I accepted it at par last year so I' only going to offer par this year.

"But it doesn't work that way. Americans know what their dollar is worth and they are entitled to complain if they don't get it."

The most recent complaint came from Sidney where a restaurant refused to pay a premium on U.S. money.

Hank Vissers, president of Sidney Chamber of Commerce, said the restaurant has subsequently changed its policy and the sign has been removed.

"Some Sidney merchants tell me they don't want to be bothered with American money. This is very strange to me. I wonder why they are in business," Vissers said.

"There are one or two stores at Friday Harbor (in the San Juan Islands) that accept Canadian dollars at par as a gesture to tourists as long as the bill is no larger than $20. When the Americans are doing that, the least we can do is pay them the premium they are entitled to."

In Victoria some stores avoid the problem by paying U.S. change for U.S. money.

Tourists are urged to take large U.S. bills to the bank where they can be assured of getting the full exchange rate.

"We have worked very hard on this program and it seems to have been successful," Nixon said.

Alan Emery, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, has also had a committee keeping watch on the exchange rate. It was the Victoria chamber that first raised the issue of the Sidney restaurant.

Emery said Victoria merchants seem to have learned a valuable lesson from the disasterous summer of 1976.

"Everyone is conscious of the importance of the tourist industry to Victoria."

Pharmacy Holdup Nets $80

A man who said he had a gun escaped with about $80 from the Douglas Pharmacy, 1469 Douglas, Monday night.

Pharmacist Jack Wong told police the man first indicated he wanted to buy a jackknife and then asked for change, handing Wong a $1 bill.

When Wong opened the till, the man ordered: "Just leave the cash drawer open. I have a gun."

The man kept his left hand in his pocket and with his right reached over and scooped about $80 from the till. He stuffed the bills in his pocket and walked out the door.

Police nabbed a suspect three hours later but released him when witnesses were unable to identify him.

The robber is described as 5 feet, 8 inches tall, slim, with dark brown hair and complexion. He had a blue color under his eyes which could be either mascara or bruises. He wore a reddish-brown jacket.

The holdup was the second in Victoria in the past three days. Early Saturday, two employees of Pizza Pieman, 230 Menzies, were robbed of $718 as they went to a bank to make a night deposit of the day's receipts.

Showdown Over Planning Looms Tonight in Saanich

A confrontation is expected tonight between Ald. John Mika and Ald. Fred Severson over Mika's call for a plebiscite on Saanich's official community plan.

Severson will support a three-page statement prepared by municipal planner Gil Laurenson and other members of the planning department, to be presented at tonight's meeting of the lands, planning and housing committee.

As committee chairman, Severson says he is behind the department all the way.

"I'm backing the staff. Until now they haven't been heard from. Maybe I'll be chastised. Whether or not, I'll stand by it," he said.

In the report, the planners repudiate Mika's assertion that a plebiscite held in the November election would provide necessary citizen input.

"In terms of meaningful communication on a complex document such as the plan, a yes or no vote is not very effective," the report states.

During the four public meetings held on the plan, the planners asked the public specific questions and received answers that were "useful, intelligent and very often were integrated into the plan," the report states.

Mika's critique, done with the help of University of Victoria law student Bian Etheridge, states the plan is based on the Ward and Associates report.

Severson says this is not so.

Mika is advocating that council provide ratepayers' groups with financial assistance in order to foster grassroot communication between council and the community.

Severson says if this is done, all other groups should receive financial help.

"If Ald. Mika wants the corporation to match $1 for $1 for ratepayers' associations I will personally push for all sporting groups to be included," he said. "They do an awful lot of work for the municipality. They're pressure groups, too, and are rarely heard from."

Severson said Mika's claim that high density near the Victoria boundary could lead to amalgamation is wrong.

The report states the densities in that area have been scaled down 29 per cent from 70 to 50 persons per acre.

"Amalgamation would not serve the best interests of Saanich residents and the plan, therefore, has been designed to increase the independence and economic viability of the district," it states.

Severson agrees with the planners' charge that Mika's call to have the proposed regional shopping centres (at Broadmead and the Tillicum outdoor theatre) removed from the plan is unrealistic.

The report states the centres are potential ones only. "Very few areas of Saanich are suitable for this designation, based upon location, size, transportation and physical characteristics. Removing the sites from the map will not make them physically less suitable for commercial development, and would make the map less representative of reality," it adds.

Severson reiterated the planners' claim that development of the Royal Oak industrial park would have developers bearing the costs of on-site and off-site servicing.

He stressed the plan is flexible and can be changed.

"There's been a lot of talk about shutting the door but this plan is flexible. I don't think they (the critics) have done their homework," he said.

★ FREEZE PROTEST PLANNED

The Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce will send a delegation to the Sept. 6 meeting of Saanich council to protest a proposed 120-day freeze on development.

The Sept. 6 meeting is scheduled to ratify a recommendation made by the lands, planning and housing committee that a public hearing on the official community plan be delayed until January.

If ratified, the freeze will halt all rezoning in Saanich.

Chamber president Alan Emery told the Times last week delay in developing the proposed Royal Oak industrial park could be disastrous.

Pinball Ban Rejected

Saanich council voted 5-4 Monday night to reject a bylaw it had directed municipal solicitor Doug Patterson to prepare calling for a ban on pinball machines in the municipality.

Instead, Ald. Robert Cameron, chairman of the council's youth committee, will arrange a meeting with police, juvenile courts officials and social workers.

The meeting is to determine what legislation is needed to curtail amusement arcade business operations that use any kind of machine encouraging youngsters to steal in order to get money to play them.

Voting against singling out pinball machines only were Mayor Ed Lum and aldermen Joe Bourque, who led the move for more over-all legislation; Fred Severson, Sandy Noel and David Paterson.

Noel said teen-agers were "not going to hell" simply by playing pinball machines. He said he had made a poll of parents and received only one negative answer.

Noel said teen-agers who committed crimes to get money to play machines are "problem children whose parents have no control over them. They'll play pinball machines, smoke pot . . . whatever . . . they're going to get the money somehow."

Ald. Ian Cass said he opposed rejection of the pinball ban because it had been requested by the police, courts and social workers.

Paterson replied that requests from the police and courts appeared more concerned with amusement arcades and their operators.

Lum, as a member of the police commission, said he agreed the pinball ban was not enough, and that police are concerned about control of arcades.

In other business, council voted unanimously on rezoning for a duplex at 700 Daisy Avenue but not before Ald. John Mika fired a verbal volley at Severson.

He criticized Severson for making public statements that the 120-day freeze on the community plan public hearing approved by the lands, planning and housing committee at Mika's suggestion would mean no rezoning activity for that period.

"I point out that we are in the process of rezoning for a duplex and that (this evening) we have already rezoned for two commercial buildings, three homes on another application, as well as another for two houses," he said.

Severson returned the shot by reminding Mika that the freeze was not in effect until council ratified it at its Sept. 6 meeting.

The rezoning approvals referred to by Mika are for:

—A one-storey and two-storey office, service rental and retail space complex to be built at 4011 Quadra;

—Three 8,400-square foot residential lots on Bow Road at Quiver Place;

—Two single-family homes on the west end of Thornhill Crescent.

Outfall Design Worries Builder

The contractor building a $2.5 million sewer outfall off Clover Point is so worried about whether the design is adequate he's willing to pay for an independent engineering review himself.

Murray Glazier, chairman of the regional board's public works committee, said today he believes it's essential that questions raised by Harry Berg of H and B Contracting be answered promptly by the board's consultants.

Berg told Glazier that he considers the concrete weights designed to hold the giant pipe secure on the ocean floor as inadequate.

He is also worried that a section of pipe broke at a weld recently, supposedly the strongest part of the pipe. Joining of the pipe has been discontinued while that problem is studied.

Berg also told Glazier that there are problems getting and maintaining a good fit with gaskets between pipe and concrete weights.

Prime consultant on the job is Ker, Priestman and Associates Ltd., but engineering on the outfall is being done by Associated Engineering Services Ltd.

Glazier said he has asked for a full response from the consultants for a committee meeting Sept. 7.

MIRACLE DUE FOR PHYSICAL

Miracle's condition remains "strong" today as she cavorts in her salt water pool at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

There's been no indication of a return of last week's internal bleeding, and she's not needed antibiotics since the infection was brought under control.

The baby killer whale, under Sealand's care for almost three weeks since being brought down from Campbell River suffering gunshot wounds and infection, is due for a complete physical Wednesday.
